BASEBALL FOR THE HOLIDAY

We will not play here Saturday as we go to Marblehead and meet the strong team that represents the town there. This team has been after me for the past three seasons but this is the first time that we have been able to go there. There will be a big crowd to go to Winchester and a truck load of 50 rowers will leave the square at 1.00 o'clock, and another large crowd will go in autos, so that Winchester will be well represented. This should prove a great game and will probably result in a pitchers battle between Davies and Davidson, with the team getting the breaks winning.

On the holiday we play two games with Arlington. The morning game will be played at Arlington and the afternoon game here. The game in the morning starts at 10.30 and the afternoon game at 3.15. These games should attract big crowds, and as Arlington always plays good ball against Winchester, the day should see good sport. Davidson will pitch the afternoon game at Winchester with Flynn opposing him, while Cunha or Collins will do the work for Arlington in the morning with a pitcher for Winchester to be decided upon. These games last year were the best games of the season, and this year should be equally as good. Everyone ought to turn out and get over to Arlington and root hard for a win for our team. They are all worked up in Arlington over these games and longing for July 5th to arrive to see the clash. All of Arlington will be on hand hoping to see Winchester go down in defeat, but last year and this year are two different things. If Arlington scores at all they will be lucky. So get over and root your heads off for Winchester and victory.

REV. GEORGE H. REED COMES TO WINCHESTER

Rev. George Hale Reed, pastor of the Unitarian Memorial Church in Fairhaven, Conn., announced to his parish Sunday his resignation of the pastorate to take effect in October.

Mr. Harry Good took a number of his horses over the road to the Sargent Camp, Peterboro, N. H., Monday. He will still continue his stable of riding horses here through the summer. Mr. Joseph Kane being in charge.

HOT FIRE

Fireman Did Excellent Work at Symmes House.

One of the hottest day fires to occur in this town for many months was that of Monday forenoon at the residence of Mr. Robert M. Symmes, 282 Main street. When the flames were discovered the fire was so hot that the inmates were obliged to flee immediately after attempting to call the engine house on the telephone.

The fire originated in some unknown way in the laundry just off the kitchen. Mrs. Symmes was at work in the kitchen and was first aware of the fire when the flames burst through the doorway. She snatched up her youngest child, which was with her, and then called the telephone exchange from the front hall. She had only time to tell the operator of the fire when it became so hot that she had to run outside, where she collapsed.

There appears to have been some confusion in the telephone alarm, for Mrs. Symmes states she called "Emergency" and told the operator her house at 282 Main street was on fire. The operator could not understand the message, but called the fire station and then tried to ascertain where the call came from.

Meanwhile a passing truckman saw the flames and pulled in the alarm from box 27 at Symmes corner. When the firemen arrived the back of the house was a raging furnace, and some idea of the heat can be imagined when partners in the parlor, three rooms from the laundry, were burned.

The house was badly damaged. Smoke filled every room, the kitchen was charred through, the dining room was badly charred and every picture on the first floor charred and blackened. The flames swept out through the back door and the bark piazza was in furnace under the roof. In the rear the fire went through a window, ran up the side of the house and was just entering a bedroom through an upper window when checked.

The firemen had a lively time for a few minutes, the smoke was so thick and the heat so intense. Nevertheless the blaze was put out in short order, but the house will not be livable for some time and the damage was estimated at over $5,000.

BICYCLE THIEVES CAUGHT

Sergt. McCauley Captured South Boston Boys Here

Sergt. Thomas P. McCauley of the local police department took into custody two South Boston boys Friday after they had stolen no less than four bicycles valued at over $100. Three of the bicycles were taken in Woburn and one from the Holland Fish Market on Main street. The boys were William Hamilton, aged 14 years, and Bernard O'Connor, 12 years of age.

The two boys stole bicycles owned by Thomas H. Dolan, Stewart Sumner, and John H. Sweetser of Woburn, and started towards their home. The Dolan wheel became too much of a lug and they abandoned it at Main and Hudson streets, Woburn. When they reached Winchester they liked the looks of the wheel at the Holland store better than that of Sweetser, and they swapped, taking Fred Holland's bicycle along with them.

The latter theft was their undoing, for they were seen by a boy to take the wheel and the police were notified. Sergt. McCauley gathering them in after chasing them in the police auto to the Medford line.

In the Woburn court they were sentenced to the Lyman School and their sentence suspended.

PIANOFORTE RECITAL

The pianoforte pupils of Miss Sadie F. Bowser of Winchester gave an interesting recital at Porechester last Saturday afternoon. Parents and friends present expressed pleasure and satisfaction at the progress made during the past year, all playing without notes from the most advanced to the first-season pupils. They were assisted by Mr. William Lawrence Bowser, tutor, who gave "Smile Through" and several other well-chosen selections, which were well received. A feature of the occasion was the reading of "Pianists' Pledge" by Miss Joan Cooke, a piano pupil.

ORGANIST WILSON MARRIED

J. Albert Wilson, organist and choirmaster of the Church of the Epiphany, Winchester, and Miss Mae A. Young of Somerville were married last Monday afternoon by the Rev. John W. Suter, formerly rector at the Epiphany Church.

It was a very quiet wedding, the ceremony being attended by only half a dozen persons. The father and mother of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred M. Young of Somerville; the father and mother of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Wilson of Somerville; the groom's sister, Miss Alice Wilson, with her fiancé, Rev. Gordon Carey of Middleboro, were the only ones present.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will take an extended trip through the White Mountains and into Maine, and will reside in Somerville on their return.

Mr. Raymond M. Pinkham, master at the Wadleigh School, is spending the summer at Annisquam.

SUMMER FESTIVAL

Event at St. Mary's Church Most Successful Yet.

The annual summer festival of St. Mary's parish, held Saturday afternoon and evening on the rectory grounds on Washington street, proved to be the most successful event of its kind yet held. TOWN CELEBRATION

Fine Program Planned Monday as Community Observance

A fine program has been laid out for the observance of the Fourth by this town. As announced last week, the events will cover the entire day, with entertainment and amusement for both young and old, and those in charge have made every endeavor to make sure that our celebration will fully measure up to the reputation of past observances.

The day will open with the ringing of the bells, and in the morning there will be an entertainment for all children 15 years of age and under at the Town Hall. The age limit has been set in order that all of the younger children may have a chance to get seats in the hall and enjoy the show, as it has always been the experience that the hall is packed. The morning show commences at 10.30.

The program for the entertainment will take the form of an "Americanization and Patriotic Entertainment." Among the features to be enjoyed by the children are 1000 United States flags, which are to be distributed. Mrs. Helen Edelfson Barr is to sing "America," with Mr. Ralph Arnold at the piano, and Rev. Nathaniel J. Merritt of St. Mary's Church will give a short talk on American patriotism and ideals. There will be a Punch and Judy show, singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner," and every child will receive an ice cream cone.

At 2.30 the following program will be rendered by the Malcom Band on Manchester Field:

March: Victory
Overture: King Midas

Fantasia: Grand American
Dance Solo: My Heart at the Sweet Violets

The baseball game at 3.30 is to be with Arlington K. of C., said to have one of the strongest teams in this vicinity. The Winchester team is under the management of Charlie Mack, and he announces the important news in this connection elsewhere.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Last Friday, at the home of Mrs. G. H. Hamilton, 30 Vine street, the Winchester Union held its last meeting for the season, making it largely a social affair. In the morning Miss Nellie Frank Hill and Miss Ruth Wheeler, general manager and head teacher, together with the members of the Sunbeam Club of the Frances E. Willard Settlement of Boston, came out for a picnic on the grounds adjoining the Hamilton home, and the girls, ranging from nine to twelve years of age, proceeded to have a good time. Luncheon was served on the lawn, and at half-past two the business session was held. This was very brief, and was followed by an interesting address on the work of the Settlement by Miss Hill, who has recently succeeded Miss Caroline Caswell as general manager of both Boston and Bedford branches.

The Settlement has now passed its twenty-fifth year, and Llewellyn Lodge has just closed the first ten years of its existence. A thousand children and grown-ups are enrolled in the clubs and classes in Boston, and for their benefit there is also a summer camp at Bedford, adjoining the rest home for women. In Boston is also the boarding home for women and girls who receive small pay, many of them being handicapped in one way or another. A playground for the little children of the neighborhood is another feature of the Boston work.

An appeal was made for help with the furnishings and supplies for the two institutions, household linen being especially needed.

The children then appeared upon the scene, and gave an exhibition of their club work, including their ritual songs and two little playlets, closing with the singing of the national anthem. Light refreshments were then served and the guests departed after what one of them called "a perfectly perfect day."

The committee in charge of the affair was composed of Mrs. Henry Blood, with Mrs. Tibbitts and the Misses McLellan and Elliott assisting.

Capt. John P. Crane of Woburn, formerly an active member in the Winchester Country Club and the donor of the cup which bears his name, died at his home on Warren avenue Sunday night. He had many Winchester friends.

TARBELL-SPAULDING

A largely attended wedding of two prominent Winchester young people was that of Saturday evening, when Miss Gladys Adeline Spaulding, daughter of Mrs. George H. Spaulding of 39 Mystic Valley Parkway, and Mr. John Appleton Tarbell, son of Mr. Charles A. Tarbell of Prospect street, were united in marriage.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Howard J. Chibley of the First Congregational Church at eight, at the residence of Mrs. Anne Spaulding, the bride's aunt, at 75 Washington street. There was a large attendance of friends and college classmates of the couple, both of Winchester and many surrounding places.

The residence was decorated with cut flowers and palms, the general color scheme being green and white. The ceremony was performed beneath a canopy of white roses, pink gladioli and fern. The bride wore for her wedding dress a creation of kitten's ear crepe trimmed with princess lace. Her veil was fastened with lilies of the valley and fern, and with it she wore a piece of rare old lace. Her flowers were bride's roses.

Mr. Bryner Pond of Cambridge was best man, and Miss Dorothy Armstrong was maid of honor, wearing blue silk taffeta trimmed with silver and carrying pink roses.

The bridesmaids and attendants were the Misses Mary Mason of Brooklyn, N. Y., Emma F. Noley, Maudie H. Spencer of Watertown, Josephine Woods, Isabella Whitecomb of Brookline and Eleanor B. Bulger.

They were gowned in pale green, yellow and pink taffeta, and carried pink roses. Miss Frances Slater, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She was dressed in white with ribbon and ruffled trimmings, and carried a basket filled with rose petals, which she strewed in the path of the bride and groom. The music was by an orchestra.

The reception followed the ceremony, the couple being assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Tarbell and Mrs. Spaulding. The ushers for both ceremony and reception were Messrs. Theodore Main of Webster, Conn., Mr. Charles R. Main, Mr. Walter I. Baiger, Mr. Elihu Spicer of Woburn, Conn., Mr. John Hull of Providence, R. I., and Mr. Edward Barbard of Cambridge.

Upon returning from their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Tarbell will reside at 39 Mystic Valley Parkway. Mr. Tarbell is a graduate of Dartmouth, '07, and Mrs. Tarbell of Winchester High, '11, and the National Park Seminary, Forest Glen, Md.

MISS STINSON RESIGNS

Miss Mabel E. Stinson has handed her resignation as a member of the Board of Overseers of the Poor to that board. Miss Stinson, recently appointed Town Clerk, and by virtue of that office a member of the Registrars of Voters, feels that her other duties will occupy the larger part of her time, and has therefore decided to discontinue her work on the Poor department. As constituted, this board now has two women members—Miss Stinson and Miss Alice N. Jewett, recently appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late George H. Carter.

A joint meeting of the Selectmen and members of the Board of Overseers of the Poor will be held at the Town Hall on Monday night to fill the vacancy caused by Miss Stinson's resignation.

JUDKINS-EAGLESTON

The wedding of Mrs. Lillian Eagleston of Boston and George Worcester Judkins of Winchester, son of Chas. S. Judkins, treasurer of the Mass. real estate exchange, and well known as a resident of this town, took place Wednesday afternoon at the bride's summer home, Chippinonssett, Vineyard Haven. The ceremony was performed on the spacious lawn sloping down to Vineyard Sound, and was attended by a number of the summer colony, as well as a large circle of Boston friends and relatives of the couple. The officiating clergyman was Rev. John Higginson Cabot, 2nd. The bride was attended by her bridesmaids, the Misses Muriel and Winifred Eagleston, and was given in marriage by her cousin, Mr. Louis Bonelli, Jr., of Brookline. Mr. Robert D. Farrington of Brookline was best man. The bride's gown was of fine lace and not over peach chamoisee. She wore a picture hat of fine lace and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and orchids. The bridesmaids wore gowns of wisteria and pink organdie with organdie hats to match. They carried sweet peas. A reception followed the ceremony at which T. D. Cook of Boston catered.

NEW GENERAL FEDERATION PRESIDENT

The newly elected president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Ames Winter, was formerly a Massachusetts woman, being the daughter of the late Dr. Charles G. Ames of Boston. Mrs. Winter was second vice-president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and has been director of a special committee on Americanization for the past year. Mrs. Winter was prominent on the program of the recent National Suffrage Convention, speaking several times during the Child Welfare Conference. Her fine record as a social worker and suffragist was a factor in her election. It is gratifying to observe the extent to which suffragists are being called to places of responsibility. This is perhaps, because those who have long wished to serve are not taken unprepared when the opportunity comes for wide-service. The "Never-thought-about-it-before" person naturally is unfitted when occasion calls.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES

The following cases of contagious diseases have been reported to the Board of Health for the week ending July 1: Whooping cough, 10; scarlet fever, 1; septic sore throat, 1.

Smith of Pittsford, Vt., sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing green taffeta trimmed with white lace and carrying a bouquet of roses and pink sweet peas.

The ribbon bearers were intimate friends of the bride.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

First among the summer activities of the club was a picnic given at Spot Pond by the Home Economics Committee to the girls of the Rumford and Chapin schools who have been under Dr. Moore's care during the past year.

There are twenty girls in this class and only one was absent. Autos were furnished by Mrs. H. W. Ashe, Mrs. George Dearborn, Mrs. George Heintz, Mrs. Raymond Merrill and Mrs. Chester Smith.

The lovely motor ride was a great treat, dainty refreshments—sandwiches, ice cream and cake—were served. The animals in the zoo were much enjoyed. In fact, the ten members of the committee who were present did everything in their power to make it a real good time, and the girls said it was "the best ever."

BASEBALL By Mack

Winchester Continues to Win.
Before the largest Saturday crowd of the season we pinned a defeat on the Medford Post, A. L., on Manchester Field last Saturday. The day was ideal for a game and it brought out all the fans in good style. This is our fourth victory in four games played, and while our boys did not show as well as in previous games we had no trouble in beating Medford. The only run scored was on a fluke and Davidson should have been credited with another shutout. It seems to be the general opinion around town that we have, at present, one of the best teams that has ever represented this town on the ball field. The players are all fast and while none of them are terrific hitters they have been managing to get the runs across and that is what counts. Take the team as a whole, it seems to be well balanced. Davidson and Bradish work together in fine shape and are well backed up by a fast infield and outfield. We should win a great many of our games this season, with the right kind of breaks, and the people of this town should see some high-grade semi-pro ball. The score:

NOTES

4 won, 0 lost for 1000 percentage. Will one week from today see the slate clean? Well, watch us.

Some wag remarked before the game that Medford must have brought the greater part of the A. E. F. up to beat us. Well, they surely had enough players to win but Davidson was too much of a puzzle to the batters.

Our former first baseman, Jim Frazer, played his usual good game at that station, but failed to do any damage with the stick.

Dieter on third base is a former Winchester boy, and played third base here several seasons ago. He makes some nice plays but has Jimmy Murray beaten a mile on wild throwing.

Our old friend Howard Fahey has taken on a lot of weight, but he made a couple of nice catches off Davidson in deep left.

This man Jenkins behind the bat is a wise bird and got away with a lot of stuff on Tole that a good umpire would not stand for. This is all part of the game, and he got away with it for a while until I got after Tole.

And by the way, Tole will never do as an umpire. He ought to prove a good one as he has been a catcher all his life, and should be able to call balls and strikes perfectly. He missed several plays there Saturday and his decision on that bunt of Christoforo got us in a hole. There was no excuse for that as Brawley pulled the ball foul when he tried to field it. Howard Woodlock will be on hand for the games with Arlington.

Tom McColgan's pets got a sweet surprise Saturday at Woburn when Reading took them into camp by the score of 2 to 1. Reading hit Weaver hard and should have rolled up a larger score.

Arlington had no trouble in winning from Doc McCarthy's Legion team at Arlington 5 to 1.

Bill Kennedy, who formerly played first base at Winchester is directing the Edison Co. nine, and they put it all over the Brookline Legion team Saturday at their field day, winning the game 8 to 1. The Edison Co. would like a date here and will get it later.

There are also two crack bank teams looking for dates, The First National and The Old Colony Trust Co., both these teams can make any team in Greater Boston travel to beat them.

There are two teams in Wakefield this season. The Pioneers, handled by "Buster" Young, and Wakefield Town team, handled by Geo. Dingwell. I am going to get one of them for an early date.

Reading is also seeking a date here, and I think after beating Woburn they should prove a good attraction here. If they don't want part of Manchester Field for a guarantee I will try and get them.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

The average man doesn't think he is better than other men; he merely thinks they are worse than he is.

Poverty is no disgrace—but the same cannot be said of wealth.

A theory may be all right these days, but it is sometimes different when you convert it into an experiment.

Many a man howls for justice, but when snooked up a side street when he sees it coming.

No man can stand in his own light without casting a shadow.

A real prohibition Fourth. Do you expect to hear a fire cracker?

Thus far the new "sea laws" for automobiles do not seem to be working out. The man on the right appears to have the right of way just so far as the size of his car commands it, excepting, of course, the thieves, which have a complete set of laws in their tool box.

Papers are being circulated about town for Representative Richard B. Coolidge of West Medford, representing this district in the Legislature, for another term. It is very doubtful if Mr. Coolidge has any opposition, for under the old and long-standing agreement two terms go with this office. During his term Representative Coolidge has been an excellent official, and has given careful and untiring effort in behalf of Winchester.

A small yellow insect of the lice variety seems to be giving the most trouble this year about town. Many fine trees have been attacked and stripped of their leaves. Brownish have also made their appearance in considerable quantity. The yellow insect is attacking trees which have heretofore been immune from insect pests.

Provision should be made during this summer for parking automobiles at the Town Hall. This matter was previously taken up by one of our Boards of Selectmen, and several recommendations made, but the improvement was never carried out. The graduation of the High School scholars Tuesday night, when there was a heavy rain, amply illustrated the need for proper parking space, as well as the use of either the side or rear entrances. At times Mt. Vernon street was blocked with cars, which, after leaving their passengers on the sidewalk in the rain, apparently did not know which way to turn to stop. The small space at the rear of the hall was quickly filled with cars, and others seeking space there blocked those already in. There should be some entrance through to Washington street. If this were made, cars could run through one way, parking at the rear of the hall, and leaving readily by the other entrance. With the constantly increasing number of automobiles, it would be a wise provision for town officers to care for this matter before the winter season opens, for unquestionably the congestion will continue to be greater as time passes, and our Town Hall is the largest place for assembly in town, and widely used.

WORD FROM MR. METCALF

Clergyman Writes of Transylvania Experiences

Through the courtesy of Mr. Robert B. Metcalf we are enabled to publish the enclosed letter from Rev. Joel H. Metcalf, the first received here since his departure several months ago. The Winchester friends will be interested in his experience.

My Dear Mr. Metcalf:
Now that I am out of Transylvania I have the first chance to write you. The Roumanian authorities allow no letters to come out of Holozsvar. I am now in England, buying supplies, roads for clothing and material for shoes, which I am going to send around to the Black Sea by water.

We have had a wonderful experience and not at all a hard one. The people received us with open arms. We visited 63 Unitarian churches before I left, so you see we kept busy.

We found that there was plenty of food there, but the people were in a terrible way for clothing and shoes, especially the ministers and teachers of the church, who not being so close to the soil, and their money being so much depreciated, were in terribly straitened circumstances.

I think it not too much to say that the contributions from America have saved the churches, even if it did not save lives.

I am expecting to be in Havre when Mrs. Metcalf arrives, and probably in August, when the goods arrive in Roumania. I will go back to Transylvania to see to their safe arrival in Clive—otherwise they might all be stolen.

I am greatly indebted to you and the church for the most wonderful experience of my life, not excepting the war. In the war those people were our enemies; now they welcome us as they might a king—as their friends and saviors.

Very cordially,
Joel H. Metcalf.

THE DUTIES AND PRIVILEGES OF AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP

By Charles Zueblin of Boston at the G. F. W. C., Des Moines, June 23.

"The women meeting at Des Moines could transform American politics by uniting to demand answers to two questions: why does Congress always destroy strong Presidents? why are all great measures carried by popular vote in defiance of parties? These resolve themselves into one question: why is a party?"

"The irresponsibility of parties causes the President-elect who is the popular idol, to be destroyed by the mob when he is the re-elected President. The Fathers gave him too big a job. Washington, Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln, Roosevelt, Wilson—the outstanding Presidents—were all deserted by the mob. It is not surprising that Washington, Roosevelt and Wilson said that parties are meaningless."

"Why is a party? Our partisan Congress plans to spend five billions next year, not counting a deficit of three or four billions from this year—more than the cost of our government from 1783 to 1920. In the face of these appalling figures and the H. C. L. what have the last two Congresses done of each party—done to reorganize? The last voted fifty percent more for the free seed graft than last year; they voted secretly, so their votes would not be identified; the two factions voting in a bi-partisan conspiracy. 15 Democrats voted for the railroad bill, 14 against. 17 Republicans voted for the recognition of Ireland, 20 against. Why do these men wear party labels at home?"

"Men have joined one of the two incompetent parties to avoid losing their votes. Can the women be fooled the same way? Who threw their votes further away? Who threw their votes further away? A few Socialists, millions of Republicans, or those who repeat having voted the Democratic ticket? Parties count in Washington only for spoils; important votes are decided by the President or by the snarlers who put over abolition, prohibition or equal suffrage."

"This is the year of decision; will the political debutantes be content to join 'ladies' auxiliaries,' selling their political birthright for a mess of Congressional seals, or ask the men to wait outside with them until the bosses see that they cannot function without citizens? If one wants office one must be 'regular'; if one wants progress one must be independent. Can the unspoiled voter doubt that her first duty is to remain mysterious; her second to draft the program by which the Americanism of all parties may be tested."

BIG TREE TRACT GIVEN TO PNCLE SAM

Presentation was made June 16 by the National Geographic Society to the Federal Government of another tract of 130 acres in Giant Forest, containing some of the mammoth and venerable sequoia trees which make this area the scenic heart and natural shrine of Sequoia National Park, California.

In behalf of The Society Gilbert Grosvenor, president of The Society, formally tendered the deed to the forest wonderland to John Burton Payne, Secretary of the Interior, and Stephen T. Mather, Director of the National Park Service, who accepted it in behalf of the government and the American people.

The gift was made possible by a number of the National Geographic Society who had been so interested in The Society's efforts to preserve the big trees that he subscribed $13,000 toward their purchase.

In 1916 the National Geographic Society by a gift of $20,000 supplemented a Congressional appropriation to purchase 317 acres of the big tree area and thus saved the giant sequoias from devastation.

With its present purchase and gift to the government of the Sharp Tract, the last piece, except one of John Muir's beloved Giant Forest, containing the oldest of all living things, passes to the government and thus is saved for future generations.

In the Sharp tract are on uncounted number of the giant sequoia trees, one of which is reputed to be as large as the world-famous Sherman tree. That tree, super-giant of the towering timberland, is half as high as the Washington Monument, and its trunk diameter exceeds the curb to curb width of most of the broad streets in Washington's residential section.

If planted in the U. S. Capitol grounds the Sherman tree, and a number of others, would shade the visitors who climb to the topmost outer gallery of the Capitol dome to gain a panorama of Washington, or shadow the rays of the lofty lantern which illumines the dome when Congress is in session by night. There are other trees which exceed the height of the 279-foot Sherman tree, but few which approximate its 36-foot girth.

In their age the sequoias baffle the imagination and outrun most of mankind's recorded history. The most conservative estimates of the antiquity of these sacred sentinels would make them saplings before a single pyramid guarded the Nile, stately and sizable timbers when Moses was a lad, hoary patriarchs of the unknown continent when Christ was born and America's discovery would be a recent memory in their reminiscences.

Though these mighty souvenirs of the past are mute about the rise and fall of dynasty and empire, they do betray something of the past. Their own age records are to be found in the rings concealed in their trunks, a ring for each passing year, as a hunter notches his gunstock for the bears he has killed. Then again, in wet seasons a tree adds more to its girth than in dry, and thus accurate weather charts of days when weather forecasting, and all other modern science was unknown, may be plotted from the tell-tale rings.

HAIL DAMAGE

What will we do with our vegetables that have been injured by that awful hailstorm? This is the question coming to the writer repeatedly, because of the tremendous amount of damage done by the hailstorm of a week ago. Where potatoes, tomatoes, beans and other vegetables having large leaves have the foliage badly shredded and broken off, it is always a question whether it is wise to try to save or plow under and replant. The writer has seen potatoes in home gardens that have been badly injured which have been cut off with a scythe, and the plants have outgrown the trouble and come through with a good crop of vegetables. On the other hand, many potato plants have been seen which have not come through; they never seemed to quite catch up.

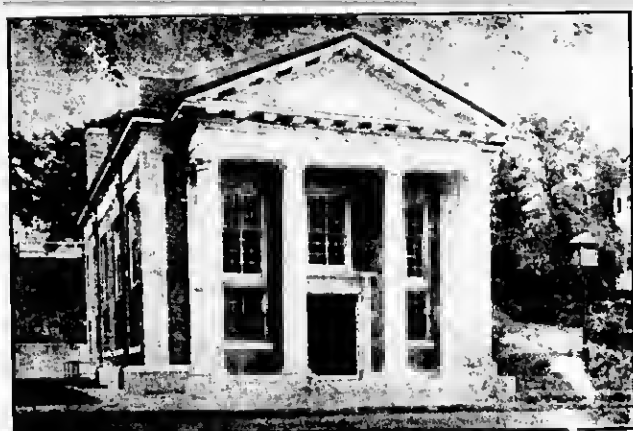

At any rate, whatever the vegetable may be, if one is going to attempt to save it, it is wise to remove some of the worst of the injured section of the plant and then feed the plant with a quickly available form of nitrogen, such as nitrate of soda, sulphate of ammonia, hen manure or sheep manure. Hail-injured vegetables should be hoed even more frequently than those which have not been injured, and those vegetables which are susceptible to disease should be sprayed even more carefully. When a leaf is injured, the spores and fungi have an excellent avenue of entry to the plant; therefore, the reason for keeping plenty of home-made Bordeaux mixture upon the foliage.

MAKE BORDEAUX MIXTURE

There are a lot of brands of prepared Bordeaux mixture upon the market, but very few of them contain sufficient copper to equal the strength found necessary to do effective work in controlling spores and fungi. The correct formula is what is known as the 4-4-50. This means 4 pounds of copper sulphate, 4 pounds caustic lime and 50 gallons water. Put upon a basis such as a home gardener would use, it is at the rate of 1 1-3 ounce of copper sulphate, 1 1-3 ounce caustic lime to 1 gallon water. It is not difficult to make this mixture, and it can be made at home very much cheaper than it can be purchased already made. The correct method is to dissolve the copper in a wooden or glass receptacle by placing the copper sulphate in a little cloth bag and suspending from the top of the receptacle. It is important to do this rather than let it go into the receptacle at the bottom. In another wooden or glass receptacle, the caustic lime is slaked by adding a little water. Sufficient water is added to each solution so that they will total 2 quarts each. These are now poured into the spray pump and thoroughly mixed. They should be poured in at the same time, or else the lime water poured in first, with the copper sulphate second. This may seem like quite a chore, but if one will but try it once, it will be found that it is not a difficult procedure and that the mixture will do excellent work in keeping blight from potatoes, cucumbers, muskmelons and tomatoes. Later in the season it should be used upon celery.

SUCCESSION PLANTING

Some vegetables have been harvested in the garden and the gardener should see to it that the space formerly occupied by these vegetables be planted to some other crop. Spinach, radish, lettuce and early peas in many gardens have been harvested. The question arises as to just what may be safely planted as late as the present time. Shell beans may be planted July 10 in ordinary years with safety. Beets and carrots for winter use may be sown as late as the middle of July and very satisfactory results obtained. Cress lettuce is an excellent variety to set during the summer months, as it withstands the heat better than the other varieties. Cauliflower plants may be put in for early preserving work, likewise cabbage plants.

WAKE UP THE SLOW GROWING VEGETABLES

Home gardeners find oftentimes that even though the garden is fertilized uniformly, certain portions of the rows or the field will not grow vegetables as rapidly as others. These backward vegetables may be prodded along by the addition of nitrate of up to July 1, and string beans up to soda, hen manure or sheep manure.

SIGHTS AND SCENES OF CHICAGO

Chicago, scene of the Republican National Convention, is the subject of a bulletin from the National Geographic Society, based on a communication from William Joseph Showalter, as follows:

"Geography made Chicago. Its position at the foot of the Great Lakes resulted in its evolution as the farthest inland terminus of navigation of the inland seas.

Made what it is by the processes of geography, Chicago soon returned the compliment by helping geography transform other regions. Its slaughtering and packing industry has changed the center of gravity of the meat-producing world. Its agricultural-impement industry has revised the economic status of more than half of the inhabitants of the earth. Its sleeping-car industry has entirely revised the geography of travel, bringing hundreds of places separated by mountain and plain close to each other.

It is interesting to pause for a bird's-eye inventory of what the city is today. Fourth in population, it ranks first among the world's great urban centers in many ways. No other place butchers as much meat, makes as much machinery, builds as many cars, sells as much grain, or handles as much lumber.

The Michigan avenue improvement is a major feature of the now famous 'Chicago Plan.' The beautiful highway, with its connecting arteries, unites the North Shore with the South Side. For years this thoroughfare has been the pride of Chicago and the admiration of all who visit the city.

As a part of the Lake Shore drive that links the woods of southern Wisconsin with the plains of northern Indiana, it is a magnificent street.

To secure the full benefits of her situation, the city is undertaking to connect her three great lakeside parks. Already Lincoln Park has edged a narrow way southward along the beach until there is a wonderful curving stretch of green reaching to Grand Avenue and making a four-mile parkway unbroken and unmarred.

The city annually spends five million dollars for park purposes; more per capita, perhaps, than any other city of the first order in existence. There is not a 'keep off the grass' in the entire park system; and all recreational facilities are free except the boats in the lagoons.

At the two golf courses in Jackson Park a third of a million balls were used in 1919. Twice as many people play on the long course in Jackson Park as play on the long course in the historic links at St. Andrew. No charge is made for playing, and there are locker accommodations for three thousand, while some sixty an hour can be started in play. Frequently players have remained up all night in order to get a chance to tee off next day.

There is a 'swimming hole' within walking distance of every boy in Chicago; and even with the fine municipal bathing benches of the lake front not far away, these mid-city park lagoons are always in use, providing joy for the hearts of the kiddies who visit them.

Chicago's hold on the slaughtering and packing of meat is only less striking than its supremacy in the harvesting and twine industries. One-fourth of all the meat animals that leave the farms and ranches of the United States are bound for the butcher's blocks of the lakeside metropolis.

Imagine a hotel with 250,000 beds, 250,000 desks, and a total registration of 26,000,000 guests a year. And imagine it having 5000 negro porters carrying a stock of linen valued at $2,000,000 and using some $50,000 worth of soap annually. Such is the Pullman Company with headquarters in Chicago, as typified by the cars in the service.

Selling goods to six million customers a year, handling a hundred thousand orders a day in ordinary times, and in rush times nearly twice as many, nothing but the most phenomenal system would stand the strain that the mail-order business of the world's greatest mail-order house involves. The story of how the vast flood of orders flows in and the deluge of merchandise flows out is an inspiring tale of Chicago business.

The main plant covers fifty acres and has more than ninety acres of floor space. From the mechanical letter-opener that can dispose of 27,000 pieces of mail an hour to the shipping room, where the merchandise finally starts on its way toward the customer, nothing but organization raised to the 4th power could cope with the vast volume of business that sweeps through the great institution.

There may be one or two other department stores in the world outside of Chicago that have outgrown a full city block, but certainly no other such store has outgrown as large a block nor occupied more floor area than Chicago's leading establishment. The square bounded by Wabash, Washington, State, and Randolph streets is a big one—how big may be gathered from the statement that the basement subterranean of this institution covers four acres of ground, while the main aisle on the main floor of the establishment is nearly 400 feet long.

And yet the structure towering that block, 13 stories high, with four basements below, is unable to accommodate that vast retail business built up by the merchant prince of the Middle West; so across Washington street there is a second building, big enough in itself for a princely business, housing a man's department store.

Imagine a retail business that requires 40 acres of floor space, set of such high class that more than 50 running miles of carpet are laid down to maintain the quiet elegance of the establishment. Fancy an army of shoppers so numerous that 77 passenger elevators are sadly overworked when high-water mark is reached, and a volume of purchases that requires 15 big freight lifts to handle it."

Eversharp pencils. Full line at Wilson the Stationer's.

"It Looked Like a Battlefield in Europe," Said Mr. C. Dunster.

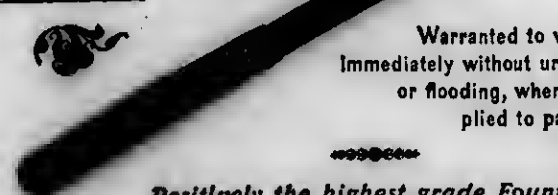

"Was staying at a hotel in a small Pennsylvania town. Early one morning I went to the stable to hire a rig and was shown a pile of dead rats killed with RAT-SNAP the night before. Looked like a battlefield in Europe." Three sizes, 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold and guaranteed by Central Hardware Co., Allen's Pharmacy and Richardson's Market.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local application, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. RAINBOW BAZAAR

Announcement of plans for the "rainbow" bazaar under the auspices of Winchester Council K. of C., to raise the sum of $5000 for the council building fund, was made at the meeting of Winchester Council K. of C., Tuesday night, by Past Grand Knight Frank E. Rogers, chairman of the bazaar committee.

The bazaar will be held Nov. 8, 9, 10 at Lyceum Hall, and will be in charge of a general committee, of which Mr. Rogers is chairman, Luke P. Glendon, secretary, and James Haggerty, treasurer. The four district tables will be in charge of those women: Mrs. Richard P. Glendon, Mrs. John McNally, Mrs. Anna Haggerty, and Miss Nellie Sullivan.

The first of a series of whists and entertainments will be held Thursday evening at the new council home, formerly the Winsor estate, off Vine street, under the auspices of a committee of which Mrs. Anna Kennedy is chairman, in aid of Mrs. Glendon's table.

BASEBALL TOMORROW

No game here tomorrow. We will play at Lynn against what is supposed to be the strongest semi-pro team in Massachusetts, the famous Cornets. On the holiday the Cornets bent the Trojans of Newport, and this team manages to win quite a few games each season from the big league teams. They play Sunday ball at Newport and big crowds watch the games there. Last season we played the Cornets 4 to 3 game, and this year we ought to make them travel to beat us.

The grounds are at West Lynn and are called the Little River play ground. A truck will have the Square about 1.45 and no tickets will be sold in advance, so first come first served in this case. Waburn will play The American Woodmen Co. team at Woburn. This team was only beaten by Marblehead 2 to 0, so a good game should be on tap up there.

WINCHESTER BOY ENTERS MOVIES

Mr. Cedric Savard, one of the smallest young men in America, if not the smallest, well known to many in Winchester where he has resided many years, started Tuesday in a dramatic school in Boston under Mr. Wilbur Symonds, director, where he will study. He expects to appear in his first picture next September. He has taken up this line under the advice of Mr. A. W. Plummer, who is director of a motion picture corporation in New York City. The firm has studios at Tampa, Florida, and it is there that Mr. Savard will probably locate.

WINCHESTER BOYS WON FOURS

The Winchester Boat Club four won the single class event, the most important race of the program, at the regatta held Monday forenoon on Mystic Lake at the Medford Boat Club. Medford staged the event, Winchester being invited to participate.

Choppy water and a heavy wind made paddling conditions anything but easy, and the boat had covered but a little over half the course when the Medford four shipped so much water that the boat became water-logged. Winchester managed to keep afloat until near the finish line, when it too, filled to such an extent that it was seen that the boat could not reach the line. At this time Francis Hayes and Kenneth Pratt, paddling 2 and 3, jumped overboard, lightening the craft so that the remaining men could put it over the line for a win.

The Winchester crew was made up as follows: Theodore Clifton, stroke; Francis Hayes, 2; Kenneth Pratt, 3; Robert Moffette, stern. Medford Boat Club paddled Arnold Carey, stroke; Ted Bell, 2; Arthur Donnellan, 3; and George Quinn, stern.

The half mile single blade race was won by Arnold Carey of Medford, Richard Murphy of Winchester finishing second, three lengths behind. There were six starters. Clifton and Hayes were second in the tandem, losing to Bell and Carey.

Jack Wood of Winchester won fourth in the sailing canoe race, he making an excellent showing considering that he was up against some of the best sailors on the lake. The four and a half mile course was traveled in an even hour by the canoes. The race was won by Wailo S. Mansson of Medford.

Prizes were awarded for all events, seal medals suitably marked being given the winners.

LEG BROKE BY AUTO

Pyter Ferri, eight years old, living on Harvard street, had his leg broken and received numerous bruises when he was hit by an automobile on Washington street near his home Sunday afternoon.

The boy was playing with his brother, and according to the report of the accident ran in front of an Overland touring car owned and driven by Ray W. Tebbetts of Waburn. The boy was knocked down and Tebbetts immediately took him to the Winchester hospital, where he was treated by Dr. Brown. He was found to have a broken leg, bruised eye and elbow, and a cut lip. He is reported recovering nicely.

REV. GEORGE H. REED
New Minister at Unitarian Church

Rev. George Hale Reed, newly appointed minister at the Unitarian Church to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Rev. Joel H. Metcalf, who goes to Portland, Me., comes to this town from the Unitarian Church at Fairhaven, Conn.

Rev. Mr. Reed was born in Taunton, his father was editor of the Taunton Daily Gazette. He prepared for college in the public schools of Taunton and entered Harvard in 1893, taking his A. B. in 1899 and S. T. B. in 1902.

He was ordained at King's Chapel, Boston, in 1902, and was called to the Unitarian Society at Belmont in that year, remaining there until 1914, a period of twelve years. In 1914 he was called to the Unitarian Society of Fairhaven, where he served until the present time.

Mr. Reed is president of the Seminars of New Bedford and a member of Belmont Lodge, A. F. & A. M. He was married in June 1917, to Miss Eleanor Eddy of Newton, and the couple have two daughters.

He will take up his duties in Winchester next October.

QUIET CELEBRATION

No Excitement and Pleasure for All in Winchester

The celebration of July 4th passed off in this town without any excitement whatever. The band concert, baseball game and fireworks in the evening drew the largest crowds in the town's history, but nevertheless there were no accidents and no fire alarms, and withal everyone had a good time and enjoyed himself to the full.

The day was ushered in by the ringing of the bells as is customary, the bells being also rung at noon and sunset. The morning's program for the children was held in the Town Hall and proved a great attraction, the hall being packed. As announced, the entertainment was of a general patriotic nature, every child being presented with a flag and Rev. Nathaniel J. Merritt of St. Mary's church giving a short talk on the meaning of the day. Mrs. Helen Edlerson Barr, who sang "America" during the program, was a big hit with the children and her singing was fully up to the quality for which she is known to her friends. Mr. Ralph Arnold accompanied her on the piano. The Punch and Judy show was also good and thoroughly enjoyed by the young folks.

At the close of the entertainment Randall's ice cream store became the centre of attraction, when every child rushed in his check for an ice cream cone.

The band concerts were by the Marion Band, an organization heard here a number of times and always to advantage. Concerts were given during the afternoon preceding the ball game and in the evening before the fireworks, programs of operetta and popular music entertaining everyone.

The fireworks in the evening were universally judged as excellent. Winchester has had bigger displays in the past, but that of this year was in no way disappointing and some very fine pieces were shot off.

The police made but one arrest, that being an automobilist who drove his car past an electric discharging passengers. One drunk was taken in charge also. There were no accidents. The nearest approach to one being during the ball game when a small boy ran into an automobile and got hit on the nose by the handle bar, causing a bad nose-bleed. He was fixed up by Dr. Brown, little the worse for the accident.

The crowd at the ball game was universally judged the largest which has yet assembled on Manchester Field for such an event, and Chief of Police McIntosh reports that the evening crowd was also the biggest yet. Fair skies and summer weather combined to make the celebration a success in every way.

S. M. CLUB ADVENTURES

After a most enjoyable week-end trip over the 4th at the Asquam House, Haldersness, N. H., it is reported the S. M. Club have all reached home safely. Current rumor has it that strange things happened on the trip. One incident, which at first it was feared was going to be serious, centers around two of the male members of the party.

Without proper notice to their wives they wandered into the thick woods. A very bad storm came up and the amount of moisture precipitated was much augmented by the dewdrops falling from the eyes of the abandoned spouses.

The shades of night had already set in and much talk of searching parties had been engaged in, when the two delinquents appeared at the hotel under the cover of a school map, which they claimed was obtained in due and proper manner. It was learned afterwards that there was some rumor of a pending prosecution by the local authorities, for alleged appropriation of school property.

Where they went is still a mystery. Some few remarks concerning a girls' camp recently established in the general location where they went and have only tended to deepen the mystery, and it is feared a more careful investigation will soon be necessary in order to clear the good name of the club.

G. L. C. CLASS OUTING

The G. L. C. Class of the Winchester Methodist Episcopal Sunday School, are in camp at Hedding, N. H., for two weeks. Mrs. Ada A. Wildberger, their teacher, having arranged for the outing last fall, and all have enjoyed looking forward to the event during the entire school year.

Much pleasure is taken in trips to neighboring villages, swimming in the Lamprey River, near by, informal house parties to which other campers are invited, and, last but not least, frequent walks to the wonderful spring, to take a drink. To obtain this water one is obliged to walk down a long flight of stairs, into a kind of hole, which has been stoned up like a well. The water is always ice cold, even on the hottest day. One grove of pines reaches a height of 125 feet. The camp is equipped with electric lights, modern lavatory, and large, airy sleeping rooms.

Two lucky additions were made to the party this week in the persons of Mrs. Herbert Sellar and Miss Eva M. MacRae of Winchester, who add much to the enjoyment of the company. The party will arrive home on Monday, July 12.

The following is a list of names included in the party: Mrs. Ada A. Wildberger, Mrs. Herbert Sellar, Miss Eva May MacRae, Miss Grace E. Milliken, Miss Mabel Meade, Miss Olive Sellar, Miss Esther Gordan, Miss Imilba Molbs, Miss Gertrude Wildberger.

THE INTERNATIONAL WOMAN SUFFRAGE ALLIANCE

The Woman Citizen states that Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, International President, is again in her New York office, where she will resume charge of the wind-up of the ratification campaign, after her absence to attend the meeting of the Alliance the first week in June.

The irresistible pressure brought to bear upon her previous year her decision to retire from the presidency, which office she has held for sixteen years, and she was again unanimously re-elected.

Mrs. Catt reports that 45 countries in all were represented, and 196 of them had government representatives. Lady Astor, member of the British House of Commons, was a government representative, as was Frau Stritt, one of the 3 members of the City Council of Dresden, officially representing the new German Republic, whose parliamentary members include 155 women.

"As there are only fifty-two or three countries in the world, such representation was phenomenal and indicative of the new value given to women's possible political contribution to the world over."

In all the republics newly formed on the western border of Russia, Lithuania, Estonia, etc., women have full suffrage; even in France suffrage has been given to women.

Mrs. Catt reports that the women of all countries testified to their full faith in the League of Nations, but were a unit in declaring that it will be a futile experiment, unless the United States comes in. The United States is, at present, outside, with Russia, Turkey and Mexico for companions! But the League is a "going concern" without us.

TRADERS' DAY SOON

The first meeting of the committee appointed by the Winchester Board of Trade to arrange for the annual traders' day will be held this evening, at which time the work of carrying through the plans for the outing will be actively begun.

Chairman J. Albert Hershey states that it is the desire this year to hold the outing on the last Wednesday of July. If this is carried out the 28th will be the day selected. Owing to stormy weather, but few of the outings have enjoyed sunny skies in recent years, and as it has been noted that fair weather follows the latter part of July, it is thought that a change from the first of August may be desirable.

Where the outing will be held and the program for the day will be decided this evening.

H., July 5.—Aviator Robert Fogg left Toronto, Canada, at 9.30 Sunday morning and arrived in Concord Sunday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, traveling about 120 miles an hour and making a flight of 600 miles in five hours. He made only three stops, Niagara Falls, Buffalo and Albany. He was accompanied by Willis Thompson of Concord, formerly in the U. S. aviation in France. Fogg arrived in Tilton about 10 o'clock Monday morning and landed at the fair grounds.

Known to many Winchester people through his long residence here, Mr. Fogg, who is the son of Mr. George H. Fogg, has been keenly watched in his flying by his friends.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

No thinking man in Winchester or elsewhere will deny that there are many things that are wrong in this glorious Republic of ours, in one way or another, or that much can and should be done to improve conditions. It is not true Americanism to shut our eyes to these things, or to close our eyes to evils that are manifest. But that the principles on which the American government is based are sound every sane thinking man and woman in Winchester firmly believes—and they are right. We Americans live under free institutions, institutions which will, unless perverted, forever guarantee our freedom. Where we have failed it has always been as a result of our departure from American principles, and our want of loyalty to American institutions. It is necessary that the people be instructed in these things, and made to realize what a precious heritage is theirs. Those who know the truth will never be led astray by those disciples of dissatisfaction and discontent—those badly misguided men who would substitute Russian socialism for Americanism.

The Spectator assumes that no one who loves Winchester, Massachusetts and America feels any need for apologizing for the glorious fact that this nation played in the great war, or for a party to any effort to keep under cover—or try to—the fact that we did participate in the war. Americanism never shone more brightly than in those stupendous days, the recollection of which already seems to be growing faint. The problem is one of keeping alive and strong in time of peace the spirit that during the war seemed to fuse us into one people. As Americans we need to face all the problems that confront us, and try to solve them in such a way as to strengthen our national institutions and life, and preserve our old freedom. America is still the land of opportunity—perhaps more so than ever. There is abundant cause for gratitude that we live in America.

A Winchester gentleman who is opposed to a bonus for the soldiers emphasizes that no large payment can be made without further expanding credit and substantially increasing prices. A bonus will mean still higher living costs. As this Winchester gentleman wisely points out, soldiers who expect to benefit from a government grant should not forget that they with the rest of the nation, must ultimately provide the money wherewith the government will pay. Thousands who cannot afford it will help to pay substantial sums to former service men, many of whom do not need the aid. No plan to tax wealth or capital, retroactively or otherwise, will relieve the people of the burden. Ultimately they will pay.

If a bonus meant in every case the payment of money or its equivalent to a soldier who needs help, to one who had been disabled, or to one who had found difficulty in re-establishing himself in a career because of his war service, or relief through vocational training or life insurance, there would be no objection to it. Nor would there be any plan to help sanely, to help soldiers to no one's harm, whereby, through means of production, the cost of the bonus to the people at large might eventually be lessened. But as the Winchester gentleman concludes:

man concludes: The payment of cash to former service men as a group, cash for which many will have no need, and which will be in part supplied by many who may need it badly—that is a very different matter.

According to one Winchester gentleman who has been a very close student of warfare, the development of modern implements of warfare will shorten the time of the war and reduce the amount of suffering and financial loss. There seems to be no limit to the capacity of men to undergo hardships and endure horrors. Nor should the fact be forgotten that the horrors are mitigated to some extent by the much better care given to modern armies. It will be remembered, too, that many of the wars of the old time were much shorter than those of our own day, and were frequently ended by one battle—as Hastings, for instance. But it is undoubtedly true that up to the present time men and nations have been restrained by the thought of the terrible consequences of war.

Whether they will be in the future it would be rash to predict, in the light of the failure of other prophecies. In the opinion of The Spectator it certainly would be unwise to base any hope for humanity on any such theory. If men could know in advance all that they would have to suffer, and if the noncombatant population could realize all that war would mean for them, the case might be altered. But they rarely do. In the opinion of The Spectator, there is one development that certainly ought to exercise a very strong deterrent influence. And that is the enormous widening of the field of misery and death. If the late war had lasted a few months longer we should have seen hundreds of people in cities far removed from the battle line killed by deadly gas bombs discharged from airplanes. The effort of such a campaign on the morale of a nation would certainly be distressing. This statement, and this is the moral—who does not do everything in his power to make another war impossible is nothing short of a criminal. But should it come, men would, The Spectator has no doubt, fight as bravely, die as heroically and suffer as stoically as they did in the great world struggle.

MEN NEED MORE FAITH

Editor of the Star:

Men these days are seeking social adjustments through elaborate machinery and cooperative effort, and many think that if they can only get a program adopted all will be well. As a Winchester clergyman not long ago emphasized if there were "virtuous and goodly living" in the part of every citizen of the United States, all our problems would be solved. What this country of our needs above everything else is a sound, true and fine character in its citizens. Nothing can take its place, or make good the lack of it. Many substitutes have been tried, but they have always failed. Today, for instance, there is an external religion, an affair of rites, ceremonies and codes, which absolutely fails to touch character at all. Laws may prevent evil practices, but they cannot impart essential goodness, or do anything to develop it. Machinery is worse than useless, and may be dangerous, unless it is in the hands of good and high-minded men. Everything depends on the quality of the individual life.

Man is more than a bundle of relationships, for though he cannot determine always what his relationships shall be, he can and must say—and no one else can—with what spirit he shall enter into them, and whether he will be faithful to the obligations which they impose. People of our day are very likely to fail to understand or appreciate the importance of the individual, relying, as they do almost wholly, on mass thought and action. Organization is everything and the individual unit almost nothing. Yet the greatest force in the world is character, and character is an individual possession. No taint of commercialism attaches to conduct issuing from this source. Organized goodness is both possible and desirable. But the point is that it is not the product of organization, or law, or of anything external. It is an individual thing, and is found in the most individual part of man's nature—the soul.

Personality is a great and precious thing, and as such is to be safeguarded and revered. Perhaps with our passion for legislation and our reliance on machinery we make too little of it. If so, we shall have to suffer because of our mistake. "Before man made us citizens," said Lowell, "gent nature made us men." So it is not enough to teach men Americanism—that, of course, we must do but we must also instruct them in a sound and high morality, and develop in them a personality that will respond readily to all good and patriotic impulses. It is a question of rearing, molding and influencing the inner life. As far as possible, masses must be broken up into their individual units. If it be said that the ego is strongly enough asserted, the answer is that the thought is not of assertion, but service and sacrifice.

It was Carlyle who said that there is something greater and higher than happiness—namely, blessedness. The old man never approached more closely to the Christian ideal than when he poured those words. What the nations of the earth—ours among them—need is more, and a great deal more, righteousness. If there were less ingenuity shown in devising short cuts to salvation, a firmer reliance on those great principles that must underlie any life that is true and sound, and a more determined effort to make those principles prevail, it is possible that social unrest would soon disappear. Many of our churches are starting great campaigns to extend their influence and strengthen their work. Those campaigns will fail, and deserve to fail, unless men come to realize that salvation for themselves and the nation must come through giving rather than getting, through self-sacifice rather than self-assertion. What men need is, not more wealth and ease and comfort, but more faith, that faith which of old "subdued kingdoms and wrought righteousness."

BASEBALL

Winchester Loses First Game of Season.

With the fine weather on the holiday Winchester and Arlington saw two exciting games of ball. The morning game at Arlington going to Winchester in 10 innings 6 to 2, and Arlington winning the afternoon game by the close score of 3 to 2. Both games should have gone to Winchester, and no runs scored by Arlington with half decent playing by the Winchester team.

Davidson pitched both games and gave as fine an exhibition of pitching as the most rabid fan could wish to see. He was handicapped some in the afternoon by poor catching and his support in the field was very poor. The scorer gives our team 5 errors, but I saw them make 10, both of omission and commission. Carrigan caught the morning game in good style and hit well, while the afternoon catcher was unable to hold Davidson, and made several errors of judgement. I think Bradish will be back for the game Saturday, and we should strike our winning stride again. The crowd was the largest ever seen on Manchester Field on a July 4th, and order was well preserved, only

A win and 1 lost for .333 per cent. The Winchester people at the Arlington game in the morning made up over half the crowd. When it comes to following a team, Winchester has all neighboring towns beaten seven different ways. The afternoon game saw visitors from Lexington, Somerville, Medford, Woburn and Stoneham. These people know where to find excitement at ball games.

One prominent visitor with whom I have had lots of fun with in the paper, and whom I had never had the pleasure of meeting stepped up and introduced himself to me at Arlington. This gentleman, Mr. J. Willard Hayden of Lexington, was a live wire with the old Minute Boy team of Lexington. For the past four years he has been doing war work and has just returned after 8 months in Armenia and the near east. He hopes to get baseball going again in Lexington and then watch the fur fly.

I also met more managers and baseball men in the morning than I had seen in a year before, all wanting games or a chance to play ball.

Some of them may get a chance to play ball here unless one or two members of the Winchester team do not make a quick brace for the better.

I can stand a game lost through batting by the other side, but where players start to boot games away as has been the case in the last three games played, then watch for quick changes.

Amateur errors are part of the game, there is positively no excuse for a team making nine errors in one day, if they are supposed to be ball players. There is one thing that needs correcting right now, and that is the criticism of our own local boys. We have three players here in Hevey, Hatch, and "Maek" that any team would be glad to get hold of. All three play heads up ball and give everything they got to win the game. If an out-of-town player makes an error or bone play it seems to be O.K., but our boys are expected to be super men. Leave the hammer at home and bring a horn the next time you come to the field, and give each one of the boys a reception and let them know you appreciate their work.

The field was in fine condition for the game and Supt. McDonald and his men were on the job early so everything would be O. K. for the afternoon game. Quite a difference in our field and the neighboring towns. The one thing lacking here is proper seating facilities. One citizen made the remark that I would be managing a ball team in hades or the other place before they got ready to put up a stand here.

The police detail under Sergeant Harrold did efficient work in handling the crowd. Something different from Arlington, where they had one officer and he let the third base crowd of boys get away with everything short of murder. He told me he was watching the grand stand, but I told him the Winchester crowd were all honest, that while we needed a stand in Winchester we would not go so far as to steal the stand there.

Next game with Arlington will be played at Winchester July 24th, and Winchester should have very little trouble winning, provided the team plays up to the standard behind Davidson.

McCALL UNDECIDED

Following a conference with members of the United States Tariff Commission, former Governor Samuel W. McCall has sent word to President Wilson that he desired to further consider his appointment to the commission before assuring his acceptance.

Senator Lodge and former Senator Weeks will be questioned in the near future regarding their attitude in confirming McCall's appointment at the next session of the Senate. It is possible that Mr. McCall will decline the appointment unless he is assured of favorable action.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Lives of great men may remind us that it is sometimes better to remain obscure.

A fellow can't tell what to eat so easily as the daily meat.

Beef may grow cheaper, but I fear that venison will still be dear.

That is the most contradictory article in commerce because when purchased, instead of going to the buyer it goes to cellar.

If a man swallows a thermometer, will he die by degrees.

The man who too often gives in soon gives out.

Traders' Day past.

Even so, there are some who stay at home.

And some of our neighbors think we have a really efficient Superior of Streets. But you ever go out of town?

Yes, George, we're sorry you missed some of the fireworks. We did not know ourselves that there were any more after those flags. And the band played the Star Spangled Banner too. But do you know, if you had taken off your hat and stood up straight, and not grumbled Kate by the arm and elbowed your way through the crowd, you would have just had time to sit down again when that big rocket went off. We're sorry you missed it. Yes, it was really one of the best pieces. Well next year we will get the description of the last piece to be fired off and put it on the first page in big type, and perhaps by that time it may not be fashionable to play that tiresome national anthem. Yes, it is a bother to stand up; especially after such a strenuous day. No, we will not have fireworks again until next 4th. We're glad you left your car in the best place in the Parkway, even if you didn't ask it yourself. Perhaps it kept some outsider who wouldn't appreciate the music or fireworks away, and we noted that those people who had the seat behind it were able to see very clearly by standing up. We're glad you enjoyed what you saw of the affair. Come again—the day after.

The holiday appears to have satisfied everyone. For once we got by without rain—almost; the downpour of Saturday afternoon probably being for the benefit of those sinners who planned to start their pleasures before the Sabbath. Perhaps the fine weather and enjoyable holiday will prove the necessary antidote for what has been ailing most of us through the past months, and now, thoroughly refreshed, we will take up our tasks with less grumbling and more determination to accomplish results, realizing that those who dance must pay the fiddler and that one cannot play all of the time and expect to live on the fat of the land. The selection of our presidential candidates too, should prove of assistance in sending us back to the old paths; not that anyone appeared to worry greatly over the matter, but it is a relief to know the worst, and now having digested Mr. Harding's history and found out all about him we can turn to Mr. Cox with the assurance that we have a good line and only need a few minor details to fix his biography away until fall. Since the War politics are the main point of interest, and the various candidates for the various offices, aided by the newspapers, which some of them possibly control, are doing their best to keep them so. Politics are bound to stay in the foreground anyway, without much boasting. The ladies, God bless 'em, are going to make things hum, and what they will do is keeping more than one public office holder on the anxious seat. There is no telling what a pretty girl can do in politics when she sails forth a full fledged voter. Of course the wise ones who possess some grey matter beneath the artificial flowers and straw, always possessed a vote, and were doubtless as powerful in influencing the election of a popular male as was his nearest man friend. Those of the feminine sex who still stick to the stuffed birds and feathered plumage will probably not exercise any more influence in the result of an election than they ever have—unless they run for office themselves; and then of course they will be elected by a strong vote (male) and it will be really interesting to see what they will do with their power. So all in all our recent celebration seems to have been of a beneficial nature. To be sure some misguided ones took the date as the opening event in the home brew competition, and those who got by are still undecided whether they were more fortunate with their head aches than those who found a haven of refuge within the arms of the Law. We in Winchester appear to still have with us a little of the 1918 stock and our police had nothing to do other than proving themselves superior wrestlers to one of our residents who is something of an amateur detective and exercised his power in ascertaining the amount of alcohol in my quart and the incident closed; becoming a sealed book—or bottle, as one may choose. More people visited our playground than ever before in the history of our town, and as fully half of us are deposited in various parts of the country trying to find a spot more beautiful than our home town, we may again expect some work for the housing committee next fall when this half returns and finds that our appreciative friends have beat them to it without spending the summer as members of a searching party. Probably a few missed the "missed parade" over the burning sands and possibly some of our storekeepers missed the sale of the red, white and blue bunting which goes with it, but even so, no one complained. We got by with our fireworks better than Somerville, and except for those who went home when the band played the Star Spangled Banner and the set pieces of the crossed flags was set off, and thus missed the remainder of the display, all enjoyed them. Those who left had no kick coming anyway, for had they removed their hats and stood at attention as prescribed by law, they would not have recovered that "as you were" stuff quick enough to draw an absent mark when the next rocket exploded—and the rockets were high enough at that, for them to see the stars and colored lights in their way. The celebration kept pace with modern methods and probably ran somewhat over the specified amount our town meeting set aside for the purpose, but this too, will cause little need for worry, for who ever heard of Winchester when it was without a few citizens who liked a good time, enjoyed it themselves, and were still better tickled when they could see others enjoying it around them.

The number of automobiles at the ball game and at the fireworks was by far the largest yet. Cars were parked on the Parkway from Washington street to below Mystic avenue, and an innovation this year was instituted in allowing them to park on the field during the fireworks, the whole stretch from the station to the river being filled.

ANNA ALTMANN WEDS

Prize Beauty Bride of Clarence Lawton

A wedding of interest to the motor world of America took place the last day of June, Miss Anna Altmann, winner of the Maxwell national beauty contest, of Syracuse, N. Y., and Clarence Lawton, purchasing agent of the Brown-Lipe-Chapin Company of Syracuse, largest manufacturers of automobile gears in the world, were married in the home of the bridegroom's younger brother, Otto A. Lawton, 84 Cambridge street, Winchester, agent for the Franklin Motor Company at Old Commonwealth avenue.

The Rev. Alliston B. Gifford of the Methodist Church performed the ceremony. The couple were unattended except that Mr. and Mrs. Lawton, their hosts, stood with them and were the only witnesses. After the ceremony at 11 o'clock, and a family wedding luncheon, the bride and bridegroom left for their honeymoon in Mr. Lawton's motor car, in which they arrived in Winchester on Tuesday.

The couple will reside in Syracuse.

WOMAN AS CITY CLERK

Miss Martha Dickinson, who for the past eighteen years has been employed in the office of the City Clerk in Windsor, and who for a large part of that time has discharged acceptably the duties of City Clerk, was recently by a practically unanimous vote of the council, appointed to succeed Mr. Lusted upon his retirement this year. The position carries with it a salary of $2400 a year. It is believed Miss Dickinson will be the first woman in Canada ever named to a similar position. Alderman Wood alone voted against the appointment. Besides Miss Dickinson, there were six other applicants for the position. —Halifax (N. S.) Recorder.

INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE

Beggs and Cobb are showing up strong in the newly organized Industrial League, formed from several of the industrial plants in this vicinity. Playing their first game last week with the J. H. Bates & Son team, the local shop lost by one run in a fast, snappy game. The game belonged to any one right up to the final inning, when Beggs & Cobb made its last run. But teams played strong ball, Horrigan and McGonigle standing out for their excellent work.

Tuesday's game with the Woburn Machine Co. belonged to Beggs & Cobb from the start, and although it did not produce air-tight baseball, there were many excellent plays. The Winchester team allowed the visitors to make their two runs through lax playing, and hit Colucci freely.

BOYS' CLUB ON TRIP

Ray Ward, Arthur Dutton, Ralph and Ernest McAdams and two companions of the Boys' Club of the Highlands left the Second Congregational church early on the morning of the 4th on a week's rumping trip. They travelled by auto to Riverhurst Park, where, after awakening the proprietor, they loaded canoes at the boat house and started up the Concord River.

The party buckled the wind for 30 miles to Fairhaven Bay, where they stuck camp, remaining through the week. They will defray the expenses of the trip by collecting and selling old magazines and newspapers, and residents of the Highlands who are willing to assist the boys are asked to notify the boys, who will call and collect them.

WILLIAM GOODWIN

One of the oldest citizens of Winchester passed away on July 2, at West Campton, N. H., the summer home of his niece, Miss Annie R. Scott, with whom he had made his home for the past twenty-one years. Mr. Goodwin was born in Sanford, Me., December 31, 1823, the son of Nathan and Anne (Butler) Goodwin. His grandfather and uncles served in the Revolution, and his father was a Captain in the War of 1812. He sold the farm which had been in his family four generations, when he became blind from rataract. After an operation, he regained the sight of one eye, and took a lively interest in national as well as local affairs. He was never heard to complain, being of a gentle, lovable, helpful disposition. He was the last to hear the family name, but is survived by his sister, Mrs. Sarah M. Scott. The burial was at Riverside cemetery, New Market, N. H., July 5.

Woburn as a gift in a letter received by the city council this week from Edward Johnson, representing the family. A deed, accompanying the

The land, which comprises about

Loammi Baldwin, who developed the being Nov. 27, 1801.

PROHIBITION AND PROSPERITY

Prohibition, Probation and Prosperity were the three principal causes which led to the closing of the Lowell jail Thursday by the Middlesex County Commissioners. Built in 1856-57 and opened in 1858, for sixty-two years the jail has been in use, and many famous prisoners have been housed within its walls. The original cost of the jail was about $150,000, and as the years rolled by the plant has been steadily improved until today its value is estimated to be around $500,000. The property will probably be offered for sale.The jail, which is located on Thorndike street, Lowell, close to the Boston & Maine Railroad tracks, is on property which contains 251,528 square feet of land, or between five and six acres. The jail has a capacity of 150 cells.The grounds about the jail have been well developed. Each year a considerable income has been derived from the crop of potatoes, onions and other vegetables which have been planted. A good hay crop has also been secured each year, and in the greenhouse lettuce and cucumbers were raised.For the past four or five years the number of commitments to the jail have been steadily decreasing. The war came along and cut down the number still more. The working of the prohibition system throughout the state also contributed to the lessening of the number of commitments. Then came July 1, 1919, when the Prohibition Act took effect. Soon after the act became operative, another cut in the number of commitments was noticed. The County Commissioners were able soon after the Prohibition Act took effect to reduce the force at the jail by some twelve men. The jail became but a temporary jail. A small force of men was kept there, but all men who were sentenced from the Lowell police court were taken over to the jail and held there for a few hours, which gave them an opportunity to secure bail. If they were unable to get bail they were trans-ferred immediately to the East Cambridge jail.Following several conferences by
the Middlesex County Commissioners,
it was decided to close the jail on July 1. Notices to that effect were sent to Judge Thomas J. Enwright of the Lowell police court and Supt. Redmond Welch of the Lowell police.The five officers who have been at the jail since last July will all be taken care of. Special Sheriff Charles H. Eveleth will remain at the jail as keeper and will care for the property, see that the hay crop is cared for, and that the property is protected from any vandalism.In speaking of the closing of the jail, Chairman Alfred W. Cutting of the Middlesex County Commissioners said: "We feel that there is no longer any necessity of keeping the Lowell jail open, and have ordered it closed July 1. Prohibition, Probation, and Prosperity are the causes which have contributed to its closing."It is hard to say which of these three causes did the most to bring on the closing, but they all are responsible. Plenty of work at good wages always decreases crime. The total saving to the county by closing the jail will be from $30,000 to $35,000 each year, all of which will have its effect in reducing the county taxes.
Under the eight-hour law it is now necessary to have three shifts of officers in all jails and institutions, and the fifty or sixty men that each year have been at the Lowell jail can be well taken care of at the East Cambridge jail.Special Sheriff Eveleth will remain at the jail as keeper, and in regard to the four other officers at the jail, one has made application to be retired for disability and the other three expect to have new positions by the middle of the month.From now all men who are sentenced from the Lowell police court will be taken to the East Cambridge jail and House of Correction to serve their sentences."Playing cards for your vacation.

SURVIVES SHOCK OF 1650 VOLTS

Hunt, Linesman, Graped Live Wire in Tree

Thomas Hunt, of 24 Snow street, Brighton, prominent athlete and member of the Riverside Boat Club crew, employed as a linesman by the F. T. Ley Company, had a narrow escape from death Tuesday afternoon, when 4600 volts of electricity passed through his body while he was in a tree on Washington street, opposite Governor's avenue.

Hunt was engaged in trimming branches and taping wires where the insulation had burned off from friction against the tree limbs when he grasped a live wire. Harry B. Cloutier of 131 Winn street, Woburn, and William Allen of Quincy, linesmen employed on a pole a short distance away, saw his apparently lifeless form hanging among the branches and ran to release it.

Cloutier climbed the tree and cut the wire which held Hunt suspended. He then lowered the body to the ground. Sgt. Thomas McCauley of the Winchester police soon arrived with the pulmotor, which was used, and Hunt recovered consciousness and was rushed to the Winchester Hospital, where Dr. Richard Sheehy treated him. His left hand was severely burned.

Romance—Bah!

By GERALD ST. ETIENNE

(Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

Caroline Kelson could not take her eyes off the man across the table. To her he was a curiosity, and, as he came away at a pace of foot in one hand and stirred his cup of coffee furiously with a spoon in the other hand, with his eyes glued on the newspaper before him, she wondered if he was human. It had been the same every morning since the first morning at that boarding house, two weeks before. The landlady had not thought it necessary to make them acquainted.

Never more had he raised his eyes at Caroline's entrance to the dining room; never once had he offered to pass her anything at the table. She had only seen him eat, stir coffee, read a paper, jump from the table and leave the room. She had not heard him speak. He was not even decently polite. He was good-looking and seemed well bred, too. What a shame for such good qualities to be wasted on a bore like him, Caroline thought.

"Romance—bah!" The words came out of the man's lips in a disgusted exclamation. Caroline almost called out in fright. He had spoken—the speech was almost too much. But that was all he said.

When he turned the paper over she caught sight of when had caused the outburst. It was an advertisement for a thin play called "Romance."

As Caroline devoted herself to her grapefruit, she thought it over. This man was a woman-hater, that was apparent. To him there was no romance—he seemed to hate the word. It seemed to her that men like that should not be allowed to live. All through her breakfast Caroline's indignation grew. When he got up and went out in the same old way she frowned after him.

He Was Not Even Decently Polite.

She was still frowning when he returned. Another variation in his daily program. If there were any more shocks her breakfast would be spoiled, she felt sure.

But that was nothing to the next shock. The man sat down in a chair in the corner and grumbled.

"Are you ill?" she asked, jumping hurriedly to her feet, sympathetically overlooking all other feelings.

"No," he said gruffly, "but one of the landlady's youngsters is, and we are under quarantine."

"Oh," Caroline exclaimed. "What shall we do?"

"Stay here for ten days at the very least. Good heavens, and all the work that is piling up for me at the office!"

"And my work, too!" she almost added. "Are you sure we are under quarantine?"

Before he could answer the landlady herself appeared and heartily confirmed the news. Her youngest child had contracted smallpox and had been removed to an isolation hospital. It would be necessary for the household to remain under quarantine until the house had been thoroughly fumigated, and even then they might be held for ten days until the authorities were sure no more cases would develop. If the quarantine were broken the landlord would be put under immediate arrest.

There was nothing to it but to make the best of it. The boarding house was situated in the suburbs. Caroline had chosen it to be away from the noise of the city so that she could do some writing at night. There was a large garden, enclosed by a fence, that had always appeared inviting. It was beautiful summer weather, so she could spend her time reading in the hammock under the shade trees. After notifying the city editor of the Evening Mail why she would not be able to report for work for a few days, Caroline sought out the hammock. The woman-hater had arrived there first. She reached to attract his attention, but was really surprised when he took the hint and offered her the hammock. After all, he did remember some of the laws of civility.

Suddenly Caroline threw aside her book. A terrible thought had come to her. The house was to be fumigated. All papers would probably be destroyed and there were two manuscripts of stories in her room. She would have to get them out of the way somehow. A spade, standing against the house, gave her an idea. She hurried to her room and returned with the manuscripts wrapped in a newspaper, and proceeded to bury them. When the work was done she looked up to see the man looking at her. He pretended he had not seen her, but she knew he had. With a toss of her head she went back to the hammock.

"Miss Kelson, do you think I have smallpox?" Somehow he had found out her name. Caroline looked up from her book to find him looking over her.

"Goodness, no! Why?" she asked. He pointed to a spot on his forehead. Caroline gave a sigh of relief as she looked more closely at it. "It is only a freckle," she laughed. "You have two or three of them."

That started a conversation. It began with freckles and ended with looks and flowers. His name was Mr. Lathrop, she learned, but by the second day they were calling each other Harry and Caroline. How she ever could have thought he was a bore was more than she knew. He was really delightful. When the quarantine was lifted at the end of ten days they were genuinely sorry.

They both went back to the grind, meeting only at breakfast, but they were different breakfasts after that, and when they caught up with their work they were going to become better friends, they assured each other.

One morning the mail brought Caroline a big surprise—a check from the publisher of a magazine. She had not remembered sending any stories to him. The magazine was published in the city, too. What stories had she sent? She remembered burying the two in the garden. They were probably destroyed by that time. A look at the letter that accompanied them started her. The check was for those two stories. Then it occurred to her that Harry Lathrop had no doubt seen them in her forgotten in a crate her name from them and the publisher had given her credit for them. He had stolen them. He who hated romance could not write romantic stories, so he had taken hers. "The wretch!" She would call on the editor that very day to learn how he had got them.

When Caroline was ushered into the editorial room of the magazine she gasped. There sat Harry at the desk. He knew why she had come.

"Sit down," he said. "Is it about your stories?"

"Yes," she said meekly. "Where did you get them?"

"The landlady gave them to me," he laughed. "I am mighty grateful to him for them, for they are very good."

"They are not," she said seriously. "They are wretched. You bought them just to please me."

"No, I didn't. I'm not a bit romantic. Business comes first with me. Your stories are going to prove a buried treasure in many ways than one."

Caroline tried to persuade him that the stories were poor ones, but he would not listen to her.

"Won't you come to dinner with me?" he asked as she was going. "I have something I want to say to you."

"What?" she asked, half dismayed. "Can't you guess?" he said.

"But you're not a bit romantic," she blushed. "I shall never forget the disgust in your tone one morning when you said 'Romance—bah!' You used to be a terrible bore at breakfast."

"I have been overworked here, but I am going to have an assistant," he said. "How could you expect me to like romance when I read nothing but romantic manuscripts day in and day out. I hate the very word."

"When the right girl comes along you will be as romantic as anyone," she prophesied.

"But you are the right girl—the only girl for me," he blushed. "Life without you will be nothing. You are the girl I have been dreaming about and waiting for for years. My auditions have all been for you. My hard work has all been for you, and for the little home we should have when I find you. Just think how happy we could be—just you and I in a garden like the one which we were in those ten wonderful days. Please do not let a false idea of romance come between us. I love you—surely you will love me?"

Harry had risen and was talking right into Caroline's eyes. Before she knew it his arm was about her and she did not draw her lips away as his came closer.

"Your heart," he said pleadingly, "perhaps I can learn to be romantic."

There was a merry twinkle in Caroline's eyes as she exclaimed: "Romantic! Well, perhaps!" That seemed to be all the answer Harry needed; her smile made up for words.

Electrician's Pliers.

A new type of pliers for the use of electricians has the handles covered with insulating compound of such a character that it is soft, soft, not hard. Therefore the insulation will not crack or break when dropped or struck on a hard surface. It is claimed that the bond which the rubber compound is used to make a permanent attachment, and is in no way to be confused with the present slip-on handles of soft rubber and the methods of attachment in the handles of insulated pliers which are neither practical nor can withstand a test for dielectric strength after hard impact. Every pair of the new pliers is subjected to a 10,000-watt insulation test.

Nothing but Emptiness.

A little girl, a neighbor of mine, went to the country with me last summer. When we were out of doors looking around the first day, the immensity of the sky seemed to amaze her. "What?" she cried, stretching her little arms wide and looking as if to embrace all nature. "Where's everybody gone to?"—Exchange.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Cures are free. All Druggists. T.B. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Golden Rule Service

Service is the one thing that we sell—service in line with the Golden Rule

WE distribute this same Service to all car owners and to all makes of batteries without discrimination.

When you pay money for a new USL you are buying Golden Rule Service, of which the battery is but an essential part. It's just the same as paying your employees, your lawyer, your doctor, your dentist—for Service.

Service is the most important thing in the world today. To all car owners, we aim to be the "greatest Servant of them all."—Our Golden Rule Service, we think, makes us so. But we invite your careful co-operation in caring for your battery so as to assure you long battery-life.

Often when a man thinks his battery is "done for" and he is ready to buy a new USL, we show how we can save him money by repairing his old battery and giving an adjustment guarantee for eight months.

We sell only USL Batteries with the durable machine-pasted plates. The factory ships them to us "Dry-Charged." This avoids all before-sale deterioration so that you really get a perfect, full-life battery.

We are a USL Golden Rule Service Station—not a battery-store

MUSIC IN COST OF LIVING

Inhabitants of Densely Populated Flats in New York City Begin to Take Alarm.

Opening windows on the first warm days of the year bring a warning that this will probably be the most musical season New York has ever seen, says the Evening Star of that city. The apartment-house court has always been cosmopolitan in its musical tastes and prone to prodigality in its volume of more or less musical sounds in summer, and this time it appears that not only are all the young men home from the army but that the high cost of everything has also made the apartments more densely inhabited and more continuously so than ever before. The magnets are lacking that once drew folk away from home in the evening. Beer is negligible as a corner attraction. The movies are more expensive and more tiresome. Soda bears a war tax paid by the dispenser and also charged to the consumer. Home has become a rather forced haven for all and music is being overworked in an attempt to relieve its tedium.

This season we have with us, apparently, not only the phonograph and the player piano—those resources of the musical and unmusical alike—but there is also an apparent return of the child who practices on the piano.

TWO COUNTY COMMISSIONERS ON BALLOT

Middlesex County voters will have the unusual experience of voting for two county commissioners at the primaries this Fall. This is due to the fact that the biennial election law goes into effect this year. County Commissioner Walter C. Wardwell of Cambridge ordinarily would be the only member of the county commissioners to be up for election. Next year Chairman Alfred L. Cutting of Weston, would have come up for re-election. In order to simplify matters, both Wardwell and Cutting will be voted for this Fall for terms of four years each.

TRADERS' DAY, AUGUST 4

Notwithstanding the fact that the first Wednesday in August is usually rainy, and that some of the local merchants desired a change in holding the annual traders' outing, the committee in charge united in selecting that date for this year at their meeting on Tuesday evening. There was a large attendance of members, and August 4 was chosen for the outing.

It was decided to hold the outing at Canobie Lake, thus making a change from salt water sites, which have been selected on the past two years. The trip to Canobie and return will be made by auto busses, although it will also give private car owners the chance to go with their own parties if desired.

Two subcommittees were appointed, as follows:
Transportation and Dinner—Harris S. Richardson, J. Albert Hersey, and John Picello.
Sports—J. C. Sullivan, Herbert Sellar, and Edward McKenzie.

It is planned to have a dinner served for the entire company at Canobie, and tickets at $1.50 each will be sold by members of the committee and at stores in the center, to be later announced.

Active work in arranging for the outing is now under way, and it is expected that the program in full detail will be announced next week. The general committee in charge includes J. Albert Hersey, chairman; Harris S. Richardson, Herbert Sellar, G. R. Buncraft, J. C. Sullivan, C. A. Lane, John Picello, R. P. Whitney, Dr. R. W. Sheehy, and Everett A. Smith.

BASEBALL TOMORROW

Tomorrow we will have to play at Medford. The team came here with the understanding that we would give them a return game at Medford July 17th. This takes us away from home two Saturdays and it was something I did not intend to do. I tried to cancel this game and play it at a later date, but Medford would not stand for it. They proceeded to call us yellow and quitters, and about everything else but sports, so I stuck it out and will play them at Fulton Street, Saturday.

This field is reached by way of the Everett and Malden car line. Cars leave Winthrop Square every 7 or 8 minutes and pass by the end of Fulton street, one minute's walk from the field. Autos will have to turn up Forest street and take second street on right, which brings them to the field, where the cars are parked free of charge.

These grounds are not fifteen minutes ride from Winchester and as the entire city of Medford will be at the game to see Davidson pitch, it is hoped a large crowd from Winchester will also turn out. I think Erskine will probably run one or two trucks to the field, which will make it so much easier.

SALVATION ARMY DRIVE

George M. Bryne, Winchester, Mass.
My dear Mr. Bryne:

Enclosed please find receipt for your check of recent date, amounting to two thousand four hundred eighty-two dollars and seventy-six cents ($2,482.76), which is the collection made in Winchester, Mass., for the Salvation Army Home Service Fund. I desire at this time to express the deep appreciation of the Salvation Army to you for your kind and splendid co-operation, and through you to your committee and helpers, for their interest in this effort.

I would be thankful if you will in some way (possibly through your local paper) thank the givers to this fund, which will enable us to continue to bring hope and cheer to the many unfortunates that we constantly come in contact with.

Thanking you again for your assistance, I beg to remain,
Sincerely yours,

ADAM GIFFORD,

Colonel.

HE GOT HIS DOG

Said a gentleman Tuesday: "I am pleased to compliment you upon the success of my Friday's ad in the STAR. I did not expect to get my dog back but through your ad a Winchester lady informed me that she had seen a Stoneham resident take the dog along with him, and gave me his address. I went there and recovered Fido."

Of a similar nature was the remark of a lady on the same day: "I had great success with the sale of my things through my ad in the STAR." It does appear that it pays to advertise—especially in the STAR.

NIGHT ALARM

Many Aroused by Whistles and Fire Alarm

Many Winchester residents passed a wakeful night, or rather morning, when the whistles in Woburn factories split the air with their shrieks and the Winchester fire alarm sounded the Woburn call early Wednesday morning.

The excitement occurred at 2:20 a. m. Several of the Woburn factories located near the Winchester line opened up suddenly with unearthly shrieks and continued blowing, and hardly had their din ceased when the local fire whistle sounded box 451, the call to Woburn. The night was still, and by the freak of air currents some sections of the town heard the noise as though it were next door, while other parts barely heard the alarm.

The fire was at the Woburn Iron Foundry near Fowl street. Owing to alterations, the Woburn fire whistle does not sound, and the bell is not ringing, owing to its vibrations shaking down the plaster of the church, which has granted its use gratis for 25 years, and which now thinks it up to the city to pay a maintenance. Consequently, no one knew whether the Woburn fire department was aware of the fire or not. Not only the Woburn fire department, but every resident within miles around knew of it after the whistles got through.

The fire was seen by the watchman and box 53 was rung in from the street. It was seen by the watchman of a neighboring factory, who rung in his box, 13. Other watchmen in the vicinity, whose factories were in danger, also saw the flames and opened up their whistles.

Winchester answers second alarm fires in Woburn, and as box 53 called out all the city apparatus, being in a dangerous location, our alarm was immediately sounded when box 13 was rung in, the motor pump going up.

The fire, while it was a hot blaze, was not large enough for Woburn to call outside assistance, and the Winchester apparatus had nothing to do, but many people lost a good night's sleep and more than one man got up and dressed and went to the scene, his mind full of visions of some calamity.

AUTO STEALING A HAZARDOUS OCCUPATION

District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts of Middlesex County gave out the following statement yesterday afternoon:

"The return through the agency of the Newton police and of this office to custody of the notorious Barney, after every effort on the part of state officials through the offer of reward, and of the police department through their usual channels, had failed, opened up a regular flood-gate of gossip in the press regarding an auto-thief trust and similar drive, most of it pure invention and all of it either stupid or irrelevant. I would like to close the incident officially and finally insofar as this office is concerned, and take this method of doing so.

"Barney is back in prison where he belongs. In all probability he will stay there, having voluntarily returned for that purpose. Incidentally he isn't nearly so dangerous or desperate a type of criminal as a dozen other men convicted of auto-thefts in Middlesex County within the past year.

"As to auto-thefts and the men engaged in them, let me make it clear that since January 1st out of over two thousand criminal cases before me there have been just five complaints of auto-thefts in all Middlesex County, comprising fifty-four cities and towns, covering the largest territory of any county in the state and with a population of about a million.

"The hearty co-operation of the public, auto owners in particular, the alertness of the local police and constabulary in every section of the county, the assistance of the insurance companies and the drastic manner in which auto-theft cases have been handled by this office all contributed to make auto stealing a hazardous occupation and not a pleasant pastime in Middlesex County. So much for Barney! So much for auto-thieves! So much for old stuff! Now let's get busy with new and pressing matters!"

GYPSIES VISIT WINCHESTER

Stop on Tour to Increase Finances and Are Caught in Arlington.

Startling stories flew about Winchester square last Friday, shortly after noon, when it was said that bandits in an automobile had held up the Arlington Gas Light office on Main street, and after securing $100 had driven away. Other reports of a similar nature were heard until mid-afternoon, when a variation was added in the information that the bandits had been captured. It was not until night that the true account of the affair became generally known.

It appears that at 12 o'clock a touring car bearing a Kentucky number drew up at the Winchester garage on Converse place. While the driver went into the garage for something two women from the car went into the Arlington Gas Light office next door and asked for a shade for a lamp. The clerk was obliged to go to a rear room to get it, and when she returned she found one of the women back of the counter.

Everything appeared all right, but when the women departed, her suspicions being aroused, she took account of stock and found that a box containing $10 in quarters was missing from her desk. A deposit of about $400 ready for the bank was in the safe, but was not taken.

The police were immediately notified, and one of the first reports received when they called surrounding places was that the car had been in Stoneham and just departed with $80 and a gold watch belonging to the manager of the Jenny gasoline station there. Chief McIntosh learned that the car had been seen to take Maple street at Stoneham and suspected that it might have circled around towards Arlington, so notified the police at that place.

It was at Arlington that the party was caught, shortly after they had relieved the manager of the Linwood garage there of $6. The car was spotted by an Arlington officer, and he took the party to the station.

They were all Gypsies and included John Frank, 55 years; his wife Olah, 30 years; his daughter-in-law, Rosie Frank, 27 years; her infant and two of John Frank's children. In all instances the thefts were made by the women while the man engaged the attention of those likely to interfere.

Identification was quickly made by the victims and the party brought to Winchester. They claimed to have come originally from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, and to have been members of a group of gypsies, some 50 in number, who are encamped on the Squire place at Revere. They had secured the auto at Paducah, Kentucky, where they spent the winter, and had been travelling north by way of Georgia, Maryland and Virginia.

The whole party, children and all, were held over night at the local police station. According to report one of the women spent the night smoking cigars, but this dissolved into a request for cigarettes. The man claimed to be a coppersmith and the women "mind readers," by which they said they made their living. A search of their auto disclosed $33 in bills, $40 in quarters, a box of freshly pulled lettuce, a revolver with cartridges, and other things, passed as their rightful property. They showed a registration and license for the auto.

At the Woburn court Saturday morning they engaged attorney Michael J. Dennen to defend them, but they were held in $300 bail for the grand jury. It further developed that they were wanted in Malden for the larceny of $20 from a gasoline filling station and later a similar complaint came from Medford that they had appropriated $10.

The gypsies took their arrest without show of anxiety, only lamenting their hard luck when they left for East Cambridge.

TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Louis G. Rondina of 121 Highland avenue, celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary on Sunday last. A short reception was held at four o'clock, followed by a buffet luncheon, served to fifty couples, by Schulemaker of Lynn. Mr. and Mrs. Rondina were the recipients of many handsome silver gifts from their intimate friends and business associates of Mr. Rondina.

The occasion would have been unquestionably a success if their daughter, Aurora, who is at present confined to the Winchester hospital, where she underwent an operation for appendicitis last Tuesday, could have been present. Very favorable reports, however, relative to Aurora's condition have been received daily.

181 Golfers Start in Open Play at Country Club

No less than 181 players started off Wednesday in the open tournament at the Winchester Country Club, the number exceeding by 55 the largest previous field in an open tournament at the course. Five sets of 15 players qualified for yesterday's match play, which will this morning, H. F. Robinson (10) of Meadow Brook, Reading, leading. His score of 78 was the only one below 80, he thus taking the qualifying medal, which, as a matter of fact, is a silver platter.

Two Winchester men, L. W. Ranta and F. E. Sketup, tied at 71 for the net prize. They were handicapped at 12 and 16, respectively. It took a score of 85 or better to land in the main flight. Scores ran rather to the high side. The course is reported by all players to be in the best shape ever seen for a tournament.

Robinson's card was as follows:

R. S. Dunbar, Winchester (191), vs. J. L. McKoon, Jr., Albernarle (184).

The first and second rounds of match play yesterday developed a lot of close and exciting golf, in all divisions. In the third division every one of the four second round matches went to the home green. A feature of the tournament, quite an unusual one, was that in the first three flights there was not a single default.

Bart Stephenson, president of the M. G. A. and a Winchester director, featured the day's play in a scoring went around in 77. H. E. Robinson, when, against A. M. Bond, he medalist, was a participant in two nip and tuck matches in the morning, beating his clubmate, A. P. Wade, by 1 up, and after lunch losing to Eddie Lowery on the home green, 2 down.

Harold Wood, Winchester, accounted for Nat Lovell in the afternoon in rather a peculiar match. Wood won the first three holes in par. Lovell repeating on the next three. Then they halved the next trio. Coming in Lovell did a bit of exploring and Wood scampered to victory right up the middle.

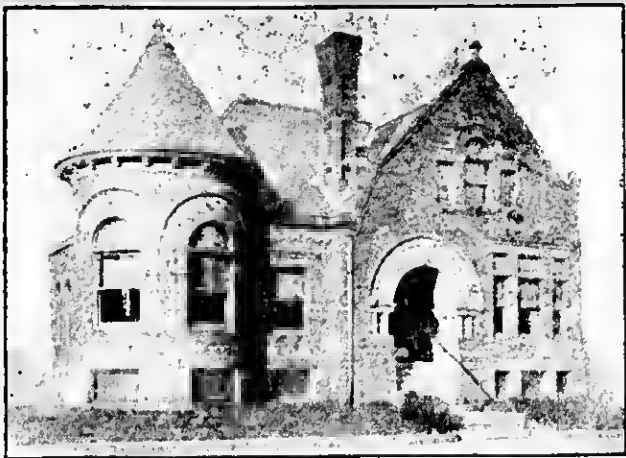

Winchester has survivors in all five flights.

Today a special four-ball, best ball open is on the card for all except finalists. There will be net and gross prizes.

BASEBALL

By "Mac"

I will let Mr. Southward of the Lynn Telegram-News tell the story of the game last Saturday at Lynn. The article is from the Sunday edition:

CORNET STARS WITNESS-TER 6-2

The Cornet Stars vanquished Winchester Town in the extreme heat yesterday, clinching up their sixth straight victory in the shortest game of the season before a big crowd that sweltered and baked on the huge cement stand at Little River. Dr. Steve White twirled masterly ball against a formidable rival in Davidson, once of Baltimore, and left with a 6-2 scalp tied to his belt. Up to the seventh but one scratch hit was made off the Dorchester doctor, and then he was touched up for three pounds and two runs.

Old man McKenzie scratched his pate in despair yesterday as he sizzled and boiled on the visiting bench, but he was in there fighting until the finish, and at one time felt that he might depart a winner. But in order to make it safe, the Cornet Stars chased three runs in the eighth, and then the cunny Scot realized that destiny had not willed it that he should smash the winning shut of King Jawn.

The contest, played in one hour and 34 minutes, teemed with brilliant stunts, in which the visitors took us large a part as the homers.

McKenzie brought down a fast fielding bunch of youngsters, while Davidson, a curve-ball pitcher, tossed up many hooks and was extremely hard to hit.

Despite the torridness of the day, and that it was like sitting on a hot stove to be jambed into the cement stand, a big crowd gathered to be entertained by a comedian who pulled off many a witty wheeze near the Cornet bench.

The only bangle off the Dashing Doctor from Dorchester was by Lawrence in the second, who crashed one off the doc's hoof, and it earned into right field. From that time until the seventh the Winchester tossers went hitless. But in the seventh they became hitless, and Gus Whelan missed a play at the platter which resulted in two tallies and gave the Cornet Stars but a 3-2 lead.

John Ring played wonderful ball at third, engineering a speedy double play to Whelan, with Paradis acting as the pivot man. Paradis and Cutler showed to advantage, while Kirshstein and McGaffee in the field pulled brilliant catches.

Hevey also robbed McGaffee of a hit in left by a shoe-string catch that was exceedingly Robin Hood.

Davidson, although nine hits are credited against him, pitched good ball, and some of the bingles were exceedingly scratchy, showing that he was no set-up to be treated lightly.

Red Callahan's pair of doubles and single by Ring played an important part in the victory, as did the base running of Tom Whelan.

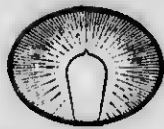

The Cornet Stars got away to one run in the opening stanza. With two gone, Tom Whelan walked and stole. Red Callahan hit one high and dry on top of an auto in right and Tom scored.

Two more came across in the second. Gus Whelan opened with a hit and Kirshstein laid one down and was out. Lawrence hoisted McGaffee's roller and Gus scored. Sluggo advanced to third while Christoforo was chucking out White, and Paradis' high fly which fell back of second scored the second run. Cutler also binged and T. Whelan walked, stuffing the baserunners. Callahan surprised the boys and girls by whiffing.

Both clubs battled hard without scoring again until the seventh, for the clouts would not come at the right time to do business at the counting station. In the fourth Dr. White fanned the side, and in the fifth John Ring cut across the diamond and started a thrilling double play with Paradis and Gus Whelan.

It looked to the nude optic as though Dr. White was in to work a shut-out game, but in the seventh, after Ring had tossed out McKenzie, Graveson's floater, however, fell safely along the foul line in left for a base. Lawrence crashed along the right chalk into the crowd for two sacks. Hatch grounded to Gus Whelan, who tagged the hitter and then dashed towards second, where Lawrence was caught between the bases.

Lawrence made his way slowly to

A WORD REGARDING TENNIS

Editor of the Star:

It seems to me that the time is ripe for something to be said on the subject of better (or rather, SOME) facilities for tennis in the Town of Winchester, as there are now none outside of a few private courts. The opportunities for baseball in this town are unsurpassed; and I know we are all proud of our splendid diamond and the by no means mediocre playing to be seen upon it from time to time. But baseball is not a game to be played off-hand—in team action is a complicated piece of machinery, requiring the concerted action of at least eighteen players, and opportunities for play do not always coincide with what are, to many of us, all too brief intervals of leisure. As regards golf, Winchester again furnishes ample opportunity to those with means to cultivate it, but Country Club dues and golf equipment are expensive propositions, to say nothing of caddies, and not all, even in Winchester, are sufficiently well off to indulge ourselves along that line, and hence must seek more simple and inexpensive recreation. (Oh, yes, I know the present price of tennis balls, but this is comparatively speaking.)

(On the other hand, tennis is the most adaptable of games. Given two men with balls and rackets, AND A COURT, and the story is complete. They are an amusement institution complete in themselves; in five seconds they can be in the thick of the combat.)

Winchester is a town of business men, and tennis is pre-eminently a business man's game, developing as it does the precise qualities necessary to business success—accuracy, precision, consistency, patience, brain-work, and ability to make quick decisions. Perhaps there are in all three general grounds on which to consider the proposition of tennis courts in Winchester, expediency, opportunity, and interest, the first of which has already been covered.

Regarding opportunity—one only has to walk down by the Wedgemere end of Manchester Field to realize that here, at least, is one public tract of land where four or five courts could be installed very nicely without, I think, crowding either the baseball diamond or the out-door gymnasium. Incidentally, for those people who like to look on, but do not engage in sports (and there are many in Winchester) tennis is a beautiful game to watch, and except for being on a somewhat smaller scale, yields no whit to baseball on the spectacular side, especially when two reputable players are pitted against each other. Thrills in baseball are more or less intermittent; in tennis, almost continuous. As the courts would be in action a great deal of the time, there would thus be afforded a very pleasant source of entertainment on Manchester Field.

Regarding interest in the game, no one in Winchester with whom I have talked has proven other than very enthusiastic. I am myself a member of a club of twenty men, organized primarily for tennis purposes, who have recently been forced to disband because this court (built by their own labor) has been taken over by the gentleman who owns the property. Now we are all at large and EX-CRUDINGLY tennis hungry, nor do we flatter ourselves that we are the only would-be tennis fans in town. It is quite evident that the arduous labors of constructing a tennis court are not entered upon by those not keenly interested in a place to play.

At the present time, the nearest public courts of which I know are at Jarvis Field (Harvard College, Cambridge); and many of these young men have been making this long trip by trolley and paying the double fares involved (also court hire) for the sake of an hour or two at their favorite pastime. This is an aggravation only, however, for REAL tennis fans want to play every day of the week, and do not care to waste the greater part of their spare time traveling to the courts.

Tennis is the cheapest of all outdoor sports, requiring the least amount of equipment. In democratic tendencies and general availability it has no equal. It is the most concentrated of games, requiring the least amount of ground in proportion to the splendid amount of exercise it affords. It should be made easier for our young men to indulge in this most democratic and healthful of sports—democratic, because affording opportunity to play to the greatest number of participants, and healthful, because it provides at once the most continuous and all-around exercise of them all.

All parents with the welfare of growing young people at heart should have a particularly vital interest in the project of securing for them the advantages of this clean and healthful outdoor sport. Not only the young men, but also the young ladies of the Town are extremely interested in this tennis proposition. The next

PLAYGROUND POPULAR

Manchester Field and Sandy Beach
Great Attractions

The playground on Manchester Field, although it has a close rival in the swimming place, Sandy Beach, at Mystic lake, is proving a great attraction these warm days. It opened the first of July in charge of Miss Doris Bowman, and she and her assistant have had their hands full ever since the opening day. The average attendance is 50 children, the number having run as high as 80 and as low as 25.

The Manchester Field playground is open daily except Mondays from 2 to 5 in the afternoon. On Wednesday and Saturday afternoons the children are taken to Sandy Beach for a swim, although they are at liberty to go any day they please, according to their preference.

The playground at the Chapin school has not proven quite so popular, the average there being about 25. This playground is open Tuesday, Thursday and Friday mornings from 9 to 11.45. The apparatus at the Chapin playground has been given to the Town through its Park Board by The Farmington, which bought and installed it.

In this connection it is interesting to note that the Manchester Field playground is shortly to have some new equipment, a croquet set, cricket set, new balls, bats and gloves, a basket ball and a volley ball having been ordered and expected at any time.

Miss Bowman is planning an innovation in the closing exhibition and games this year. She will have a series of three elimination meets on the three last Fridays in August, the final meet being the last Friday. This will eliminate the games on Labor Day and will give more playground children a chance to compete, and also avoid the large number of children who do not attend the playground through the summer, but who appear on Labor Day to try for the prizes.

Picnics are planned for the summer, to be held on suitable Wednesdays, and it is very probable that the children will take a trip to Lynn Beach by truck.

The most popular spot on hot days—especially the week past—is Sandy Beach. The average attendance there thus far has been 135 swimmers, and the highest day was Tuesday, when at one time 225 children were in the water. The swimming instructor, Raymond Wallace, and his assistant, time you walk about the residential sections of Winchester, notice the impromptu and unsatisfying substitutes for the game that daily take place in many a humble yard, or even in more pretentious ones.

Tennis enthusiasts have waited long for a game in Winchester. WINCHESTER, WAKE UP!

Miss Marion Wallace, have their hands full.

During the morning the children are given swimming lessons, only Winchester children being instructed. This is an important factor, since the attendance numbers fully half from other places. Of the outside places, Arlington and Somerville predominate, most of the children coming from there, although a few come from Woburn.

It has lately become the fashion for whole families to visit the beach and go bathing, these swimming parties being very prevalent in the early morning and evening. Even grandfather is reported to be regular in taking his dip.

The two bath houses have been used daily to their capacity, and on Sunday, when the beach was supposed to be closed, both the girls' and boys' houses were broken into and used. In addition to the Metropolitan Park Commission's skiff, the Town has a fine new skiff in use, and two substantial rafts are at the beach, one in deep water for the larger children and one near shore for the younger ones.

Excellent discipline is maintained by the instructors, who are assisted, if needed, by the Metropolitan officers. The only inconvenience to the beach is the long walk the children have to take to reach it; and in this connection Miss Wallace says that most of the children bring their lunch and stay at the beach all day. Her hardest work, she says, is to prevent the lunches being eaten before noon, for the swimming creates very healthy appetites.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

The men who wish to get all they can for their money, they should saw their own wood, getting warmed up twice for one price.

Cold cash makes an excellent hot weather comfort.

Shoes may come and shoes may go, but men kick at forever.

Diet and exercise will frequently improve a man's opinion of his neighbors.

People who fish for compliments do not need long lines—they will get their best bites in shallow water.

Summer has arrived.

How did you like Saturday's variation in the ball field?

The villa at the railroad crossing is quite snappy with its new machine.

Our river is rapidly assuming its summer tinge and thickening up to usual summer consistency. This may one trial its water for home brew? It should make a notable variation.

This week has been the hottest of the summer. Opening last Saturday, there was no break in the weather up to yesterday, each day being warmer and more oppressive than its predecessor.

Our neighbor, Medford, is engaged in street cleaning (not tarring). It seems that down there they do not cover their oil, but wait until passing autos carry it off, provided they can get away without skidding into a hole or a boulder.

It seems very probable that the women will not take part in the presidential campaign. No less than three organizations have legal suits under way on the nineteenth amendment, namely, the Constitutional League of New York, the Maryland League for State Defense, and the National Anti-Suffrage Association; so that even should a thirty-sixth state ratify the amendment, its outcome is exceedingly doubtful. Anti-suffrage organizations are now questioning the work of "squirreling" the people's money on such an uncertainty.

A highly esteemed friend has asked us whether we intended to "knock" Superintendent of Streets Clark last week by our reference to the opinion of our neighbors. We did not. Anyone who views the streets of our neighboring towns should note immediately that residents outside cannot but envy us. It is always evident when the border line is crossed. Winchester has better streets than any adjoining town or city. We know of no one to exceed the credit to other than Superintendent Clarke.

THE LONG ARM OF THE LAW

Never was the efficiency of the "long arm of the law" more fully shown than in the events of the last few weeks. Herman L. Barney, gun man, and auto thief, serving a sentence of from 15 to 20 years in State Prison for killing Parolman Heister at Chelsea in February, 1919, and who escaped from State Prison early on the morning of May 24, surrendered to District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts and Inspector Edward P. O'Halloran of the Newton police, after thirty-six days of wandering about the country. As the coils of the law were tightening around him, Barney saw the hopelessness of his situation and surrendered.

On the afternoon of June 4, Walter E. Fagan, alias Finnegan, and many other aliases, got away from the East Cambridge jail by swinging from the roof with a hand-made rope. District Attorney Tufts at once took up his trail and sent Detective Michael J. Barrett, who is attached to the district attorney's office, on to New York. On Friday evening, July 2, Fagan was arrested in his room in New York. He, too, is back in prison.

Last Fall, a burglar named Kadra, with many aliases, was arrested in Cambridge after a chase through the streets. He jumped his bail in Cambridge and a month ago repeated the stunt in Fall River. He is now being held at Hartford, Conn., and the police of several states are after him. District Attorney Tufts holds an indictment against him and, if possible, will bring him back for trial.

District Attorney Tufts recently received word from Tampa, Fla., that a wife deserter who fled to Florida from this state had been arrested there and was being held. Arrangements are being made to prosecute the man.

WHAT'S A BATTERY SEPARATOR?

Separators are a very essential part of modern storage battery, according to J. H. Campbell of John H. Bates & Son, U.S. Service Station representative for this section, during a discussion on batteries in his office yesterday.

"Separators," he asserted, "are to prevent the positive and negative plates from coming into contact and thus creating injurious short-circuits. A separator is not merely a piece of wood sized and shaped to fit the narrow spaces between the plates. It is a specially shaped piece of a special kind of wood, which is not required for work in a battery until after it has gone through several processes and received special treatment."

"Separators are cut from seasoned native wood, following which they are subjected to a careful chemical treatment to remove any elements which might ruin the battery. They are of sufficient thickness to insure rapid diffusion of the electrolyte through the pores. Before use the separators are kept under water in special treating tanks in the U.S. Service Station."

"Perforated rubber separators are used in batteries other than those of the starter type. We have found, however, that perforated rubber separators in starting service reduce the starting capacity of the batteries at least a third. If a better all round material for separators than properly selected and treated wood is ever discovered, you may be sure you will see it in U.S. batteries."

RONZIO—GARIBINI

Miss Ellen Garibini, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Garibini of 10 Winter street, was married at St. Mary's church on Sunday afternoon to Mr. Peter Ronzio of Somerville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Ronzio. The ceremony was at four o'clock and was performed by Rev. Fr. Francis E. Rogers of St. Mary's.

The couple were attended by Miss Mary DeAngelis of Stoughton, bridesmaid, and Mr. Charles DeAngelis of Millis was best man. The bride wore a wedding dress of white satin with train, trimmed with shell pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid's dress was of pink satin and she carried pink roses.

A reception followed the wedding at the home of the bride's parents, the newly married couple being assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Garibini and Mr. and Mrs. Ronzio. The rooms were decorated for the occasion with white roses and pink. There was a large attendance from Winchester and many surrounding places, and the couple were generously remembered by their many friends with a quantity of beautiful gifts. They will make their home in Somerville.

WOBURN CARMEN PROTEST LAY-OFF

William J. Murphy, president of the Woburn Carmen's Union, protested yesterday against the announced intention of the Bay State trustees to reduce the number of cars operating about Woburn. This action will throw 35 or 40 men out of employment.

The districts to be affected are: Between Woburn and Winthrop square, Medford; between Woburn and North Woburn, and between Woburn and Billerica. Under the new schedule cars will be run on the half-hour instead of the quarter-hour basis. A feature of the new plan is that Woburn cars will be run only to Winthrop square, Medford, instead of to Sullivan square, as at present, forcing a change of cars at Medford to the Elevated.

The changes are to become effective July 22, and also on that date a one-man car will be operated between Woburn and North Woburn.

In his protest Murphy said: "The Bay State Company issues financial statements of a deficit in the Chelsea division, but does not tell the public here that the Woburn division is one of the best paying of the whole service. No excuse exists for cutting the service in this city. The road is hardly able to handle the traffic that now pours into Woburn from Billerica and points north."

Blind Potters.

The new "lighthouse" at Sykes, where the famous potteries of the French government are situated, is expected to prove one of the most useful methods of re-educating the blind soldiers. Making pottery is one of the occupations in which the blind may become adept, and although the Sevres lighthouse has been in existence only a short while, eight blinded men have already been graduated from the modeling class into the government shops. The French government has appointed some blind to the committee on the grounds of the Sevres potteries, at which it is about to build a training school for blind potters, who will be graduated from there to other factories.

IMPORTANT MESSAGE FOR REPUBLICAN WOMEN

The local Women's Republican Committee wishes very much to get in touch with every woman of Republican faith in Winchester. Will you help the cause by sending your name, address and telephone number to the chairman, or any member of the Committee just as promptly as possible? Committee—Mrs. W. L. Palmer, chairman; Mrs. Herbert T. Bond, Mrs. H. C. Bennett, Mrs. Geo. E. Willey, Mrs. Alonzo F. Woodside, Mrs. Maurice Brown, Mrs. Marcus B. May, Miss Mary Lyons, Mrs. Geo. Seelye.

Occasionally a woman sees the light even if her husband doesn't. If you are the Republican wife of a Democratic husband tell it to the Republican Women's Committee. See names elsewhere in the Star.

And still we hear of a few intelligent Republican women who have neglected to place their names on the register at the Town Hall! The only woman Town Clerk in the state, Miss Stinson, is always on the job and ready to show you every kindly courtesy. Hours: every day except Saturday, 8 to 12 a. m., and 1 to 5 p. m.

SENATOR HARDING'S MESSAGE TO WOMEN

Warren G. Harding, Republican candidate for president said in his address in Boston, May 14: "I never speak of suffrage as an issue, because that is settled. Women are going to vote, and I do not want ever to be disappointed that I voted for suffrage. When we make a constitutional change that doubles the voting citizenship of this republic, it becomes a very serious duty on the part of American womanhood which accepts the privilege of voting in this republic, and there will never be a greater calamity to the United States than that which can come from failure to step into active participation in politics. Now the privilege is ours. Politics is the science of government, and American politics ought to be just as clean as are the activities of church or school, and if it is not, you women must come in and help us to make it clean."

WHERE THE ELEPHANTS COME FROM

"Papa, where do the elephants come from?"

The answer to this question that Anyboy is apt to propound to Anyfather when spring brings the virus to town is answered in a National Geographic Society bulletin as follows:

Showmen prefer the Indian elephant to the African on the score of disposition, but there is no more loving mother than the African for young. It is quite common to see her lunging through the Rhodesian jungle followed by three or four babies, many six and three years old, while a fourth is on the way; the gestation period is two years.

African, of course, is the hunter's favorite, and there the elephant is more apt to be shot than captured and tamed. Of the endless variety of game, the pursuit of the elephant is deemed the most dangerous. In British territory a license costs $125 to shoot four of the beasts. Two hunters start out with a retinue of hundreds of natives, who closely scan the ground for "spoor" (trails), and when it is apparent that a herd is near the excitement becomes intense. A huge bull of about four tons with a grand pair of tusks is sighted. One shot in exactly the right spot just back of the shoulder will bring him down. Although the most short-sighted animal in the world, he charges in fury if the hunter has been unlucky, and in a few brief moments the valiant crowd has fled in terror. If a lucky shot, the hunter has three or four hundred dollars worth of ivory, and the rest of the herd of hungry savages devours the carcass, and all that cannot be eaten at the time is carried back to the village of huts, to enjoy the hearts for rather the stomachs of the women and children.

Elephant hunting in Burma and in India takes different forms. In India great, long, V-shaped stockades are built, the arms of which are sometimes a mile long. The elephants are driven into the large opening, realizing that they are walking into a trap. They are gradually driven down toward the apex of the V, where they are forced through a gate into a big pen.

In Burma, instead of a great, V-shaped pen of powerful posts planted in the ground, there are two converging rows of lights fastened in trees. The hunting is done at night. As the elephants are maneuvered into the broad opening between the outer ends of the rows of lights another row is thrown across the opening, and the elephants repeat farther down into the V, getting just as far away from the lights as possible. Then another row is thrown across the opening, and this in turn is succeeded by other lines, the elephants constantly retreating from the lights and timidly finding themselves at the apex, with the choice of entering the small stockade or breaking through the cordon of lights. The former seems the lesser of the two evils to the majority of them.

Once inside the stockade two trained elephants draw up alongside the least to be captured, one on each side, and hold him between them until a man loops a big chain around his foot and anchors him safely to a tree. There is a terrible struggle by the wild elephant to get free once more, and this often lasts for hours. But even an elephant tamed some hours he cannot burst, and finally becomes reconciled to them.

Once the animal is tamed without a trace to put for days, becoming famished and weak. Next it is taught that no effort it can put forth can circumvent the will of its trainer. Often the latter fastens a log chain about its neck and lurches in time elephant at the other end. Sometimes the natives resist with such unquenchable determination that their necks are broken in the struggle. Others are so adamant in their spirit of resistance that they fight for freedom to the bitter end, and never yield to training.

But as soon as one yields it is treated gently, and it finds out that the way to elephantine happiness lies in accepting the keeper's will. In about a month it settles down patiently to the duty of being a good, trustworthy beast of burden."

TELLS OF FLIGHT FROM TORONTO

Lts. Fogg and Thompson Made 523 Miles in Six Hours.

Lieut. Bob Fogg, formerly of this town, who thrilled the Fourth of July throng at Concord, N. H., with his daring stunts, flew his plane from Toronto to Concord, a distance of 523 miles, in just five hours and 51 minutes. He had as a passenger Willis D. Thompson, who was a naval aviator during the war. The following "log" is an interesting account of the flight:

"Left the Leaside Aviation Field at 10:42, July 31. Circled over the city of Toronto for 10 minutes getting altitude at 2500 feet. Left the city and headed along the shore of Lake Ontario. The air is smooth. Machine is climbing well. Visibility is pretty good, with the haze at 1500 feet. We are traveling in company with Dinty Moore, who is taking a plane to an aviation field at Baltimore. We expect to fly with him as far as Gettysburg, N. Y.

"At 11:45 the motor went dead and we were forced to land in a small field near an encampment of Canadian Royal Drycours. On looking for the trouble we found that the breaker box on the magneto had fallen off, apparently due to vibration adjustment. As the breaker box had been damaged we were forced to telephone the aviation field at Toronto and have another one brought us. This was done and at 3:50 we started on our trip again. Air is very hazy. Flying at 3000 feet we reached Hamilton at the extreme western end of the lake. At this altitude we can safely get across the end of the lake, and headed directly for Niagara Falls. At 4:48 we were over Niagara Falls at a height of 3000 feet. There was a thunder storm a mile or two from us on our right with very vivid lightning. We landed at 5 o'clock at the Curtis Aerodrome in Buffalo, N. Y., where we filled the machine with gasoline and oil and put it in the hangar for the night.

Sunday, July 11th.

"Rose at 5:30 a. m. Took out the plane and flew back to Niagara Falls to pay the customs duty which we had overlooked on the trip down. Returned to the Curtis Field at Buffalo where we replenished our stock of gasoline to the last gallon and left for the long trip to Concord. Left Buffalo at 9:08. Air is quite hazy and the wind almost directly behind us, blowing hard and helping us along very much. The visibility is very good.

"At 9:31 we are over Batavia. We have done 41 miles in 23 minutes. The trip promises to be a very fast one. At 9:52 Rochester lies due north of us and Genesee lies directly to the South. Lake Ontario is just visible in a light haze.

"At 10:05 we passed Canandaigua. We are following the upper ends of a series of lakes. At 10:15 we are due north of Geneva. We are following a canal which is not shown on our map. So far we are doing a little better than 100 miles an hour. At 10:32 we are due north of Albany. At 10:43 we arrived over Syracuse. At 10:50 we landed at a flight aerodrome two and one-half miles east of Town to be identified by an hangar with a white stripe on the roof. We found nobody present at the field, but fortunately located a barrel of high test aviation gasoline, so while Lieut. Fogg was filling the tanks with this gasoline I started out to find the owner. Eventually I located him by telephone, told him what we were doing and he very hospitably told us to help ourselves to whatever we needed and send him a check when we reached our destination.

"The whole duration of our stay in Syracuse was only 45 minutes, which is a strong argument in favor of prepared landing fields equipped with gasoline and supplies.

"At 11:39 we left Syracuse and headed towards Albany, keeping over the New York Central railroad which runs a four-track line directly between the two cities.

"No notes on this part of the trip, as I had the controls until 12:45 when we arrived over Amsterdam at 1:02. Circled, looking for a landing field. There is no prepared landing field along the Hudson river and we were forced to cross the Hudson river and landed in a field of hay belonging to a farmer by the name of Van Buren.

102 Miles An Hour.

"From Syracuse to Albany we averaged 102 miles per hour, due to the strong west wind, which greatly increased our normal speed of 75 miles an hour. At Albany a friendly garage man brought us 15 gallons of gasoline in his car, and a big box of ham sandwiches. Left Albany at 2:35. Followed the Hudson river up to Troy, a matter of only six or eight miles, and then turned our nose directly Northwest towards Concord. From here we have no marks on the ground to follow and as we are not equipped with a compass we had considerable doubt in our minds as to how accurate we shall hit Concord.

"At 3 o'clock we arrived over Bennington, which we can distinguish by the Bennington Monument. The mountains ahead of us seemed to be pretty high and we are constantly climbing to get altitude enough to pass over them safely. We have nearly 6000 feet. The tops of the mountains are covered with clouds. At 3:55 we run into the clouds and as we lost all sense of direction we were forced to come down to 5000 feet to check up our course.

"At 3:17 we crossed the Connecticut river at Bellows Falls, having taken 17 minutes to cross the State of Vermont. Just beyond Bellows Falls I could see at a distance three tiny yellow specks which could be nothing else than the bluffs of the Merrimack river here at Concord.

"At 3:45 we could see the city of Concord, with Manchester and Nashua clearly visible below us and Franklin on the North. Arrived over the city at 3:58 (Canadian time) and landed at 4:07 on the Camp Grounds."

Mr. Vaughan, Farmer, Tells How He Lost All His Prize Seed Corn.

"Some time ago sent away for some pedigreed seed corn. Put it in a gunny sack and hung it on a rope suspended from roof. Rats got it all—how beats me, but they did because I got 5 dead whoppers in the morning after trying RAT-SNAP! Three sizes, 25¢, 50¢, $1.00. Sold and guaranteed by Central Hardware Co., Allen's Pharmacy and Richardson's Market.

The Home Garden

GARDEN SPECIALIST

Middlesex County Bureau of Agriculture
WALHAM

Go Get the Lice

We must control the lice or they will "can" our vegetables for us. A previous story told the lice situation, but gardeners have not watched their gardens carefully, and the result now is that the gardens in all too many cases are being eaten up by these little aphids or lice. It is very difficult to hit these insects with spray material when the foliage starts curling. One should spray the under surface of the foliage with a fine mist of meeting sulphate and soap, just as soon as the lice first make their appearance. If this has not been done yet, it should be done now upon many of the vegetables. Lice will be found on melishes, turnips, cucumbers, radishes, parsnips, lettuce, and most of the other vegetables. Parsnips seem to be most heavily infested this year.

Those gardeners who have a three-gallon tank would do well to have made an angle elbow for use on the end of their short extension rod, so that they can stand up straight and still spray upwards, thus reaching the under surface of the foliage. Soap should always be added to Black Leaf 40 when it is used alone. The usual suggestion is to use 1½ teaspoon of Black Leaf 40 and one cubic inch of soap to one gallon of water. The soap helps as a spreader and sticker for the material.

Watch Out for Two Diseases

Cucumbers and muskmelons sometimes have mysterious complaints and get the dying habit without any apparent cause. The two commonest of these ailments are "wilt" and "blowby mildew." The latter is the most destructive pest in the way of a plant disease that hits the cucumbers, as the members of the family are known. It is a fungus disease and Bordeaux mixture is the remedy. It is an excellent idea to be on the safe side and give the cukes and melons a good spraying with Bordeaux as soon as they start to run. It is much easier than attacking the disease after it appears.

The symptoms are angular spots on the leaves, which at first are not well defined, but later assume distinct form, the older leaves turning yellow and the small leaves at the ends of the vine going last. The underside of the leaves will show a faint, purplish covering on those spots. This pest often does not appear at all. Again it will raise havoc. It generally appears the latter half of the summer. It is a good plan to use a little preventative.

"Wilt," just as its name denotes, is a general droop of the foliage of the vine, which dies without any apparent good reason. An insect carries this spore, which causes the trouble by clogging the veins of the plant. Bordeaux with some arsenate in combination is the remedy for this trouble.

Leaf blight sometimes attacks muskmelons and makes short work of them. It appears in the shape of round spots which rapidly increase in size. Bordeaux spraying is the remedy.

Hot Weather Practices

Hot, rather dry weather has been with us for a few days. One of the first results to be seen from this type of weather in home gardens is the tendency for gardeners to go to using the water hose. Keeping the surface soil loosened up in good shape does more good than half an hour's sprinkling with the hose. If one's garden really needs water, soak it thoroughly as suggested in a previous story. The whole garden should be given a thorough cultivation at least once a week, better twice a week during this time of the year. One need not cultivate deeply but just enough to keep an inch or two of the surface soil loosened up. Such a practice conserves soil moisture and is the best method known of improving seed growth.

Rose Bugs Bad

The majority of the telephone calls to the county horticulturalist are upon the method of control of rose bugs or rose chafers. They seem to be unusually troublesome in many parts of Middlesex County this year. A lot of experimental work has been done looking toward an easy method of control, but nothing has been found to be entirely satisfactory. Self-boiled lime sulphur seems to be as effective as anything now known. This is made at the rate of one pound flour sulphur, one pound caustic lime to six gallons of water, or any proportion of this formula. The caustic lime is placed in a receptacle, sufficient lukewarm water added to start it slacking violently. As soon as it starts slacking the sulphur is added. The stirring process should continue until slacking stops. If at any time a cherry-colored or mahogany-colored liquid appears, cold water should be added to stop the slacking. As soon as the slacking is over, sufficient water is added to bring the total mixture up to six gallons. The mixture is now ready to apply to rose bushes, grape vines or any vegetable or fruit that the rose bug is troublesome on.

Why People Buy Rat-Snap in Preference to Rat Poison

11. RAT-SNAP absolutely kills rats and mice. 12. What it doesn't kill it scares away. 13. Rats killed with RAT-SNAP leave no smell, they dry up inside. 14. Made in packs, no mixing with other food. 15. Rats or mice won't touch it. These sizes, 25¢, 50¢, $1.00. Sold and guaranteed by Central Hardware Co., Allen's Pharmacy and Richardson's Market.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or roaring in your ears, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be removed and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Remedy acts through the blood on the mucous surface of the tube.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Remedy. Circulars free. All Druggists. F. J. CHERRY & CO., Toledo, O.

FINANCIALLY SPEAKING ON BASEBALL

This season we have here in Winchester what is conceded to be one of the best semi-pro teams in Massachusetts. This team is costing more money than any team we have had here in seasons past, and at the same time guarantees for visiting teams have increased, so that at this writing we are unable to get teams to play here unless we pay them a good guarantee.

In days past $10, $12 and $15 would go for a team, but now it is impossible to get a team here for less than $20, and good strong teams want $25 to $40 to play at Winchester. We have received from outside subscription $151.00, and at present there is about $55.00 in the treasury. This will not keep such a team as we have here very long in Winchester.

The team costs $50 a week for players, say $20 for guarantee, $6 for umpire, $2 for police, baseballs $5, and printing $2.50, making a total of

The people of this town are in the habit of seeing good baseball and will not stand for a poor team. This town is as well able to support a team as Marblehead and Woburn, where they have collected $1200 in one place and $500 in the other. I am not looking for any pay for myself for handling this team or furnishing baseball for the town, but I do think there should be enough men with sporting blood and public spirit to keep the team here for the season.

I can get $75 to $150 every Saturday to take Winchester away and play ball at other places. Now it seems to me if other cities and towns are willing to pay to see the Winchester Town team play them, citizens of this town ought to think well enough of it to help keep it here.

In conclusion, isn't there 50 men who will give $10 a piece, or 100 men who will send $5 to finance the team for the balance of the season? You can either send it to Mr. George T. Davidson, Park Avenue, or Edward McKenzie, P. O. Box 55. Please hurry your subscription so we may know where we stand.

Peace Ambassadors.

General Mangin possesses a vein of sardonic humor. When, in the autumn of 1916, he had helped to make in a few days the work for which the crown prince during eight months had sacrificed the flower of the Kaiser's army, at Verdun, Germany launched a peace offensive. Reviewing his men one day, Mangin eyed them over and remarked with a grim smile, "Ah, you're the sort of peace ambassadors the republic wants."

The Feast of the Assumption falling on Sunday, August 15th, will be celebrated this year by the Italian residents of Winchester on the preceding day, Saturday, August 14th. Funds have already been generously subscribed and more are being solicited by a committee headed by Mr. James V. Barbo as chairman, as the intention is to make this year's event the grandest ever.

The program will consist of a parade in the afternoon, and a band concert from 7:00 to 9:00 p. m., on Manchester Field, followed by an unusually fine display of fireworks. As the plans for the various events of the day are still a little more or less tentative it is impossible at this time to give in detail a complete program, but announcement will be made later in the Winchester Star.

Plans Lands on Street.

Thousands of spectators lined the curbs of a business thoroughfare in Oakland, Cal., some weeks ago as a result of the announcement that an airplane was to land and take off from the street. On schedule time the plane appeared overhead, glided down between the walls of the man-made canyon and touched the pavement. Skidding here on the slippery asphalt, the plane grazed a lamp-post, swerved to the curb and damaged its tail skid. The accident was trivial, but served as a warning to the authorities, who promptly forbade the take-off.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

HARDING SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE
A NEW KEYNOTERepublican Nominee at Notifica-

Problems Confronting Nation."HOLD HERITAGE AMERICAN NATIONALITY UNIMPAIRED"

Advocates Party Responsibility as Dis-

to League of Nations, Says We Do Not Mean to Shun a Single Responsibility of This Republic to World Civilization—Favors Protective Tariff, Merchant Marine, a Small Army, Woman Suffrage and National Budget.

Morton, O.—(Special.)—Warren G.
Harding was officially notified here of his nomination as the Republican candidate for the presidency. His speech of acceptance is, in part, as follows:

Chairman Lodge, members of Notification Committee, ladies and gentlemen: The message which you have formally conveyed brings to me a realization of responsibility which is not underestimated. It is a supreme task to interpret the covenant of a great political party, the activities of which are so woven into the history of this republic, and a very sacred and solemn undertaking to utter the faith and aspirations of the many millions who adhere to that party. The party platform has charted the way, yet, somehow, we have come to expect that interpretation which reveals the faith of nominees who must assume specific tasks.

Let me be understood clearly from the very beginning. I believe in party sponsorship to government. I believe

WARREN G.
HARDING

in party government as distinguished from personal government, individual, dictatorial, autocratic or what not.

No man is big enough to run this great republic. There never has been one. Such domination was never intended. Tranquility, stability, dependability—all are assured in party sponsorship, and we mean to renew the assurance which were rendered to the catalytic war.

Our first commitment is the restoration of representative popular government, under the constitution, through the agency of the Republican party.
Our vision includes more than a chief executive, we believe in a cabinet of highest capacity, equal to the responsibilities which our system contemplates, in whose councils the vice president, second official of the republic, shall be asked to participate. The same vision includes a cordial understanding and co-ordinated activities with a house of Congress, fresh from the people, voting the convictions which members bring from direct contact with the electorate, and cordial co-operation along with the restored functions of the senate, fit to be the greatest deliberative body of the world.

International Relationship.

It is not difficult, Chairman Lodge, to make ourselves clear on the question of international relationship. We Republicans of the senate, conscious of our solemn oaths and mindful of our constitutional obligations, when we saw the structure of a world super-government taking visionary form, joined in a howling warning of our devotion to this republic. If the torch of constitutionalism had not been dimmed, the delayed justice of the world and the tragedy of disappointment and Europe's misunderstanding of America easily might have been avoided. The Republicans of the senate batted the barrier of independent American enclaves and influence, which it was proposed to exchange for an obscure and unequal place in the merged government of the world. Our party means to hold the heritage of American nationality unimpaired and unsundered.

SUCCESSFUL TOURNAMENT

Open Golf Meet at Country Club Won by Lowery of Woodland.

The three open tournament at the Winchester Country Club last week proved to be the most successful event of its kind the club has yet staged, the largest field in its history, together with exceptionally fine weather conditions, combining to contribute to the satisfaction of all. Edward E.
Lowery of the Woodland Golf Club,
State junior champion, was the winner, taking the finals from H. B. Wood of Winchester 6 and 5 without the loss of a hole.

Lowery played some especially fine golf in the morning, Friday. Out in 37, he was but 1 up on Hoxie, who was sticking home some rather lengthy putts to keep the match in. But from the turn it was all Lowery. One of his efforts was a 2 at the 11th, where his tee shot was but six feet from the pin. Hoxie had driven to within a foot or so of the ninth hole for a duce of his own.

Wood got into the final bracket at the expense of his clubmate, Bart Stephenson, the match going to the final green. Stephenson got away to a bad start, visiting the woods frequently from the tees and otherwise misbehaving and failing to take advantage of preferred openings. He was 3 down at the eighth. Then he dropped a rather lengthy putt for a winning 2 at the ninth, and seemed to get new life with it, for after a half in 5 at the 12th, he dropped a good putt for a winning 3 at the 11th and negotiated a classy and winning 4 at the 12th to square the match.

Both holed ticklish putts to halve
the 13th in 5, and they had the usual 3s at the 14th. Bart shut his eyes on his "drive" to the 15th, caught it in

WOMAN APPOINTED FOURTH
ASSISTANT

District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts of Middlesex County has appointed as his fourth assistant, an office recently created by the Massachusetts Legislature to take care of the increasing criminal business in the county, Mrs.
M. Frances Brady of Watertown. Mrs.
Brady was born in Concord and has been a life-long resident of Middlesex County. She was admitted to the bar in 1913, and has been engaged in the practice of law since that time. Since 1913 the Superior Criminal Court has had to handle the hasty cases, of which there are a large number each year. There are also an ever-increasing number of non-support cases, and there are many cases where children are abused. District Attorney Tufts has long felt that a woman to whom girls and women who are in trouble could tell their story without embarrassment would be an aid to the public service; hence the appointment of Mrs. Brady, who is exceptionally well qualified for the work involved.

FIRE YESTERDAY FORENOON

A hot fire in a hen coop backing up to the railroad tracks at 4 Summer street called out the fire department yesterday forenoon shortly after nine.
The blaze evidently started from a locomotive spark and was first noticed by the crew of the Woburn shifter, the engineer sounding the fire signal. Officer Kelley, on his way home, saw the fire at about the same time and pulled in box 33.

The coop was one of a string along the railroad embankment and was owned by Carmine Tofuri. It made a good fire, but was quickly extinguished when the firemen got a hose on it. Two hens were roasted, and Mr. Tofuri will have some work in his fine garden doctored damaged plants.

FORMER SELECTMAN GOES ON OVERSEERS OF THE POOR

Former Selectman Patrick Noonan of Canal street was appointed a member of the Board of Overseers of the Poor at the joint meeting of that body and the Selectmen Monday night. He fills the vacancy on the Board created by the resignation of Town Clerk Mabel E. Stinson.

ALICE BURNHAM

Alice Burnham, the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A.
Burnham of 33 Everett Avenue, died yesterday afternoon after an illness of some weeks. The funeral services will be held at the residence on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The burial will be in Pine Grove Cemetery, Lynn.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Changes in School Organization

The School Committee, at its meeting on Monday, July 19, passed the following votes:

Voted: to transfer grades three and four from the Highland School to the Gifford School, to transfer grades three and four from the Mystic School to the Gifford School, and to transfer grades one and two from the Gifford School to the Highland and Mystic Schools.

Voted: that for grades one and two the dividing line between the Highland and Mystic Schools shall be Mt.
Pleasant street, pupils on Mt. Pleasant street attending the Highland School.

The purpose of this vote is to secure a much better adjustment of grades in the buildings named, and thereby to insure a substantial improvement in the work of the schools.
There are in this group of schools eight rooms—two at the Highland, two at the Mystic, and four at the Gifford. Under the former arrangement, it was necessary to have two grades in six of these rooms. Under the new arrangements, there will be one grade in each room throughout.

Obvious educational advantages to the children led the committee to take its action after it had carefully considered all the elements involved. The chief objection, and, in fact, the only objection, to the change, was that some pupils will have to walk farther to school than they did under the former arrangement. The distance any will have to walk will not be excessive.

The advantage of having one grade in each room is unquestioned. To secure better teaching conditions by means of better grading is the reason that stands behind the modern tendency toward larger school units.

The greater part of school work is done by group teaching, and the more unlike the members of the group of pupils are in ability, the easier it is for the teacher to do good work.
On the other hand, the greater the difference of ability there is among the pupils under the same teacher, the larger the number of groups she must divide them into, and the less time she can give each group. When a teacher has two grades in a room, there is often so much difference in the ability of pupils in the same grade that she feels it necessary to have from four to six different groups, with correspondingly less time given to each group. The good effect of the new arrangement will be felt immediately in the first grade, and will continue throughout the five grades involved.

Appointment of New Teachers
Mr. James P. King of Penobscot has been appointed teacher of science and athletic coach in the High School.
Mr. King is a graduate of the University of Maine, 1911, and has also taken work in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He acted as assistant in the Engineering Depart-

the Grow Rubber Co. of Boston. Arlington was supposed to play here, but I suppose the heatings Lexington and Woburn gave them, together with the one they would get here, did not look any too good to the manager, so he let me get out all my posters, advertising in Boston papers, etc., and then waited until 6 o'clock Wednesday night before letting me know the game was off. Three days' cancellation of a game is about as small a piece of business as I ever had to contend with. Generally a manager that knows anything about baseball will give you a week or ten days' notice of cancellation, which is all right.
Then you can go out and get a team very easily. But luck seemed to favor me in this case, and I was able to get the pick of three good teams. I took on the Grow Company team, as it has a fine record so far, winning the only five games played, and the final game last Saturday was enough to give them a standing among the strong teams. They won Saturday from Brookline Post A. L. 2 to 1, and this team is considered one of the high-class semi-pro teams of Greater Boston. The manager promises me a first-class game, and said not to be surprised if he beat us. Well, that is what we want—some one who thinks he can beat us.

There should be a good crowd on hand, as the town has been without good baseball for two weeks; and if the crowd roots as hard for victory as they did at Lynn and Medford, the team will not lack encouragement. Get a good seat early, and watch us go.
Howard Woodcock will umpire.

Mr. and Mrs. James Boyle of 20
Tremont street, are the parents of a son, born Saturday.

AUTO WITH ELEVEN RIT POLE
AT WOBURN SUNDAY

Early Sunday morning a Cadillac limousine carrying eleven men and traveling at express-train speed sideswiped a telegraph pole on Main street, Woburn, near Fowle street, and then crashed into the brick building of the Woburn Machine Co.

Of the eleven men six were injured and taken to the hospital, the other five escaping. One of the men, Leo McCarthy, is still on the dangerous list at the hospital. He has a fractured skull, broken jaw and broken leg. Another man had a finger cut off and the remainder suffered bad cuts and bruises. The driver was not injured. All of the men were from Charlestown.

The entire party was placed under arrest, and the facts developed that Russell Mahler, the driver of the car, had appropriated it without the knowledge of the owner, Sidney Stevens of Brookline. He was sentenced to one year in the House of Correction Monday, and if McCarthy's injuries prove fatal he will be charged with manslaughter.

The car is said to have been traveling 70 miles an hour. The party had previously been to Pinehurst Park and were on their way out from a trip to Boston. They were all charged with intoxication, and a gallon of Italian wine was found in the car after the smash.

As the car passed through Winchester, police officers heard the men singing, and when the car turned from the Parkway into Main street the brakes were applied so hard that they screamed loudly. Woburn officers tried to stop the car just before the crash, but the party went by them like a shot, with hoots and jeers.

When making the turn the driver swung too far to the right. The car caught the curb, mounted it just ahead of the pole, which caught the body just back of the front seat, and then turned into the brick building, one spring knocking a brick out of the wall.

The car was a mess of junk. The front end escaped without much apparent damage, but the back was smashed to bits. The top was ripped off, the entire body reduced to splinters, and the rear wheels turned at right angles. The noise of the crash and the cries of the men were heard in Winchester, and Officer Shea, doing duty on the west side, telephoned the local station for the police car, believing there had been a bad accident on the Woburn Parkway.

to Canobie Lake, August 4, on the occasion of the annual outing. Older people will be accommodated by the busses and the younger crowd by trucks. It is planned to leave Winchester on the 18-mile drive at 9:30
a. m., the return trip to be started at 5:30 p. m. The fare for the round trip has been set at $1 by truck and $1.25 be $1.50 a plate, and a good dinner is promised.

There will be the usual attractions of boating, bathing, bowling, dancing and other amusements, and the base-

tain the professional men's team, himself taking the box. J. Chris. Sul-

He is keeping his battery secret. The ball game promises to be a big feature, making up in solid fun all it may lack in professional skill.

The usual list of games will be run off, including dashes, tug of war, potato races, three-legged races, etc. In addition, the committee will establish the weight of the heaviest person attending, the prettiest girl, the handsomest baby, and other interesting statistics.

The tickets will be on sale next week, and the committee urge that all who intend to make the outing purchase their tickets before August 1, that adequate provision may be made for transportation and dinner. Tickets will be on sale at the Hersey Hardware Co., Richardson's Market,
Piccolo Bros. fruit store.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

According to a Winchester working man a lowering of food prices that would make it easier for men and women to put on fat would automatically check more radicalism than all the anti-socialist orators that can be mustered. It is lean, hungry, Caesar-like chaps who read Marx and plan mischief when their soldier companions play pitch and chuckle over the things of Mutt and Jeff. Keep the fat men functioning normally, and adding to their weight and number, and you won't have anything to fear from the much diseased unrest of wage earners or wrong-headedness of a few spare "intellectuals." Something, nevertheless, supplementing this good work of stepping down emotionality may be accomplished by the program which the New York Times eloquently maps out for the speakers of 1,300 trade and commercial organizations.

"They will attack the strongholds of ignorance and fanaticism everywhere. Fundamental economies are to be talked from thousands of platforms. The American system of government is to be explained and illustrated in such a way as to silence defamers. The trail of the demagogue is to be followed and his lies are to be nailed. Enemies of the government will be confronted and exposed wherever encountered. No raised will be allowed to escape from public condemnation and contempt."

No Winchesterite who rides in a train or in a motor car can have overlooked the billboard nuisance—for nuisance it is. In addition to its unsightliness, it is also often a source of danger. There seems to be a devilish ingenuity on the part of the artists who make these things when it comes to pulling billboards where they will obstruct the view of drivers approaching dangerous curves or sometimes even railroad crossings. No one in his senses can deny the fact of disfigurement of the landscape, and it is even doubtful if there is advertising value in them to compensate a tithe of their cost. If you will conduct an honest self-examination, and will ask yourself whether you ever consciously bought any article because you saw it advertised on a wayside billboard, you may get light on that score. Billboards have got to go. They have been grossly overdone, not only to the public irritation but to the public danger.

A Winchester gentleman calls The Spectator's attention to the fact that the recent centenary of Herbert Spencer came and went with fewer observances, at least in this country, than would have been expected a quarter of a century ago. Just as the Winchester gentleman points out, it isn't that thinking people have forgotten this scientific man's claim to gratitude for the educational work in which he cooperated, in a general way, with Darwin, Wallace, Huxley, Tyndall and Mill. He isn't read, however, as he was in the late 19th century. He was just too vulnerable in every line of thought which he took up, too dogmatic and cocksure, to escape the criticism of later writers who are indebted to him for many, or most, of the ideas from which they start. His sociology, strongly anti-socialistic, is out of favor with the young intellectuals who are trying to monopolize the megaphone in England today. His metaphysics does not jibe with the by the "theory of relativity," and his biology is held by many biologists to be strangled in its effort to interpret evolution as a sort of moral progression. The modern world, for its ban or bane, has rather passed Spencer by. Yet his "Study of Sociology," remains a book which no one who wants to understand the vane against the mazy socialism of these days can afford not to be familiar with. Unlike Mill, Spencer did not suffer from the paresis of old-age radicalism.

WHITNEY WON FROM CHAPMAN

In a well-played game on Manchester Field Monday night the Whitney Machine Co. defeated the Chapman Mfg. Co., 10 to 6. Bill Humphrey held the Chapman's safe all through the game, and what was scored was due to errors. Sylvester caught a good game and threw to base in good shape. The playing of Moynihan at short and Bill Rogers at second were features of the game, while Bill McKee played high-grade ball in the outfield. The Whitney team is now looking for games with any of the Industrial League teams.

Miss Eleanor P. Gould of Auburn, Mass., has been appointed teacher of commercial subjects and French in the High School. Miss Gould has taught in Walpole and Cohasset since 1917. She will teach bookkeeping in the High School and French in the Wadleigh School.

New Entrance Age

The School Committee has voted to raise the entrance age to the first grade from five years and six months to five years and nine months, and the entrance age to the kindergarten from four years and six months to four years and nine months. The new rule reads:

"Children may be admitted to the kindergarten at the beginning of the school year in September, if they are four years and nine months old before October first, and they may be admitted at the beginning of the second half of the school year if they are four years and nine months old before the first day of March. Children may be admitted to the first grade in September, who will be four years and nine months of age before October 1. Children may be admitted to the first grade upon the approval of the Superintendent of Schools, if upon examination as to their mental age it is found to be equivalent to the chronological age required."

The purpose of this change is to increase the average maturity of pupils in the first grade. Our first-grade entrance age of five and one-half years is one of the lingering results of the nine-grade system, under which it was necessary to admit pupils to school at the age of five years in order to enable them to complete the nine-year course by the time they were 14 years old. Experience has proved that the normal elementary school period is from the ages six to fourteen, and that pupils can do their elementary school work during this period as well as they did formerly in the nine-year period. Under the new rule the birthday of a pupil entering the kindergarten in September should be prior to January 1, 1916, and for a pupil entering the first grade his birthday should come prior to January 1, 1915.

Winchester Hands Medford A. L. a Bad Beating

We paid Medford a visit Saturday, and gave the Medford A. L. Post a beating that they will remember for a while. I did not care much about playing this game, but what Mr. Wellington and his assistant, Mr. Macauley, didn't call me was a shame.
They told me we were afraid to play them and we didn't have half a team, and what Medford wouldn't do to Winchester, if we ever got together again, was not worth telling about.

Well, rather than disappoint Medford, and just to show that we are not afraid to play any team that wears a uniform and has a reputation, we went after them; and after the first inning, which, by the way, was the only chance the Medford crowd had to put over, we simply played with their team.

I thought that they would give us some sort of opposition, but it was merely a practice game for Winchester, as the score shows.

There was a large crowd on hand,
and over two-thirds came from Winchester, and I don't think I ever heard such rooting as our crowd did.
John Finn umpired the game, and I don't think I ever saw John give a worse exhibition of umpiring, and it did not take the Winchester crowd very long to tell him so. John is a good umpire, but Saturday surely was an off day.

The score:

NOTES

Six won and 2 lost for .750 per cent.
This is a good record for this time of the year.

I do not see how Medford is going to keep their team on the field. If Saturday's crowd was a big one, I don't think they back their team very well.

The manager offered an excuse for the beating the loss of Fraser on first base. Well, Ray McKeon can play that bag as well as Fraser ever could, and there is no choice in their hitting, as both are very poor at the bat.

Our friend, Mr. Dieter of Melrose, put up a good game at third, and got two nice hits off Davey's slow one.

Howard Fahey played short, and while he made a couple of nice plays, he does not appear the same Howard as of old.

Pat Crowe in right field is a nice player, and can surely sting that ball.
He got one hit as a gift from Finn on a slow rolling bunt down the first-base line. Davey made no attempt to field it, as it was surely foul.

Davidson pitched great ball after the first inning. He made no attempt to strike them out, merely tossing them up, and the Medford crowd popping them up for easy outs.

Christoforo, as usual, played a great game in all departments. He is now captain of the team, and deserves it, as there is no more eager man on the team for victory.

Lawrence played a smooth game at short, and reminds the fans of Sheridan, the way he fields a ball.

Graveson, in right field, comes here with a high-class reputation as a hitter and fielder. Well, he surely can cover ground, both in the field and on the bases.

Bradish is the hardest man on the team to pitch to. He very seldom goes after a bad ball. He reached first base every time in the Medford game, and three times at Lynn.

Davidson is going better every game, and will be in prime shape for the Woburn series, which starts August 7. The first game will be at Winchester. We have opened up the series two years running at Woburn, so the fans thought the proper thing to do would be to open here this year.

JUNE, 1920, MILK CHART

Published by the
WINCHESTER BOARD OF HEALTH

The bacteria count in this chart gives the number of bacteria found in one c. c. taken from the center of the sample after it had been well shaken. It should be remembered that another c. c. taken from the same sample might give a somewhat different count, but the difference would rarely, if ever, exceed ten per cent.

INDEPENDENTS WON

Saturday's baseball on Manchester Field was another match between two colored teams, the Intertown of Winchester and the Independents of West Medford. There was a high grade of baseball exhibited by both teams and the match was undecided right up to the last. The visitors pulled out by a score of 10-8, making three runs in their eighth and one in their ninth inning. The game was witnessed by a large gallery.

the whipping and gave it a ride between his Logans to a watery resting place for the ninth green. Wood's 5 was good enough to win. Two halves in 4 gave Wood a 1 up margin heading for home, and he made it 2 up and the match when Stephenson got too far to the right on his drive and failed to reach the green on his third.

Wood usually is straight down the middle, not brilliant, but as a rule as steady as a rock. Friday afternoon was an exception. He just could not get on good terms with his clubs.
Lowery was playing not quite as well as in the morning, but was out in 39, good enough to put him 4 up. The 39 included a 2 at the sixth. They halved the 10th and 11th in 4 and 3, respectively. Lowery retrieving the former by a long putt. Then Lowery took the next two in 4 and 7. Wood requiring a 7 at the 12th and a 9 at the long 13th.
That settled it.

The winners in the other divisions.
In order, were: L. B. Paton, Homestead; Robert Whitney, Lexington;
George W. Elkins, Winchester, and H.
W. Porter, Wollaston, the respective runners-up being Phil Hendricks, Winchester; P. Brown, Wellesley; R.
V. Cox, Telesco, and C. B. Abbott,
Winchester.

About 20 pairs took part in the open best ball competition. A. P.

Wade and H. E. Robinson of Meadow Brook won the grass prize with a 75, and F. W. Atwood and E. R. Boyd won the best net with 83-16-47. G.
G. Folin of Chestnut Hill and J. Dike of Bear Hill taking second honors with 73-10-48.

The winners of the beaten eight fights were: G. G. Folin, J. A. Farren, E. H. Learned, H. Boyer and R. E.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Most of the devil's work is done by idle people.

A little deflation now may prevent a blowout later on.

Only about a third of us are producers, and only about a third of the producers produce.

The stenographer nowadays worry more about her back hair than she does about her back work.

The many pleasure cars now-a-days and altogether too few freight.

It is noted that "Winchester has a need." In this connection we understand that one of our enterprising young men has undertaken to "supply that need." What the need is has not been divulged as yet, but as Winchester has pretty nearly everything it needs, every one is wondering why we need another need. We understand that the young man who has found the need needs more time to tell us what it is, but have patience; it is showing up larger in each issue of the STAR.

Many people are using Sandy Beach at Mystic Lake nightly for swimming. As there are no life guards at this place in the evening, it is seldom but what some of the expert older swimmers have occasion to pull out a boy or girl who has ventured beyond shallow water. This week Edward M. Brawley of Melford, son of Lieut. E. M. W. Brawley of the Park police, pulled out a seven-year-old Woburn child which fell off the raft, and later a young man by the name of Cummings, living in this town, rescued a child by the name of Patton, which had gone beyond its depth. Fortunately, there are always good swimmers at the beach every evening. The town instructors, the two Wallaces, brother and sister, are at the beach during the day.

The rise of water at Winter pond is a peculiar condition, and it would seem that the gentleman who is developing the northern section bordering the pond should have some redress from the damage done. So far as can be learned the waters of the pond have never been so high as at present. As a result the contractor has one house which he is unable to connect with the sewer and others with flooded cellars. Originally this pond flooded off at the east end back of Wildwood cemetery. The gradual construction of a dam filled the outlet and held the water confined, abundant from this spring raising the water a number of feet. It now appears that nothing can be done for the man who is building about the pond and developing the place. Natural waterways, etc., do not seem to be taken seriously. Will it be necessary to wait until the water rises high enough to flood all the houses in this section before action is taken? It looks so!

Driving an automobile at a speed reported as 70 miles an hour at three o'clock in the morning, admittedly under the influence of liquor, is hardly a safe proposition, no matter how well built the car is. The driver escaped with slight injuries, but five of the ten other men who were with him were badly injured. Such are the circumstances connected with the accident at Bowle street, Woburn, Sunday morning. The great wonder is that all of the eleven occupants were not killed when the driver failed to make the turn. The only cause for any satisfaction out of the affair is that the party chose 3 a. m. for the hour of pulling off the stunt. The crash and the cries of the injured men were heard by a Winchester police officer at Stratford road and Everett avenue, he telephoning the station and the police auto being sent out as far as the Woburn line searching for the accident. Sooner or later every driver learns just how much power the modern automobile contains, but some never learn to intelligently command it.

OUR BOYS IN SCHOOL

Editor of the Star:

More boys are leaving their studies for work than ever before. It has never been an easy matter to keep youths of average habits in the classroom. In them is the strong ambition to earn their own living, to be independent. High wages now offer another reason and one which is anything but easy to offset.

This is a time of high talk as well as high wages. The youth who was once glad to get a job as office boy at three dollars a week after graduation finds he is able to quit several years before that and get twelve dollars a week for carrying a water pail. The problems of persuading or enticing him to wait until he is better equipped by knowledge are puzzling. To set the foot down and say he must is bad, because once the determination to work has gained equally the upper hand nothing will force him to continue his schooling seriously.

There is very little room for patience with the boy whose parents are able to keep him in school but refuses the opportunity. The best that can be hoped for is that some day a philosopher will devise a method to show that what this world needs is a supply of men to work with their heads as well as their hands. That will be something of a triumph over nature.

Ernest Bertram Willard.

STEPS TO RECOVER JEWELRY

Under an alleged agreement where, by they were to have the right to wear a sapphire and diamond brooch and a diamond ring in consideration of redeeming them, till such time as she could offer the cost of redemption, Marie Duley of Boston has brought a bill in equity in the Suffolk superior court against Henry C. Miller and Mary H. Miller, both of Winchester.

Being in financial embarrassment in 1915, she says she pledged the brooch to R. Simpson and the ring to J. Simpson as security for loans.

Redeemed for $930

Before doing so she says she entered into an agreement with the Millers as above. On May 19, 1917, she says they redeemed the jewelry from the Simpsons for a total of $930; that since then she has tendered them $930 and they have refused to accept it or to turn over the jewelry to her.

She declares the jewels are heirlooms left to her husband and are otherwise unique and have great sentimental value. She asks the court to order the defendants to turn them over to her on her tender of $930. The case will come up July 28 on question of issuing a temporary injunction.

LAWRENCE C. ABERCROMBIE MARRIED

Announcement was made Monday of the marriage on Thursday, July 15, at Los Angeles, California, of Lawrence C. Abercrombie, formerly of this town, and Miss Josephine Browne Mel'here. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Browne.

The couple met at Fort McArthur, San Diego, during the war. Miss Mel'here was sent to Fort McArthur as a song leader and Mr. Abercrombie was stationed there at the submarine base. The bride is prominent as a vocalist, having studied music in Italy. Mr. Abercrombie resided here for many years and is well known. At present he is in business in Los Angeles.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Members of the nominating committee, together with the general officers, of the Middlesex County Woman's Christian Temperance Union, were entertained last week at the home of the county president, Mrs. Grace M. Hamilton, on Vine street. Mrs. Augusta R. Brigham, of Malden, former secretary of the county Union, who has spent the past year on the Pacific Coast, was also present, and told many interesting incidents of conditions in that section, where the women have long voted, and so helped to manage civic matters.

Signatures for an initiative petition on the question of prize fighting in Massachusetts are being circulated by members of the local Union, as throughout the State. As voters' names only are desired, and as yet women are not legally voters, the task of securing the necessary 15,000 names is not as easy as it might be, but if each community does its share it should be possible to secure the referendum at the November election.

Members of the Union going into the city these days should not forget to take with them some of the flowers now so much in evidence in their gardens. At 150 Beacon street every Saturday the Flower Mission is at work, and always there are eager recipients for the flowers one may carry.

It is now evident that the "wets" are to make a great fight to secure their "proper" representation in Congress, and it behooves every one who believes in prohibition according to the present interpretation to stand firmly for the enforcement of the Volstead Act. A "wet" Congress can undo much of the good already accomplished, and every voter should make sure how the nominees stand.

and served by the winners of the bread-making contests that the Boys' contested in this spring.The girls who made the very most respective counties were awarded, as prizes, a week's entertainment at the Agricultural College, whether they will repair, Friday, July 23, along with seven other club winners from each county. Their stay in Amherst will be one round of picnics, motor trips, and festive occasions, when, with their fellow prize-winners—to wit, the boys who raised the best pigs and the most corn and the biggest potatoes, and the girls who proved themselves the best home-makers in their counties—they will climb Mount Sugarloaf, stage an amateur play, and visit the college orchard and farm under the guidance of the heads of the college agricultural departments.Aside from their pleasure expeditions, the girls who won the bread-making prizes have promised to give a demonstration of their own methods for making biscuits and strawberry jam. The demonstration will be for all farmers and all farmers' wives and families who are interested, and after the preparation of the tidbits, every-will present a dramatic exhibit for the education of the older folk in what the boys' and girls' clubs are doing, in which they will carry through a typical Achievement Day program, as it is held in a rural school.The boys' and girls' camps are not the only feature of the agricultural extension work of the state that will be held in connection with Farmers'

Week, from July 26 to 30, in Amherst.
The state grants holds its annual field day on the agricultural college campus, July 27, and the American Farm Bureau Federation, the New England Tobacco Growers' Association, and the state associations of vegetable growers, of fruit growers, of swine breeders and of sheep men will co-operate with the Department of Agriculture and the college in the week's program.
Conspicuous in the farm features will be inspections of a typical farm rotation now being worked out on the college farm. Visiting farmers will have an opportunity, too, to judge of the relish of pigs for clover, because the college pigs, fifty of them, are already "out to clover" and if sheared grunts mean anything, they like it.The women's side of farm life, and of suburban and city life, too, is being treated abundantly on the program of this year's Farmers' Week. The convenient kitchen, as the Home Demonstration Department calls it, has a whole day of attention, when comfortable enphours will be planned, shown and talked about, both the old, stationary kind and the modern built-in ones. Remodeled farm kitchens has been a special study at the college for the past year, and is a subject thehome economics specialists are full of enthusiasm for. Home management, flower arrangement, and nutrition clinics vie with preserving demonstrations and clothing efficiency discussions for the attention of the women.Preparations are being made at the Agricultural College for the entertainment of all those farmers and their families who can take a summer vacation and a vocational training course at the same time, and all in one week.To Get up in the morning tired

HARDING'S SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE

The world will not misanthropy. We do not mean to shun a single responsibility of this republic to world civilization. There is no hate in the American heart. We have no envy, no suspicion, no aversion for any people in the world. We hold to our rights, and mean to defend, aye, we mean to sustain the rights of this nation and our citizens alike, everywhere under the shining sun. Yet there is the onward of amity and sympathy and fraternity in every resolution. There is a genuine aspiration in every American breast for a tranquil friendship with all the world.

One may readily sense the conscience of our American. I am sure I understand the purpose of the dominant group of the senate. We were not seeking to defend a world aspiration. We were resolved to safeguard America. We were resolved, then, even as we are today, and will be tomorrow, to preserve this free and independent republic.

In the call of the conscience of America is peace, peace that closes the gaping wound of world war, and silences the impassioned voices of international envy and distrust. Healing this call and knowing as I do the disposition of the Congress, I promise you formal and effective peace so quickly as a Republican Congress can pass its declaration for a Republican executive to sign.

It is better to be the free and disinterested agent of international justice and advancing civilization, with the paramount of conscience, than be shackled by a written compact which surrenders our freedom of action and gives to a military alliance the right to proclaim America's duty to the world. No surrender of rights to a world council or its military alliance, no assumed mandatory however appealing, ever shall summon the sons of this republic to war. Their supreme sacrifice shall only be asked for America and its call of honor. There is a sacrifice in that right we will not delegate.

Leaving America Independent.

Disposed as we are, the way is very simple. Let the failure attending assumption, obstinacy, impetuosity and delay be recognized, and let us find the big, practical, unselfish way to do our part, neither retreating because of additional war hesitations through fear, but ready to serve ourselves, humanity and God. With a sincere avowal as the constitution contemplates, I would hopelessly approach the nations of Europe and of the earth, proposing that understanding which makes us a willing participant in the consecration of nations to a new relationship, to commit the moral forces of the world, America included, to peace and international justice, still leaving America free, independent and self-reliant, but offering friendship to all the world.

It is fully to close our eyes to outstanding facts. Humanity is restless, much of the world is in revolution, the agents of discord and destruction have wrought their tragedy in pathetic Russia, have lighted their torches among other peoples, and hope to see America as a part of the great Red configuration. Ours is the temple of liberty under the law, and it is ours to call the Sons of Opportunity to its defense. America must not only save herself, but ours must be the appealing voice to subvert the world.

It must be understood that toll alone makes for accomplishment and advancement, and righteous possession is the reward of toll, and its incentive. There is no progress except in the stimulus of competition.

The chief trouble today is that the world war wrought the destruction of healthy competition, left our storehouses empty, and there is a minimum production when our need is maximum. Maximum, not minimum, is the call of America. It isn't a new story, because war never fails to leave depleted storehouses and always hampers the efficiency of production. War also establishes its higher standards for wages, and they abide. I wish the higher wage to abide, on one explicit condition—that the wage-earner will give full return for the wage received.

Production, More Production.

I want, somehow, to appeal to the sons and daughters of the republic to every producer, to job hand and brain in production, more production, honest production, patriotic production, because patriotic production is no less a defense of our best civilization than that of armed force. Producing is a crime of commission, under-production is a crime of omission. We must work our most and best, else the destructive tendency will come. The menacing tendency of the present day is not discernible wholly to the uninitiated and favored conditions caused by the war. The manifest weakness in popular government lies in the temptation to appeal to grouped citizenship for political advantage.

It would be the blindness of folly to ignore the activities in our own country which are aimed to destroy our economic system, and to commit us to the colossal tragedy which has destroyed all freedom and made Russia impotent. This movement is not to be halted in threatened liberties. We must not bridge the freedom of speech, the freedom of press, or the freedom of assembly, because there is no cause for repression. These liberties are as sacred as the freedom of religious belief, as inviolable as the rights of life and the pursuit of happiness. We do hold to the right to crush sedition, to stifle a menacing conspiracy for law to stamp out a peril to the safety of the republic or its people, when emergency calls, because security and the majority of the law are the first essentials of liberty. He who threatens destruction of the government by force or flouts his contempt for lawful authority, ceases to be a loyal citizen and forfeits his rights to the freedom of the republic.

No party is indifferent to the welfare of the wage-earner. To us his good fortune is of deepest concern, and we seek to make that good fortune permanent. We do not oppose but approve collective bargaining, because that is an outstanding right, but we are matterly insistent that its exercise must not destroy the equally sacred right of the individual, in his necessary pursuit of livelihood. Any American has the right to quit his employment, so has every American the right to seek employment. The group must not endanger the individual, and we must discourage groups preying upon one another, and none shall be allowed to forget that the government's obligations are alike to all the people.

No Strike Against Government.

We are so confident that much of the present-day insubordination and inefficiency of transportation are due to the withholding hand of government operation that we emphasize anew our opposition to government ownership, we want to expedite the reparation and make sure the mistake is not repeated.

A state of inadequate transportation facilities, mainly chargeable to the failure of governmental experiment, is losing millions to agriculture. It is hindering industry, it is increasing the American people with a fuel shortage little less than a peril. It emphasizes the present-day problem and augurs that spirit of encouragement and assistance which commits all America to relieve such an emergency.

Gross expansion of currency and credit have depreciated the dollar just as expansion and inflation have depreciated the value of the world. We inflated in haste, we must deflate in deliberation. We debased the dollar in reckless finance, we must restore in honesty.

In all sincerity we grouse the prevention of unreasonable profits, we challenge profiteering with all the moral force and the legal powers of government and people, but it is fair, aye, it is timely, to give reminder that law is not the sole corrective of our economic ills.

Drive Against Extravagance.

Let us call to all the people for thrift and economy, for frugal and sufficient if need be, for a nation-wide drive against extravagance and luxury, to a recommended simplicity of living, to that prudent and normal plan of life which is the health of the republic.

New conditions, which attend amazing growth and extraordinary industrial development, call for a new and forward-looking program. The American farmer had a hundred and twenty millions to feed in the huge market, and heard the cry of the world for food and answered it, though he faced an appalling task and handicaps never encountered before.

Contemplating the defenselessness of the individual farmer to meet the organized buyers of his products and the distributors of the things the farmer buys, I hold that farmers should not only be permitted but encouraged to join in co-operative association to reap the just measure of reward merited by their arduous toil.

Our platform is an earnest pledge of renewed concern for this most essential and elemental industry and in both appreciation and interest we pledge effective expression in law and practice. We will halt that co-operation which again will make profitable and desirable the ownership and operation of comparatively small farms intensively cultivated, and which will facilitate the caring for the products of farm and orchard without the lamentable waste under present conditions.

America would look with anxiety on the discouragement of farming activity either through the government's neglect or its paralysis by socialistic practices. A Republican administration will be committed to renewed regard for agriculture, and seek the participation of farmers in curing the ills justly complained of, and aim to place the American farm where it ought to be—highly ranked in American activities and fully sharing the highest good fortunes of American life.

Increasingly associated with this subject are the policies of irrigation and reclamation, so essential to agricultural expansion, and the continued development of the great and wonderful West. It is our purpose to continue and enlarge federal aid, not in sectional partiality, but for the good of all America.

I believe the budget system will effect a necessary, helpful reformation, and reveal business methods to government business.

I believe federal departments should be made more business-like and send back to productive effort thousands of federal employees, who are either duplicating work or not essential at all.

I believe in the protective tariff policy and know we will be calling for its saving Americanism again.

I believe in a great merchant marine. I would have this republic the leading maritime nation of the world.

I believe in a navy ample to protect it, and able to assure us dependable defense.

I believe in a small army, but the best in the world, with a mindfulness for preparedness which will avoid the unmitigated cost of our previous neglect.

I believe in our entrance in trade abroad, which the government should aid in expanding, both in revealing markets and speeding cargoes.

I believe in establishing standards for immigration, which are concerned with the future citizenship of the republic, not with mere man-power in industry.

I believe that every man who does the work of American citizenship and walks in the light of American opportunity, must become American in heart and soul.

I believe in holding fast to every forward step in unshackling child la-

SALIENT POINTS OF SENATOR HARDING'S SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE

"I pledge fidelity to our country and to God, and accept the nomination of the Republican party for the presidency of the United States."

"The human element comes first, and I want the employers in industry to understand the aspirations, the convictions, the yearnings of millions of American wage earners."

"The Constitution contemplates no class and recognizes no group. It broadly includes all the people, with specific recognition for none."

"We approve collective bargaining."

"Gross expansion of currency and credits has depreciated the dollar. We will attempt intelligent and courageous deflation."

"When competition—natural, fair, impelling competition—is suppressed, whether by law, compact or conspiracy, we halt the march of progress, silence the voice of aspiration and paralyze the will for achievement."

"I promise you formal and effective peace as quickly as a Republican Congress can pass its declaration for a Republican executive to sign."

"I can hear the call of conscience an insistent voice for largely reduced armaments throughout the world."

"Our vision includes more than a chief executive. We believe in a cabinet of highest capacity, equal to the responsibilities which our system contemplates, in whose councils the vice-president, second official of the Republic, shall be asked to participate."

boring and elevating conditions of woman's employment.

I believe the federal government should stamp out lynching and remove that stain from the fair name of America.

I believe the federal government should give its effective aid in solving the problem of ample and becoming housing of its citizenship.

I believe this government should make its Liberty and Victory bonds worth all that its patriotic citizens paid in purchasing them.

Taxes Must Be Reduced.

I believe the tax burdens imposed for the war emergency must be revised to the needs of peace, and in the interest of equity in distribution of the burden.

I believe the negro citizens of America should be guaranteed the enjoyment of all their rights, that they have earned the full measure of citizenship bestowed, that their sacrifices in blood on the battlefields of the republic have entitled them to all of freedom and opportunity, all of sympathy and aid that the American spirit of fairness and justice demands.

I believe there is an easy and open path to righteous relationship with Mexico. It has seemed to me that our undeveloped, uncertain and unfair policy has made us a culpable party to the governmental misfortune in that land. Our relations ought to be both friendly and sympathetic; we would like to accede to a stable government there, and offer a neighborly hand in pointing the way to greater progress.

I believe in law enforcement. If elected I mean to be a constitutional president, and it is impossible to ignore the constitution, unthinkable to evade the law, when our every commitment is to orderly government.

The four million defenders on land and sea were worthy of the best traditions of a people never warlike in peace and never pacifist in war. They commanded our pride, they have our gratitude, which must have genuine expression. It is not only a duty, it is a privilege to see that the sacrifices made shall be requited, and that those still suffering from casualties and disabilities shall be abundantly aided and restored to the highest capabilities of citizenship and its enjoyment.

Advocate Woman Suffrage.

The womanhood of America, always its glory, its inspiration and the potent, uplifting force in its social and spiritual development, is about to be enfranchised. In so far as congress can go, the fact is already accomplished. By party edict, by my recorded vote, by personal conviction I am committed to this measure of justice. It is my earnest hope, my sincere desire that the one needed state vote be quickly recorded in the affirmation of the right of equal suffrage and that the vote of every citizen shall be cast and counted in the approaching election.

And to the great number of noble women who have opposed in coalition this tremendous change in the present relation of the sexes as applied to government, I venture to plead that they will accept the full responsibility of enlarged citizenship and give to the best in the republic their suffrage and support.

Ours is not only a fortunate people but a very common-sensical people, with vision high but their feet on the earth, with belief in themselves and faith in God. Whether enemies threaten from without or menaces arise from within, there is some indefinable voice saying, "Have confidence in the republic! America will go on!"

Catarhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local application, at this season, reach the dormant portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarhal deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running ear or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarhal which is an inflamed condition of the mucous air tube. Hall's Catarhal Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarhal Medicine. Refuse free. All Druggists. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Center and is the
GARDEN SPECIALIST

Middlesex County Bureau of Agriculture
WALTHAM

Keep Working the Garden.

The backyard home garden is not unlike the farm in that there is always a lot of work to be done on it. If it is not planting, it is weeding, if it is not weeding, it is cultivating or spraying. There is always something that can be done to advantage.

Many home gardeners are training their tomatoes in a stake. All side shoots should be kept cut off. One should go over his vines at least once a week. Not more than two stems should be permitted to live and bear fruit.

Many home gardeners have harvested their first crop of peas. The pea vines should be pulled and placed in a compost pile for rotting or if one is going to spade the land they may be spaded under. Cabbage and cauliflower plants should be placed where the peas were. If one does not run for these crops it is still not too late to plant winter beets and a late variety of string beans or Victoria spinach.

When one picks New Zealand spinach, and it is ready for picking in many gardens, the shoots should be nipped off at the end of the stems, also all side shoots which have become long enough. Good young shoots develop in the axils of the leaves which may be harvested in a few days. This process will give one a continual supply of greens.

Many vegetables should be thinned which have not yet been thinned. Swiss chard should not be permitted to stand closer than 12 inches between the plants. In harvesting Swiss chard the outer leaves are picked, other shoots grow from the stem of the plant to take the place of those that have been harvested.

Squash vines are commencing to start running. It is well to cover two or three joints of each runner with earth so that they will take root. This in order to protect the vine in case the squash vine borer gets into the main stem. A root system will develop at each joint and will save the vine and mature the crop after the main stem is cut off.

Keep Up the Spraying.

Keep up the spraying for blight on potatoes, tomatoes, cucumbers, muskmelon and celery. Continue to use Black Leaf 40 with soap against lice on all the different plants on which they make their appearance. Use arsenate of lead for any eating insect.

McINTOSH TREES HIT BY SCAB

The famous McIntosh apple crop produced annually in this section is being severely injured by ravages of apple scab. Recent inspection by county agent A. R. Jenks of the Middlesex County Bureau of Agriculture, Waltham, seems to show that about two-thirds of the prospective yield is already infested so badly that the apples will be salable only for culinary purposes. This means thousands of dollars loss to the growers, as McIntosh is rapidly becoming their principal variety. This popular fruit is bound to be scarce and high in price to the consumer this fall.

The trouble is caused by a fungus which attacks both leaves and fruit. Until recent years, growers have controlled it by spraying with a weak lime sulphur fungicide. The scab is much worse this year than usual because of the vast amount of rainy weather during the spring and early summer. This made conditions ideal for the spread of the spores.

The County Bureau hopes to have been instrumental in saving part of the crop through a series of meetings last spring at which it was recommended that the growers substitute home made Bordeaux mixture for the usual lime sulphur. Orchardists who tried the material report no damage as yet and are entirely satisfied with their results.

The present prevalent condition is very discouraging to most of the growers, however. Apple scab makes its first attack upon the soft skinned varieties. Undoubtedly the experience which growers are going through this year may tend to stop their further planting of McIntosh in this section until the Bureau finds something which will definitely control the pest.

WINCHESTER GRANGE

The next regular meeting of Winchester Grange will be held in Lyceum Hall, Tuesday evening, July 27. The program for the lecturer's hour will take the form of a stunt party. Everybody must contribute to the entertainment, either recite, tell a story, sing a song, play a musical instrument, dance or pay a 25-cent fine. The mystery package will also be in evidence. In order to redeem our pledge for the prize for the union picnic, Aug. 14, at Pine Bank Park, Melrose.

A letter has been received from W. M. George B. Lister of Middlesex, Essex Pomona Grange, reporting a meeting of the Housing Committee for the visiting members at the National Grange session, to be held in Boston in November. The committee wishes to ascertain how many subordinate granges can house the visitors; that is, open their homes to them for one night, probably. Also, what the charges will be. A report will be expected at the meeting Tuesday evening.

The sixth degree will be conferred at Faneuil Hall, Boston, October 26, which will present an opportunity for all who have not taken the sixth to get it in time for the seventh, or National Grange degree.

We shall look for a good attendance on Tuesday evening, as there is much business to be attended to.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Battiger left this week for the Thousand Islands, making the trip by auto. They will make their headquarters at Alexandria Bay, stopping at the Westminster Park Hotel.

WARREN F. FOSTER

Former Town Clerk and Prominent Mason Dead

Warren F. Foster passed away at the Winchester Hospital on Tuesday noon, after a long illness. He had been at the institution for eleven weeks, having suffered from gangrene of the foot. Some weeks ago his foot and leg were amputated, and at that time it was not thought possible that he would survive the operation. For a time his condition was very low, but subsequently he rallied and grew stronger. Recently the disease developed in his other foot, and his condition had been very low. He was 76 years of age.

Warren F. Foster was one of the best-known older residents of the town. Born in Bridgewater, N. H., he came to Winchester about 1865, when he was 21 years old. He had previously conducted a small grocery store in Boston, and he opened a store here, running it for many years. After giving up his own store he still continued in the grocery business, working for B. F. Holbrook and later for Holbrook & Adams. His store was located at the corner of the square, by the railroad tracks.

He was twice married, first in 1867 to Miss Maria A. Kimball of this town, who died in 1884, and then to Miss Sarah A. Weeks of Damariscotta, Me., in 1885. She died in 1898. During his residence here he was Town Clerk from 1873 to 1892. He was a member of William Parkman Lodge of Mason.

During his connection with William Parkman Lodge he served as Tyler for a continuous period of 26 years, and during that period was only absent from his post on two occasions, when ill with pneumonia.

He was also a member of Waterford Lodge, I. O. O. F., and of Aberjona Council, Royal Arcanum.

He leaves one brother, Charles H. S. Foster of Boston, and one sister, Mrs. Robert F. Farland of Melrose Highlands.

The funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at the Methodist Episcopal Church, Rev. S. Winchester Adrians officiating. There was a large attendance, delegates from William Parkman Lodge, A. F. & A. M., Waterford Lodge, I. O. O. F., and Aberjona Council, Royal Arcanum, attending, together with many other friends.

The pallbearers were Messrs. James Johnston, George H. Hamilton, C. H. Forsaith, Clyde W. Bell, and William H. Nicholson. There was a beautiful display of flowers from friends and various organizations with which the deceased was affiliated. During the day the flags about town and on the public buildings were flown at half mast.

The burial was in the Foster lot in Wildwood Cemetery.

AUTOISTS FINED

In the Woburn court, Tuesday, Alexis Mallent of Lowell, William H. Winters of Somerville, Tyler A. Stevens of Wilmington, Lewis D. Sawyer of Everett and Lewis Becker of Somerville, all charged with not giving proper auto-horn signals in Winchester, were each fined $5. Harry I. Gerson of Lowell, for not slowing down when ordered, and for not giving proper signals in Winchester, was fined $10.

Most of the drivers were arrested at the corner of Main and Lake streets.

BOARD OF TRADE OUTING

Plans Practically Complete for Day
for Day at Canobie Lake

Plans are practically completed by the various committees in charge of the Board of Trade Outing to be held on Wednesday, August 4, at Canobie Lake, N. H. According to a recent decision, the hour of leaving Winchester has been set about a little, it being thought that the first hour set would make the arrival at the lake too late to allow the fullest enjoyment of the day. Accordingly, the trucks and auto buses will leave the centre at 8.30 a. m., the private cars being scheduled to leave at 9.

As large a number of auto buses as are obtainable have been engaged, the demand for bus seats exceeding the trucks. It is anticipated that the majority of the young people will, however, choose the trucks.

The dinner is scheduled for 12.30 sharp. Tickets for the dinner are $1.50, and may be obtained with the bus and truck tickets at either the Hersey Hardware Co., Richardson's Market or Piccolo Bros. It is the desire of the committee that the party dine as a body so far as possible. The following menu has been accepted by the committee:

Olives	Radishes
Roast Lamb	Mashed Potatoes
Parker House Rolls	Lehster Salad
Vanilla Ice Cream	Cake
Colloffe

The tickets for the outing should be taken as soon as possible, the committee turning in its list August 1. It will, therefore, be hard for late comers to arrange for transportation and the dinner, and all who intend to go should secure their tickets at once.

The committee on sports have made up the final list of events, headed by the baseball match between the Professional Men and the Traders. As previously announced, Dr. Richard W. Sheehy will captain the Professional team, and J. Chris. Sullivan will head the Traders. Both captains are now busy getting their teams in shape. BASEBALL TOMORROW

Tomorrow we will try and play the game postponed from last Saturday, due to the downpour which came at the wrong time. The players on both teams did not care very much about playing the game after the storm, as they were all wet, and after waiting 45 minutes we called it off, and will go at it again tomorrow with the same team facing Winchester.

This team, by the way, has come from a particularly unknown team six weeks ago, to be rated as one of the strong semi-pro teams of Greater Boston. Last Sunday they beat the All-Dorchester team composed of the pick of players in that section. The Dorchester team had won 13 out of 14 games, which goes to show we will have our hands full to beat the Grow Tire Co.

The following players and positions they fill compose the team: Linberg, lf. (not Carl), from Worcester N. E. League; Libby, cf., Northwestern League; Gavignon, rf., English H. High; Gorham lf., Columbia, S. C.; Parsons, 2b, English High; Rockwood, ss., of Roxbury All Stars; Clarke, 3b, Tech; McCullar, c., A. R. F.; Duntley, c., Latin School; Haigh, p., Canadian League; Thayer, p., formerly N. E. League.

This looks to me like a formidable and fast line-up, and we will have to be at our best to beat them. Davidson will pitch, and any tickets bought last Saturday are good for this game.

REPUBLICAN WOMEN, AT-TENTION!

The following paragraph from a recent editorial in the Boston Post contains more truth than politics. Better keep it in mind.

"This is July. Many things may happen before November. Out of the clear sky may come a national or international event that will at once take precedence over all other things and upon which the parties will have to line up on opposite sides. Such contingencies have come in former years. They may come this year."

When the time comes to "line up" on vital issues, new or old, do you wish to sit in self-imposed shackles, unable to lift your hand to place in the ballot box your vote for what you believe to be right—when that vote is needed to make right win? And all because you failed to register?

Unless ye register ye shall not vote! Be ready. Register now!

MISS JULIA V. IRELAND

Miss Julia V. Ireland, cousin of the Misses Elder, died Tuesday evening, July 27, at the Cottage Hospital, 12 Pleasant avenue, Somerville. She had been paralyzed since the autumn of 1915. She had a second shock in 1918, and last Sunday this was followed by a third, which paralyzed the throat. She died unconscious, but twenty-four hours earlier had recognized her cousins, who were with her.

Miss Ireland was born June 19, 1844, the daughter of Daniel Ireland and Anna Wyckoff Ireland. She was a first cousin of Mrs. Samuel J. Elder, and as a girl lived in the home of Cornelius W. Thomas, Mrs. Elder's father, at Hastings-on-the-Hudson. She came to Boston in 1893. For several years during the latter part of her life she made her home with the family of Samuel J. Elder. She was a devoted member of the Winchester Baptist Church.

The funeral was held at the home of the Misses Elder at two o'clock, Thursday afternoon. The Rev. Arthur L. Winn, a member of the Baptist Church here, conducted the services. Interment was at Wildwood cemetery.

Mrs. Albert K. Hegel played, very beautifully, on the "cello," "The Lament," by Gabriel Marie, as the preliminary music. During the service she played "Abide with Me" and "Jerusalem, the Golden." She was accompanied on the piano by her sister, Mrs. George H. Lochman.

MRS. J. ALBERT WILSON

Winchester people will be shocked to learn of the unexpected death on Wednesday morning of Mrs. J. Albert Wilson of Somerville, wife of the organist of the Church of the Epiphany. Mrs. Wilson died at the Carney Hospital, where she was operated upon for appendicitis last Friday. The operation appeared successful until shortly before her death, when complications set in.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson were married on June 28. Mrs. Wilson was before her marriage Miss Mae A. Young, and was the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred M. Young of Somerville. The couple had just returned from their honeymoon.

The funeral services will be held from the residence, 52 Braintree avenue, Somerville, this Friday afternoon, at 2 o'clock. The burial will be at Camden, Me.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

On Saturday, July 24, a surprise party was given Mrs. Harriet F. Barnes of this town on the occasion of her eightieth birthday. The party was held at the home of her son, Mr. Franklin E. Barnes. More than a hundred friends were invited, but owing to the vacation season some were unable to be present. From four to nine p. m. groups of friends were continually dropping in, and Mrs. Barnes was the happy recipient of many congratulations and gifts. Refreshments were served, and numerous gifts of flowers brightened the rooms.

Mrs. Barnes was the object of many compliments on her youthful spirits and vigor, her mind being apparently as active as ever, and her interest in current events quite as keen. Many of her friends who were unable to be present remembered her with gifts and letters, and a most enjoyable time was experienced by all. The brief presence of her great-granddaughter, four months old, also of a brother, Mr. George W. Flint, 84 years old, from Erie, Pa., lent added interest to the occasion.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

Governor Calvin Coolidge told the graduates of Holy Cross College at Worcester: "There is coming a time, not far distant, when it will be as much of a disgrace for those who are affluent to remain in idleness as it is today for those men who go about the streets in our cities and towns in idleness and begging." In other words, there is no more excuse for the idle rich than there is for the idle poor. No man has a right to cease attempting to be useful to his fellow men unless he is mentally or physically incapacitated. We are out of balance, and no amount of speech-making or congressional investigations will remedy the situation. There is but one remedy, and that remedy is more work and less indulgence in idle pleasure. The remedy must be applied as inexorably as the laws of nature. There is no escape from the law of God, "Six days shalt thou labor," and until the consuming public is sufficiently hungry to see the real cause there will be no relief. The Scripture has nothing to say about how many hours one shall be employed on the six days when labor is advocated. Modern thought has translated the injunction into meaning that only a reasonable amount of work shall be done, the eight-hour day being an example. But underlying even the eight-hour day, and deep as the foundations of the federal government itself is the principle that those who work shall survive and those who refuse to work shall perish. A nation that will not work is on its way toward national decay.

That American social economist who says that "it is impossible for a family of five in the United States to maintain itself even in decent poverty, under existing conditions, for a penny less than $2500 a year," ought to come to Winchester, where the thing is being done in a great many cases.

A reader of the STAR has brought to our attention that Massachusetts is far behind other states in the adornment and beautifying of her schoolhouses. In this connection the following very interesting article, clipped from an exchange, will be read with interest by Winchesterites:

"Denver, Colo., and Evanston, Ill., launched a wonderful movement many years ago in making the schoolhouses beautiful. The surrounding grounds were made into handsome lawns, with flower beds, and the walls of the schoolhouses hung with pictures, the windows draped, and the atmosphere of a beautiful home created. Throughout the country this example has been followed to a good extent, and is being more adapted as communities see the excellent results obtained.

"It is the best investment a community or nation can make. During this formative period of childhood the character of the future is founded. Whatever conditions of deprivation or lack of education parents may have had to contend with, the regeneration lies in the young citizens-to-be in our public schools. Patriotism, love of country and of race, even of regard for one's own comfort and stability of possession, can find no act that is equal in practical results than in contributing money and energy to this one accomplishment.

"It is a commercial proposition, for if the future citizens have correct and refined ideas and are properly informed of what this world contains, they will ever be customers for the best that is—a wonderfully profitable field for future sales! This is looking at the question from its lowest and most selfish standpoint, and it is to be regretted that in many cases and until we are born anew, this is the most powerful sentiment we can appeal to. Let us hope the education we are giving our coming citizens will impart a broader view.

"Meanwhile, one detail to study is that of letting light shine into the dark interiors from whence soon will come the voices that will rule. Make the small towns, villages, and farms as attractive as the big cities. Then the future of our great republic is safe."

One Winchester man is very much pained because of the high cost of haircuts. It is not to be expected that the present cost sets the figure for all time, but it is the natural thing that prices for trimming the thatch should be inflated at present, just as the price of everything else is. This will last until the recession comes—and then the scale will go backward perhaps, because men will be clamoring for work to do, instead of finding themselves impeded on hunched knees to do it. For the time being, everybody who can work is independent "as a hog on ice." The chances are all against the long endurance of that condition. Most of us now living will see the day when it is comparatively a simple operation to find a cheap loaf of bread and a somewhat harder one to get a job where-with to earn the cheapened loaf.

SOUSA'S BAND AT FENWAY PARK

After having served through the war as chief bandmaster at the Great Lakes Training Station, Lieut.-Commander John Philip Sousa has gathered his old and seasoned bandmen about him, and is about to set off on a tour of the country that will take him from the Atlantic to the Pacific. One of the first places he will visit is Boston, and on Sunday afternoon, August 8, he will give one concert only at Fenway Park. This place will undoubtedly not be large enough to accommodate the multitudes who will want to see Sousa and to hear his band.

The occasion will be one of special interest to members of the American Legion, for one of the leading selections on the program will be Sousa's own march, "Comrades of the Legion," which will then be played for the first time. His marching song, "Who's Who in Navy Blue," is also new, and it will be sung by Miss Marjorie Moody, a talented soprano whose home is in Swampscott, and who has achieved much popularity through her singing with Sousa's Band, and also in local concerts in and around Boston. Other pieces on the program will be "A Study in Rhythm," a transcription in which Sousa has ingeniously manipulated a group of classics. The corner soloist will be John J. Dolan, and there will be an xylophone solo, "Morning, Noon and Night," composed and played by George J. Carey, Sousa's suite, "Tales of a Traveler," will also be played.

The prices will range from 50 cents to $1.50. Seats will be on sale down town at Shuman's. Parking space will be provided for automobiles during the concert.

STANDS FOR REPRESENTATIVE GOVERNMENT

Points Out Dangers to Our Institutions Through Attempts to Create Class Distinctions—Must Be Larger Comprehension of Mutual Interdependence of Capital, Management and Labor, and Better Facilities for the Prompt Adjustment of Industrial Disputes.

Northampton, Mass. (Special)—Calvin Coolidge was officially notified here of his nomination as the Republican Candidate for the vice-presidency. His speech of acceptance was as follows:

To your now formal notification I respond with formal acceptance. Your presence tells me of a leader and a cause. A leader in WARREN G. to recognize merit, and in all things a stalwart American; the cause of our common country, as declared in the platform of the Republican Party, the defense of our institutions from every assault, the restoration of constitutional government, the maintenance of law and order, the relief of economic distress, the encouragement of industry and agriculture, the enforcement of humanitarian laws, the defense of the rights of our citizens everywhere, the rehabilitation of this nation in the estimation of all peoples, under an agreement, meeting our every duty, to preserve the peace of the world, always with unyielding Americanism, under such a leader, such a cause, I serve.

No one in public life can be oblivious to the organized efforts to undermine the faith of our people in their government, foment discord, aggravate industrial strife, stifle production, and ultimately stir up revolution. These efforts are a great public menace, not through danger of success but through the great amount of harm they can do if ignored. The first duty of the government is to repress them, punishing willful violations of law, turning the full light of publicity on all abuses of the right of assembly and of free speech, and it is the first duty of the public and press to expose false doctrines and answer seditious arguments. American institutions can stand discussion and criticism, only if those who know bear for them the testimony of the truth. Such repression and such testimony should be forthcoming, that the uninformed may come to a full realization that these seditious efforts are not for their welfare, but for their complete economic and political destruction.

The Danger of Autocracy
In a free people the most reactionary experience, short of revolution, is war. In order to recognize and conduct military operations a reversion to an autocratic method of government is absolutely necessary. In our own case it was no less autocratic because voluntarily established by the people. It was a wise and successful process for the purpose of winning the victory of freedom, to which all else was a secondary consideration. But voluntary autocracy was established temporarily that freedom might be established permanently. Men submitted their persons and their property to the complete domination of the government that they might conquer an impending peril. This has always been fraught with the greatest dangers. It is along this path that the man on horseback, avarice for power finds many reasons for continuing arbitrary action after the cause for which it was granted has been removed. The government of the United States was not established for the continued prosecution of the present preparation of all its resources for war. It has been and intends to be a nation devoted to the arts of peace. Fundamentally considered its abiding purpose has been the recognition of the rights and the development of the individual. This great purpose has been accomplished through self government. To the individual has been left power and responsibility, the foundation for the rule of the people. In time of emergency these are surrendered to the government in return for providing the necessities of life, and national safety. But these are and must be temporary expedients. If we are to keep our form of government, and maintain the supreme purpose of Americans. The greatest need of the nation at the present time is to be reeducated from all the reactions of the war. The chief task that lies before us is to repress the people of their government and their property. We want to return to a thoroughly peace basis because that is the fundamental American basis. Unless the government and property of the nation are in the hands of the people, and there to stay as their permanent abiding place, self government ends and the hope of America goes down in ruins. This need is transcendent.

Demand for Constitutional Government

The government of the nation is in the hands of the people, when it is administered in accordance with the spirit of the Constitution which they have adopted and ratified, and which measures the powers they have granted to their public officers, in all its branches, where the functions and duties of the three coordinate branches, executive, legislative, judicial, are separate and distinct and neither one directly or indirectly exercises any of the functions of either of the others. Such a practice and such a government under the Constitution of the United States it is the purpose of our party to reestablish and maintain. All authority must be exercised by those to whom it is constitutionally entrusted, without dictation and with responsibility only to those who have bestowed it, the people.

The property of the nation is in the hands of the people when it is under their ownership and control. It is true that the control of a part of the property taken for war purposes has been returned, but there hangs over private enterprise still the menace of seizure, blighting in its effort, paralyzing in its result, to the public detriment. But it matters not whether property be taken by seizure, or through the process of taxation for extravagant and unnecessary expenditures, there should be an end to both operations. The reason is plain. Ultimately the control of the resources of the people is control of the people. Either the people must own the government or the government will own the people. To sustain a government of the people there must be maintained a property of the people. There can be no political independence without economic independence.

The Public Will Must Rule
Another source of the gravest public concern has been the reactionary tendency to substitute private will for the public will. Instead of inquiring what the law was and then rendering it full obedience, there has been a disposition on the part of some individuals and of groups to inquire whether they liked the law and if not, to disregard it, seek to override it, suspend it, and prevent its execution, sometimes by the pose of securing their own selfish ends. The observance of the law is the greatest solvent of social ills. Men speak of natural rights but I challenge any one to show where in nature any rights ever existed or were recognized until there was established for their declaration and protection a duly promulgated body of corresponding laws. The march of civilization has been ever under the protectingegis of the law. It is the strong defense of the weak, the ever present refuge of innocence, a mighty fortress of the righteous. One with the law is a majority. While the law is observed the progress of civilization will continue. When such observance ceases, chaos and the anarchy of desertion will come again. Liberty goes unsupported or relies in its efforts on the maintenance of order and the execution of the law.

There is yet another manifest disposition which has preyed on the weakness of the race from its infancy, demonstrated alike by the letter and the spirit of the Constitution and rampant to all that is American, the attempt to create class distinctions. In its full development this means the caste system, wherein such civilization as exists is rigidly set, and that disability is necessary for progress, and that recognition of equality which has been the aim and glory of our institutions, are destroyed and denied. Society in advance must be not a dead form but a living organism, plastic, melting progress. There are no classes as here. There are different occupations and different stations, but only there can be no class of employer and employed. All time Americans are working for each other, exchanging the results of the efforts of hand and brain wrought through the unassisted efforts of yesterday, which we call capital, all paying and being paid by each other, serving and being served. To do otherwise is to stand alienated and alien to our institutions. This means that government must look at the part in the light of the whole, that legislation must be directed not for private interest but for public welfare and that thereby alone will we have of our citizens and their greatest accomplishment and progress.

High Prices and Under Production

If the great landlord has devalued our political conditions it has caused an upheaval in our economic system.

The mounting prices of all sorts of commodities has put a real high on household articles on every home. Much of this is beyond the control of law, but the forces of the government can and must afford a considerable remedy.

The most obvious place to begin reformation is by eliminating the extravagance of the government itself. In this the Congress has made a commendable beginning, but although the Congress makes the appropriations, the departments make the expenditures, which are not under legislative but executive control. The extravagant standards level of recent years must be eliminated. This should show how the government can method of direct action for the public execution, sometimes by the pose of securing their own selfish ends. The observance of the law is the greatest solvent of social ills. Men speak of natural rights but I challenge any one to show where in nature any rights ever existed or were recognized until there was established for their declaration and protection a duly promulgated body of corresponding laws. A revision of taxation must be accompanied with a reduction of the private extravagance which the returns from luxury taxes reveal as surpassing all comprehension. Waving the moral effect the economic effect of such extravagance is to withdraw needed capital and labor from essen-

AMERICAN LEGION

Probably few of Winchester's citizens are aware of the fact that there are 35 or more wounded, sick, and disabled soldiers and marines at a convalescent hospital in Arlington. The days and weeks spent in an army hospital without a little pleasure and some entertainment now and then are very long and monotonous. The Winchester Post is planning an outing for these deserving boys, for which a few automobiles will be needed for an information. May we not depend upon the response and co-operation of some of our good citizens to assist in making this affair a complete success? Any one wishing to help the Post out by loaning an automobile is invited to

BASEBALL NOTES AND NEWS

6 won and 2 lost for .750. I wonder will we ever get started again.
We have been getting bad breaks in the weather this season.Tomorrow will see three new men in the line-up. Doble, a former American League player, will be in one of the outfield positions; Graveson, another experienced man, will be in right field, and Lawrence will fill one of the infield positions. These players will add strength to the club, and, with the Woburn team facing us one week from tomorrow, we will need it.Arlington went to Danvers Saturday, and one fan said "they ought to keep them there." They were beaten by a big score—19 to 2. This beating does not look so bad to the folks back home as the beating they would get from Winchester.Also, in one of the Boston papers this week was an article in which it stated that Arlington would play Medford Legion at Medford, Saturday, to decide the Mystic Valley championship. The article claimed we beat Medford twice and Arlington once, leaving us in a tie with Arlington for the lead. I was just wondering where Woburn came in. They beat Medford; also Arlington; and,
according to all dope, Arlington fur-reited all claim to championship when they cancelled the game with Winchester last Saturday. It is a case of dollars and cents with Arlington in those games. They are looking for everything in sight with the outside teams, but fail to come across in games played at Arlington. In one game there recently, $8 was taken in on the field. I offered them $50
if they beat us, and $35 if they lost, which was better than they received at Woburn, where they were badly beaten. So much for Arlington and its "sports."Now for Medford. We went down there, and they didn't have a Chin-aman's chance of beating us after the first inning. They claimed I used unsportsmanlike tactics in winning the game, by talking to their players.
If getting the other teams "gent" is not sportsmanship, I'll admit I am guilty, but I always thought talking to the other fellows was part of the game; but in all my experience in baseball I had to go to Medford to find out it isn't. Well, I want to say to Medford, if they did a little more talking they might win a few more games. If I thought Medford wanted to make the game a pink tea affair, I would have had our bats tied with some nice ribbons and had Davidson dish up confetti, and at that they probably would have lost.The Woburn series will start here at Winchester August 7, with a return game at Woburn August 14;
then two games Labor Day, and a fifth if necessary later in September.I am in touch with the Forbes team, and will probably get them here into this month. We intend to make a big day of it all round, with the greater part of the factory here to witness the game. We are going to show Mr. Forbes that he has a team representing his own town that can beat anything he has in his factory. They have a fine team there, and several of the players have been seen here before with other teams.I see by the papers that Mike King's Texas Co. has dropped the last two games played, the last one by an 8 to 0 score at Whitman.Also that St. Ambrose got an 8-to-3 licking at Lynn from the Comets.Beverly and B. F. Sturtevant's played a 10-to-10 tie. How would you like to see that kind of baseball at Winchester? These teams are supposed to be high-class clubs. Ray Somerville pitched for Beverly; Salem must have let him go.Davy Sherr played first base for the Walworth team at Woburn. He also must have got through at Salem.Woburn, by the way, had the best team of the season on the field Saturday. I hope McGowan keeps his team together for the Winchester games.
Then if they lose to Winchester there won't be any excuse about a poor team.Hevey will be back at short tomorrow, as his hand has healed enough so that he will be able to take throws there.The field was never in such good condition as on Saturday, and the visiting team wanted to know how we did it. I told the manager the town took care of this field, and had a force of men to look after it. The comment was, "Well, you ought to be glad to live in a town like Winchester."Well, after playing on some of the dumps and cow pastures we have visited, we are glad we live in Winchester. The field has never been put to so much use as at present. There is generally a game every night, and sometimes two. Davidson and Bradash form a battery for one of the teams, and Mack and Jack Hanlon form the other on the nights we practice. Lawrence, Christoforo, Hevey and some of the other players generally show up three or four nights aDo you protect your family by week, and get good work-outs.

There is also entirely too much damage being done on the field to the seats, stand, etc., by young boys who ought to know better. This damage is done after the instructor and his assistants leave the field. If a couple of these "fresh" kids are caught and made an example of, the rest of them will probably lay off the mischief for a while.Finally, in speaking of baseball, I want to mention the big game next Wednesday at Canobie Lake. Christy Sullivan will have charge of our team and I understand Dr. Sheehy will have the other one. I have been asked to do the umpiring, and, of course, will accept the honors and insults that go with that position. Christy has a battery under cover which he is going to spring on the unsuspecting professional men, but I understand that they have some clever talent themselves. It's going to be some game and some day.Would it be asking too much if I could get the loan of a large megaphone that some of the citizens may have, and are not using? We could use it at the ball game, and I also want it for the Trainers' Day outing next Wednesday at Canobie Lake.

THE QUESTION OF PROGRESS

Editor of the Star:

Most men are disposed to take progress for granted, almost as something that cannot be avoided, and yet
Mr. Bagehot, years ago, showed that it was wholly exceptional. As Dean Inge, of St. Paul's Cathedral, in his Romanesque lecture, recently delivered at Oxford, there has been in physical progress for many thousands of years.
Professor Sumner has proved that there is no progress in the fine arts, but only in the industrial arts. John Fiske held that man as a physical organism was complete, and that the earth would never see any being superior to man. It may be doubted whether there has been intellectual progress; certainly we have not surpassed the Greeks in art or literature or philosophy. Men still study Aristotle and Plato. Yet it was in the line of physical development that Fiske looked for future progress.The race has advanced morally and in the matter of social relations. This will be generally admitted, though Dr. Inge has his doubts."It was often forgotten that if progress meant the improvement of human nature itself the question to be asked was whether the modern civilized man behaved better in the same circumstances than his ancestor would have done. It seemed to be very doubtful whether when they were exposed to the same temptations, they were more human, or more sympathetic, or juster, or less brutal than the ancients."Yet the marvelous development of philanthropy must count for something in the way of proof of progress.
In spite of the great war, we are a kinder and more merciful people. Indeed, Dr. Inge inferentially admits this when he says that there is "no selection in favor of superior types,"
but that "civilization tended now, always, to a weeding out of the best."
through "the new practice of subsidizing the unsuccessful by taxes extorted from the industrious." This practice has certainly been carried far, and it may have unfortunate and debilitating results. But, after all, it grows out of the feeling that the weak must be helped and the unfortunate cared for. The dean, however, is no passi-THE industrial, greatly increasing the public distress and unrest. There has been profiteering, it should be punished because it is wrong. But it is idle to look to such action for relief. This class profits by scarcity, but they do not cause it.

As everyone knows now, the difficulty is caused by the scarcity of material, and abundance of money, and insufficient production. The government must reduce the amount of money as fast as it can without curtailing necessary credits. Production must be increased. All easy to say but difficult of accomplishment.

One of the chief hindrances to production is lack of adequate railroad facilities. Transportation must be re-established. A few glaring instances in the past of improper management joined with an improper public attitude thereby created, wrought great harm to our railroads. Government operation left them disintegrated, disorganized, and demoralized. On their service depends agriculture and industry—the entire public welfare. They must be provided with credit and capital and given the power to serve. This can only be done by removing them from speculation, restoring their prosperity by increased revenues where necessary, thereby re-establishing them in the confidence of the investing public. Their employees must be compensated in accordance with the great importance of the service they render. The whole railroad operation must be restored to public confidence by public support.

There must be a different public attitude toward industry, a larger comprehension of the interdependence of capital, management, and labor, and better facilities for the prompt and reasonable adjustment of industrial disputes. It is well to remember, too, that high prices produce their own remedy under the law of supply and demand. Already in the great leather and woolen industries there is a recession of the basic elements which must soon be reflected in retail prices. When buying stops prices come down.

Farmer Must Be Protected

This condition has borne with especial severity on the agricultural interests of the nation. To cope with it the farmers need an enlarged power of organization whereby the original producer may profit to a larger degree by the high prices paid for his produce by the ultimate consumer, and at the same time decrease the cost of food. The economic strength of a country rests on the farm. Industrial activity is dependent upon it. It replenishes the entire life of the nation. Agriculture is entitled to be suitably rewarded and on its encouragement and success will depend the production of a food supply large enough to meet the public needs at reasonable cost.

But all these difficulties depend for final solution on the character and moral force of the nation. Unless these forces abound and manifest themselves in work done there is no real remedy.

There has been a great deal of misconception as to what was won by the victory in France. That victory will not be found to be a substitute for further human effort and endeavor. It did not create magic resources out of which wages could be paid that were not earned, or profits be made without corresponding service, it did not overcome any natural law, it did not conquer an artificial thralldom sought to be imposed on mankind and establish for all the earth a new freedom and a larger liberty. But that does not, cannot, mean less responsibility. It means more responsibility, and until the people of this nation understand and accept this increased responsibility and meet it with increased effort there will be no relief from the present economic burdens.

In all things a return to a peace basis does not mean the basis of 1914. That day is gone. It means a peace basis of the present, better, nobler, because of the sacrifices made and the duties assumed. It is not a retreat, it is a new summons to advance.

Wise Conservation the Need

Diminishing resources warn us of the necessity of conservation. The public domain is the property of the people. It is held in trust for the present and future generations. The material resources of our country are great, very great, but they are not inexhaustible. They are becoming more and more valuable and more and more necessary to the public welfare. It is not wise either to withhold water power, reservoir sites, and mineral deposits from development or to deny a reasonable profit to such operations. But these natural resources are not to be turned over to speculation to the detriment of the public. Such a policy would soon remove these resources from public control and the result would be that soon the people would be paying tribute to private greed. Conservation does not desire to retard development. It permits it and encourages it. It is a desire honestly to administer the public domain. The time has passed when public franchises and public grants can be used for private speculation.

Whenever in the future this nation undertakes to assess its strength and resources, the largest item will be the roll of those who served her every patriotic capacity in the world war. These are those who have the civil tasks of that great undertaking, men at heavy sacrifice, always with the disinterested desire to serve their country. There are those who were the uniform. The presence of the living, the example of the dead, will ever be a standing guaranty of the stability of our republic. From their rugged virtue springs a never ending obligation to hold unimpaired the principles established by their victory. Honor is theirs forevermore. Duty compels that those promises, so freely made, that out of their sacrifices they should have a larger life, be speedily redeemed. Care of dependents, relief from distress, restoration from infirmity, provision for education, honorable preferment in the public service, a helping hand everywhere, are theirs not as a favor but by right. They have conquered the claim to suitable recognition in all things. The nation which forgets its defenders will be itself forgotten.

Social Welfare Work Needed

Our country has a heart as well as a head. It is social as well as individual. It has a brain and extending sympathy. It looks with the deepest concern to the welfare of those whom adversity still holds at the gateways of the all-inclusive American opportunity. Unconscious that our resources have now reached a point where there is an abundance for all, we are determined that no imposition shall hereafter restrain the worthy from their heritage. There will be no man, no escape from the obligation of the strong to bear the burdens of civilization, but the weak must be aided to become strong. Ample opportunity for education at public expense, reasonable hours of employment always under sanitary conditions, a fair and always a living wage for faithful work, healthful living conditions, childhood and motherhood, cherished, honored, rescued from the grasp of all selfishness, and rededicated to the noblest aspiration of the race, these are not socialistic vagaries but the mark of an advancing American civilization, revealed in larger social justice, tempered with an abounding mercy. In this better appreciation of humanity the war carried the nation forward to a new position, which it is our solemn duty not only to maintain but amplify and extend.

There is especially due to the colored race a more general recognition of their constitutional rights. Tempted by disloyalty they remained loyal, serving in the military forces with distinction, obedient to the draft to the extent of hundreds of thousands, investing $1 out of every $5 they possessed in Liberty Bonds, surely they hold the double title of citizenship, by birth and by conquest, to be relieved from all imposition, to be defended from lynching, and to be freely granted equal opportunities.

Equal suffrage for which I have always voted is coming. It is not a party question although nearly six-sevenths of the ratifying legislatures have been Republican. The party stands pledged to use its endeavors to hasten ratification, which I trust will be at once accomplished.

There are many domestic questions which I cannot discuss here, their solution is amply revealed in the platform, such as a merchant marine, an adequate army and navy, the establishment of a Department of Public Works, support of the classified civil service laws, provision for public waterways and highways, a budget sys-

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running ear or imperfect hearing, and which it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, and this tube restored to its normal condition, no hearing will be restored. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. Hays' Catarrh Medicine acts through the blood on the mucous surface of the tubes.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hays' Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists. The

When the train came in back in 1910

TEN years ago you might have seen one or two automobiles waiting outside the station, when the weather was pleasant.

Today the square is crowded with them. And most of the cars you generally see there are moderate-price cars.

Anybody who tells you that owners of moderate-price cars are not interested in the quality of their tires has never met very many of them.

We come in contact with the small car owner every day and we have found that he is just as much interested as the big car owner.

There is one tire, at least, that makes no distinction between small cars and large cars so far as quality is concerned—the U. S. Tire.

Every U. S. Tire is just like every other in quality—the best its builders know how to build.

Whatever the size of your car, the service you get out of U. S. Tires is the same. It isn't the car, but the man who owns the car, that sets the standard to which U. S. tires are made.

We feel the same way about it. That's why we represent U. S. Tires in this community.

Select your tires according to the roads they have to travel:

In sandy or hilly country, wherever the going is apt to be heavy—The U. S. Nobby.

For ordinary country roads—The U. S. Chain or U-Go.

For front wheels—The U. S. Plain.

For best results—everywhere—U. S. Royal Cards.

tem and other equally pressing subjects. I am not unmindful of their deep importance.

Our Foreign Relations

The foreign relations of our country ought not to be partisan but American. If restored to the limitations of constitutional authority on the one hand, and to the protection of the constitutional rights of our citizens on the other, much of their present difficulty would disappear. There can be no sovereignty within a corresponding duty. It is fundamental that each citizen is entitled to the equal protection of the laws. That goes with his citizenship and abides where he lawfully abides, whether at home or abroad. This inherent right must be restored to our people and observed by our government. The persons and property of Americans wherever they may lawfully be, while lawfully engaged, must forever have protection sufficient to insure their safety and cause the punishment of all who violate it. This is their constitutional duty. A government disregarding it invites the contempt of the world and is on the way to ruin and war. Regarding the rule of law is accepting the rule of force.

Our government must be completely re-created by a people back in control with a power to make laws with which we have been at war. The Republicans in Congress, realizing that because of the necessary re-creation of our nation on another, there was, more than ever before, mutual need of the sustaining influence of friendly cooperation and rapprochement, while attempting the establishment of such peace by efforts of ratification, which were rejected by the Democratic administration. No one knows now whether war or peace prevails. Our party stands pledged to make immediate peace as soon as it is given power by the people.

The proposed League of Nations without reservation as submitted by the President to the Senate met with deserved opposition from the Republican Senators. To a League in that form, subversive of the traditions and the independence of America, the Republican party is opposed. But our party by the record of its members in the Senate and by the solemn declaration of its platform, by performance and by promise, approves the principle of agreement among nations to preserve peace, and pledges itself to the making of such an agreement preserving American independence and rights, as will meet every duty America owes to humanity. This League is not narrow enough to limit itself to one idea, but wide and broad enough to provide for the adoption of the best plan that can be devised at the time of action. The Senate received a concrete proposition, utterly unacceptable without modifications, which the Republican Senators effected by reservations, and so modified twice voted for ratification, which the Democratic administration twice defeated. The platform approves this action of the Senators. The Republicans insisted on reservations which limit. The Democratic platform and record permit only of reservations unessential and explanatory.

Our Destiny Lies in the Home

We have been taking counsel together concerning the welfare of America. We have spent much time discussing the affairs of government yet most of the great concern of people around me hold no public office, expect to hold no public office.

Still in solemn truth they are the government, they are America. We shall search in vain in legislative halls, executive mansions, and the chambers of the judiciary for the greatness of the government of our country. We shall behold there but a reflection, not a reality; successful in proportion to its accuracy. In a free republic a great government is the product of a great people. They will look to themselves rather than government for success. The destiny, the greatness of America lie around the hearthstone. It thrift and industry are taught there, and the example of self sacrifice oft appears, if home able there, and high ideals, if there the building of fortune be subordinate to the building of character. America will live in security, radiance in an abundant prosperity and good government at home, and in peace, respect, and confidence abroad if these virtues be absent there is no power that can smother these blessings. Look well then to the hearthstone, therein all hope for America lies.

MR. LEWIS PARKHURST FOR SENATOR

Last Friday afternoon word was received that Mr. Lewis Parkhurst of Oak Knoll had given his consent to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for Senator from this, the 6th, Senatorial District. The announcement was distinctly pleasing to all Republican voters.

Mr. Parkhurst has already served in the House of Representatives, holding that office in 1907. Probably no other resident has been so honored by his townsmen as Mr. Parkhurst. He has served on practically every important committee for years. From 1891 to 1897 he was a member of the Water Board, and in 1912 a member of the Planning Board. He was a delegate from this district to the Chicago convention in June. The present holder of the office is Edwin T. McKnight, president of the Senate.

BASERBALL TOMORROW

Butter up! Get your seats early and find a nice spot for your auto, for you will see one of the largest crowds that ever saw a game on Manchester Field tomorrow, if the weather man does not butt in. Woburn will be here for the first game of a five-game series. The next one will be at Woburn, August 14, unless it rains tomorrow, when the game will be played here.

Woburn has been changing players all season long, but at present they feel that they have a team that will make us go to beat them. Man for man, we have a better team here, and with an even break in the luck of the game, we should win. Davidson will pitch, with Bradish catching, and the rest of the team will remain as it played last Saturday against the Grow team.

There was more rooting Saturday at the game than at any time this year, and I hope it will continue through the Woburn games. Rooting of the right kind helps a team, and it also shows our players you are anxious to see them win.

Give us a good day tomorrow, and we ask no favors of Woburn or any other team. Take my advice and get your seats early, also your cars in the field in season. I expect to receive 25 cents from every man and woman who comes to the game, as it is the most expensive game of the year for Winchester. This idea of bringing in an auto full of people and handing 25 cents for the crowd fails to make any kind of a hit with me. We are behind for the season financially on games played, and the Woburn game should help make up this deficit. So please remember that you are going to see a game of ball and put the price of a ticket in your pocketbook when you come.

Cushing will umpire behind the plate, and Hardy on the bases, with Officers O'Connell and Rogers doing police duty. So, all up, everybody, and back your team.

MASON STREET A PUBLIC WAY

In the case of H. T. West Company, petitioner for the registration of land off Mason Street, in which the petitioner sought to have the Land Court decide that the original layout of Mason Street in 1883 was invalid, Judge Davis of the Land Court has handed down a decision in favor of the town's contention that Mason street exists as a public way throughout the entire length, as originally established, from Winthrop street to land formerly belonging to the Dwinell estate, now owned by Mrs. Preston Pond; and that subsequent layouts in 1902 and 1904 of parts of the street did not discontinue the remainder.

TRUCK FIRE

The fire department was called out Monday afternoon for a truck fire at Mill Hill on Main street, when an auto of Jaquith & Co., Woburn grain dealers, caught fire from a broken gasoline pipe. The blaze was a hot one while it lasted, but was quickly extinguished by hand chemicals by the firemen. The damage was small.

KILLED AT WEDGEMERE

Boy Hiding on Freight Struck Overhead Bridge

John Barrett, 17 years old, of Lake avenue, Manchester, N. H., one of a party of six youths who were stealing a ride on a freight train, was knocked from a car by the overhead bridge at Wedgemere and killed Monday evening. He was between the cars and had climbed up the ladder just as the train went under the bridge. He was thrown to one side and fell on the roadbed.

The accident was witnessed by Station Agent Andrew Callahan, who saw the body fly through the air from his office. He ran out and notified the train crew as the caboose passed; they put on the "air" and stopped the train. As the train slowed down the other five youths, who were between the cars, jumped off and took to their heels. One of them, Thomas Murray, 19 years old, also of Manchester, was chased and caught by Officer Farrell, who, noticing the men running away, made after them, although at that time he did not know what had happened.

The train was extra freight No. 2325, in charge of conductor Eugene H. Parsons of Concord, N. H., and engineer Arthur Thomas of West Melford. The six youths had stolen a ride from Manchester to Boston early Sunday morning, and were on their way home. When they got on the train, Barrett, who was the youngest member of the party, warned his companions to look out for bridges. It was he who did not heed the warning.

Brakemen from the train notified Officer Kelley, in the center, of the accident, and the chemical truck of the fire department took the injured man to the Winchester Hospital, where he was attended by Dr. Richard W. Sheehy. He died a few minutes after his arrival there. His injuries included, besides other hurts, a fractured skull, broken spine, and broken thigh.

Had it not been for the capture of the other youth, Murray, the identity of the victim would not have been known. Murray stated that the boys all ran after the accident through fright. They had never ridden on freight trains before, he said, this being their first trip. He said they were employed at the Manchester Mills, and at present were not working, the trip to Boston being in the nature of an outing.

Besides Barrett and Murray the party included Joseph Sullivan of Cedar street, Francis O'Leary of Central street, Harold McDermott of Green street, and Harry Hayea of Auburn street, all of Manchester. Murray was held at the police station over night and allowed to depart in the morning. The remains of Barrett were viewed by the medical examiner and his relatives notified. They came to Winchester Tuesday and claimed the body.

OUTING TOMORROW

The Winchester Laundries, Inc., will hold its annual outing for members and employees this Saturday at Canobie Lake, N. H., leaving Winchester by autos at 8 o'clock.

An interesting list of sports has been arranged, the program including events for both the male and female members of the party.

The committee on grounds will include Messrs. John Mead, M. C. Ambrose, and T. V. Desmond. Transportation—H. J. Pickering, M. B. Lovering, H. S. Johnson. Sports—J. H. Hammond, J. F. Fitzgerald, E. E. Parker. Treasurer—Miss Florence Jewett. Judges—A. T. Downer, John G. Perry, W. T. Soule. Umpires for baseball game—T. V. Desmond at plate and H. S. Johnson on bases.

ACCIDENT ON CAMBRIDGE STREET

A touring car owned and driven by Charles E. Schmalz of Brookline met with a mishap on Cambridge street, at the turn above Pond street, Saturday, when it skidded and ran into the bank on the west side of the road. The car was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Schmalz and two men. None of the party were injured, although somewhat shaken up. The front of the car ploughed into the bank, and the machine was considerably damaged.

WINCHESTER BOY MARRIED IN LONDON

Notice has been received of the marriage in London, England, on July 30, of Miss Loro Bara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Bara of New York City, and Mr. Francis W. Getty, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Getty of Main street. The young people will make their home in London.

TRADERS' DAY

Many Enjoyed Outing at Canobie Lake Wednesday

For once the Winchester traders were blessed with fine weather on the occasion of their annual outing, and Wednesday, August 4, was one of the fine days of this summer. There was a good attendance and the outing at Canobie Lake, N. H., proved one of the most enjoyable in recent years.

In common with this town, other towns in this vicinity took the same day for their outing, and Stoughton, Arlington and Woburn were likewise closed. Winchester centre resembled a Sunday night at 11 o'clock during the entire day. All of the stores were closed, and the two banks, which, through necessity, kept open, had little business.

The local merchants and their families and friends were conveyed to Canobie by autos and trucks. There were 22 autos and five trucks, and it is estimated that about 250 persons attended.

The day was pleasantly passed, the baseball game being held upon the arrival of the party in the morning, and the sports after dinner. The party left at 8:30 a.m. and left Canobie to return at 5:30 p.m.

The baseball game was the best event of the day. Two nines composed of Married and Single Men went at it, and at the end of seven innings the Married Men won 17 to 13, aided and abetted by "Rouse" O'Brien and "Mack" as umpires.

The features of the game were the fine outfield work of Frank Higgins, Christy Sullivan and Al Hersey for the Married Men, and the infield work of Jimmy Rogers and "Skipper" Moynahan for the Single Men. To name all the fine players on each team would practically call for all of them. The only man who complained about the game was John Perry, and he said it wasn't a ball game, "it was a crime." But the other fellows said he was sore because they wouldn't let him pitch.

Here's the score:

	R	H	Er's
Married Men	17	5	19
Single Men	13	20	3
Umpires, "Mack" and "Rouse"
Time of game, 1 hr., 20 m.

The sports resulted as follows:

80-Yard Dash (Open)—1st, J. Heavey; 2d, J. Rogers. Time, 8 2-5s.
50-Yard Dash (Girls)—1st Margaret Sullivan; 2d, Katherine Sullivan. Time, 7s.

Three-Legged Race (Boys)—1st, Callahan and Chamberlain; 2d, Carroll and Tansey. Time, 8 2-5s.
Turkey Race—1st, John Boyle; 2d, George Nowell.

Shoe Race—1st, J. A. Horne; 2d, George Nowell.

Relay Race—1st, Rogers, Hannon, and Moynihan.

Potato Race—1st, Melvin DeLoria; 2d, Margaret Sullivan.

Ball Throwing—1st, Lillian Grey; 2d, Margaret Sullivan.

100-Yard Dash (Traders)—1st, M. J. Foley; 2d, J. Chris. Sullivan.

Spoon and Bottle Race—1st, Mrs. Beach; 2d, Mrs. Seller.

Heaviest Man—John Perry.

Heaviest Woman—Mrs. Sullivan.

Oldest Man—Mr. Allen, 86 years.

Oldest Lady—Mrs. Crawford.

The general committee in charge included J. Albert Hersey, chairman; Harris S. Richardson, Herbert Sellar, G. R. Bancroft, J. C. Sullivan, C. A. Lane, John Piccolo, R. F. Whitney, Dr. R. W. Sheehy, and Everett A. Smith.

GAS TANK CAUGHT FIRE

The alarm of fire Sunday night, shortly after 6, was for a gas tank which had been removed from an automobile on South Main street. The car, owned and driven by Mr. Levine of Boston, broke a piston rod, and the owner had telephoned for a tow car to come out and get him. When the tow car arrived, for some reason or another, the gas tank was taken off the disabled car and placed in the gutter. A cigarette dropped near by did the trick and set it off. There was a big blaze for a short time, but no damage.

STRUCK BY AUTO

On Sunday night, as Louis Caponi of Middlesex street was riding his bicycle on Bacon street, near the Parkway, he was struck by an auto driven by James W. Powers of Medford, and dragged a considerable distance before the auto could be brought to a stop. He was badly injured and was taken to the Winchester Hospital in charge of a Metropolitan Park officer. It was found that he had several broken ribs and other injuries, and his name was placed on the dangerous list. His wheel was wrecked.

WINCHESTER TAX RATE, $22

Increase of $1.80

The Winchester Board of Assessors have announced that the tax rate for 1920 will be $22, an increase of $1.80 over last year.

The total valuation of land, buildings and personal property is now $22,111,755, which is an increase of $1,391,200 over last year. This total is divided as follows: Land, $5,554,625; buildings, $13,698,425; personal, $2,958,125. The value of the real estate in the town is, therefore, $19,253,050.

The town expense by appropriations are $477,769.35. There is a county tax of $20,549.56, and a state tax of $46,900, also the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co. tax of $351.70, the special state tax for Soldiers' bonus of $2,111, the Metropolitan sewer tax of $15,193.51, the Metropolitan Park tax of about $12,600, the state highway tax of $976, the Charles River Basin tax of $2,263.34, the fire prevention tax of $192.36, and the war poll tax of about $7,449.

The town receives from the state from the income tax $61,155.09, and about $13,040 from the school fund distribution, and miscellaneous receipts of about $120,000 in addition to about $12,415 to be received from poll taxes. This leaves $492,250.79 to be raised by taxation or revenue, making the tax rate $22.

It is of interest to note that the tax rate, if computed on last year's valuation, would have been about $27 a thousand. Last year's valuation totaled to $17,819,975 against $22,111,755 at present. The increase is about 25 per cent. The real estate increase is $3,594,075, and the personal increase $797,125, making the total increase $4,391,200.

During the year 16 houses were erected against five during the previous year, and 127 other buildings were erected against 58.

HAMMETT—MASON

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth Hammett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shirley Hammett of Heberton avenue, and Edward Mansfield Mason of Winchester, Mass., was solemnized July 29, at 8:30 p.m., in the Hammett home, by Rev. Dr. Luther Freeman, an uncle of the bridegroom, before an embankment of palms and ferns, intermingled with summer flowers. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white Duchess satin, with overdraperies of Porto Rican lace. Her veil of tulle fell from a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and sweet peas. Miss Frances Newell, as maid of honor, wore a frock of orchid-colored georgette crepe and carried an arm bouquet of sweet peas and Killarney roses, tied with blue satin ribbon. A Leroy Atherton of Wilkinsburg was best man. Miss Helen Machette played the wedding music. A dinner and reception followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Mason will spend their honeymoon in Europe, and in the fall will make their home in Calcutta, India.

The out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. John N. Mason, Miss Margaret and Miss Elizabeth Mason of Winchester, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kunkle of Johnstown, Pa.

OLMSTEAD—CAVERLY

Miss Leslie Caverly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Fenno Caverly of 9 Wildwood street, and Mr. Frank Thornton Olmstead of Lakeview terrace were married at the home of the bride on Friday afternoon last. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Howard J. Chidley of the First Congregational Church at 2 o'clock, taking place on the porch in the presence of the families of the couple. Decorations of summer flowers and greenery adorned the residence, the end of the porch where the marriage was performed being screened and canopied with asparagus fern and roses.

Miss Flora E. Caverly, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Mr. Ronald Olmstead, the groom's brother, was best man. The Misses Margaret and Carolyn Lampee, nieces of the bride, were flower girls.

The ushers were Mr. Charles Irving Lampee of this town, Mr. Edward H. Chamberlain of New Haven, Conn., Mr. George Smith of Melrose, Mr. Joseph McCann of Arlington, and Mr. Frank Knowlton of West Medford.

An out-door reception was held following the ceremony, attended by about 100 friends of the couple, who were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Caverly and Mrs. Hattie Olmstead.

Following a wedding trip to Tonihagan Camps, Moosehead, Me., Mr. and Mrs. Olmstead will make their home in Winchester.

ITALIAN CELEBRATION

The celebration of the Feast of the Assumption by the Italian residents of Winchester, which has come to be a yearly event much looked forward to by the inhabitants of Winchester and neighboring towns and cities, this year bids fair to surpass all previous celebrations.

The committee in charge, headed by Mr. James V. Barbaro, has arranged an excellent program for Saturday, August 14. Neither effort nor expense has been spared to make this celebration one that will be worth traveling many miles to see.

There will be a procession from the Catholic church, up through the Italian quarter, and down to Manchester Field, during the afternoon.

From 7 o'clock until 9:30 in the evening there will be a band concert at Manchester Field. The General Diaz Band of Boston has been engaged for the occasion, headed by its director, Mr. Generoso Rossi. The following program of selections certainly will not fail to please all lovers of good music:

March—from "Aida" Verdi
Overture—"Poet and Peasant" Suppe Act III—"Traviata" Verdi
Carmen—Selection Bizet
Pompourri—"Il Polinto" Donizetti
Gran Via Valverde
Waltz Espana Waldeufel
Grand Baritone—"Fantasia il Trovatore" Verdi

Sextette—from "Lucia di Lammermoor" Donizetti
American Patrol F. W. Meacham

Star Spangled Banner

After the concert there will be the usual grand display of fireworks, which promises to be even better than usual, Italian residents having subscribed over $600 for this feature. The fireworks given by the Italians of Winchester have never been excelled by any display ever given here.

A. T. DOWNER, TREASURER OF THE WINCHESTER LAUNDRY, DRIES, BAGGED

Mr. A. T. Downer the popular treasurer of the Winchester Laundries, Inc., was called from his office about 10 o'clock last Thursday morning by a man who, it was later learned, was Mr. Desmond, the efficient assistant superintendent of this great plant, and was asked to step into the rear of the building. Mr. Downer readily complied, wholly unaware that he was to be immediately held up and bagged.

The "hold-up" consisted of some 180 employees of the plant, arranged in a large circle, thus preventing Mr. Downer from making an escape. The bagging was executed by Mr. John Mead, a department head, who, in a few well-chosen words, felicitated Mr. Downer upon reaching his fiftieth milestone of a useful and busy life, and also the 22d anniversary of the establishment of the Winchester Laundry Company.

Before Mr. Downer could respond, Mr. Mead presented him with a beautiful leather hand bag, a gift from the employees of the laundry. The genial treasurer, in a most bappy mood, thanked the employees of the plant for their thoughtfulness and kindly consideration. The tenor of his remarks emphasized the feeling of loyalty which has ever existed between the company and the employees. He extended his best wishes for a most successful outing of the employees, to be held at Canobie Lake, Saturday, August 7, assuring them that the company would co-operate in every way possible to make this event a "Red Letter" day in the annals of this enterprising and thoroughly democratic concern.

WINCHESTER FLOWERS

Are there no flowers in the Winchester gardens or fields, or have the people of Winchester forgotten that every Thursday morning there is a chance to share their flowers with those in Boston who have no gardens? At the beginning of the season our flower hamper was filled to the brim, but lately it has been almost empty.

Won't you help fill it again?

WINCHESTER FARMER'S WAGON STRUCK

A heavily laden produce wagon of Edward Russell of Cambridge street was struck by an automobile early Tuesday morning in Medford at the corner of Winthrop street and the Parkway. Of the three men who were in the accident only one, Joseph Rossley of Cambridge street, was sent to his home. The other two were sent to the hospital.

The auto was owned and driven by James Lund of Malden. He received a badly torn scalp, and Fred R. Knight of 6 James street was badly cut about the face. Rossley, driving the Russell wagon, while badly bruised and hurt, did not go to the hospital.

Neither of the two horses drawing the wagon were injured, but the auto was badly damaged and produce was scattered about the street. The cause of the accident has not been determined.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

Many a child and many an adult has, under a tropic sun, eaten curries of the most burning type, and seemingly the longer a man lives under a blazing sky the greater the probability of his liking such relishes. There are plenty of in- and out-of-door workers here in Winchester who enjoy steaming coffee all the more because the mercury is at 90 degrees, and on the up grade. If there is a wholesale movement toward the equator, the hot soda may be one of the best sellers of the torrid zone. The cream has been eaten in the dawn of winter mornings, and by farmers and milkmen who had driven miles through the cold. There are those right here in Winchester whose liking for a frigid beverage seems to rise as the mercury drops. Whatever we mean by "temperament," and perhaps we have several meanings, the word is too convenient to lose, the normal Winchesterite prefers a warm dwelling on a cold night, and a cool brewer after a roasting day; but in his food and drink he varies. It is never certain that the next comer will not prefer articles even hotter or colder than the weather of the day.

Now comes the American Federation of Arts, and, led by Joseph Pen- nell, denounces the billboard signs as a blot upon the landscape, and directs its efforts towards their elimination. The Federated artists denounce the billboards as a "vulgar horror," and call upon the authorities to rise in their might and suppress them as an artistic disgrace. Every Winchesterite hopes the American Federation of Arts keeps up the campaign by all means.

One Winchester gentleman wonders are the boys who steal newspapers mature enough to know what a newspaper may mean to one who in haste seeks to learn whether a vessel has crossed the ocean, whether a rich man has drawn his last breath, whether a jury has handed in a verdict, or whether there is a chance for employment at a given post.

The right to strike, like any other right, is relative. It may be pushed to the point of maintaining individual freedom of labor; it may not be pushed further without impinging upon the supreme law—the well-being of the State. And the State, which embodies the means set up by society for the protection of the general welfare, may restrict the right to strike at the point indicated. It is true, as Mr. Gompers maintains, that the great gains made by American labor have been made chiefly through organization, and often through the medium of the strike. This is conceded by all dispassionate students of labor history, whether it be a Bishop Lines or a Professor Leacock. And it ought to be conceded freely. But with the industrialization of America and the greatly complicated interrelations of modern social life, there is increasingly well defined a limitation upon the right to strike. Nor should this limitation be discouraged in labor. For it is evolved out of experience and rests upon the common good. And therefore it is as much in the interest of labor as it is in the interest of any other group. It justifies itself by the practical need for it.

The Spectator.

LETTER FROM MRS. METCALF

We print below extracts from an interesting letter written by Mrs. Joel H. Metcalf to her brother, Mr. George H. Lockman, and Mrs. Lockman. Many Winchester friends will doubtless be glad to learn of interesting conditions noted by her since her stay in Paris.

We have been and still are having a fine time, especially, I think, Rachel, for she has learned her way about, and keeps trotting around with her sketch book, having a glorious time. Joel has been doing quite a bit of writing about his missionary trip for the Christmas Register, and I have copied some of the articles, so we keep busy while Rachel is gone. There is lots to see here, of course. Rachel sent you a card a short time ago, and perhaps told you that they, and I too, thought best not to go to Italy. It would be a long, hard trip for me, and there is just as much or more red tape over here when you want to leave a country as there is in leaving the United States. So we are staying in and around Paris all the while. It is more expensive travelling now, too, because it seems best

George, there are more diamonds on one street here in Paris than there are in the same or twice the area anywhere else in the world, but they are not cheap in any sense of the word. If we were going to Italy we might find them cheaper. They say Amsterdam is the best place; any way, these are fully as expensive as at home, but they are pretty.

BASEBALL

By Mack

The Grow Tire Co. fails to stop Winchester's winning streak.

Saturday, before one of the best non-holiday crowds of the season, we easily defeated the Grow Tire Co., 4 to 0. Davidson was in good form, and with the fine defensive work of the team behind him, had the visitors eating out of his hand all the afternoon. Only two men reached second base, and the Winchester team was never in danger of losing.

The Grow team, up to the time it met Winchester, had only dropped one game, and came here full of confidence, expecting to find us easy victims. Their team is composed of some experienced players, helped out by high school and college stars, and look to be a hard team to beat, with a good pitcher on the slab for them.

They also got away with some questionable baseball at first base, but the man I had there was just as good at that game as they were, and they failed to do any damage. Tomorrow Woburn will be here for first game of the series.

NOTES

7 win, 2 lost, for a percentage of .777. There is no semi-pro team in this section that has a better percentage of games won and lost.

Three new men—Lawrence, short, Sullivan, first, and Doble, right, made their home in Winchester uniform for the first time.

Lawrence is a great ground coverer and a fast man all round.

Sullivan comes from Cambridge and caught for Markedahl earlier in the season. Reports say he hits like Babe Ruth, but he failed to connect squarely with the ball Saturday.

Doble in right did not look any too good, due to lack of practice. He is probably the most finished player on the team, and should show a better advantage next Saturday. He formerly played in the International League, and I have been told by good judges who know him that he is a fine player.

Hevey was there Saturday, and came across with a couple of hits.

There has been much discussion in regard to the ball he hit along the third base line. The ball was foul by inches, and to those in a position to see there was no question about it being a foul ball.

We can win games without the aid of the umpire, and when we can't I will give up handling the team and let some one else get away with that kind of baseball.

Thayer, the manager, started to call his team from the field, but after thinking a few minutes he decided to let the umpire handle the game in his own way. While Thayer was all right he had a couple of cheap advisers on the bench with him who will get him in bad with other teams if he does not keep them off the bench or pay no attention to their advice.

Cushing, outside of that one bad break, which I do not blame him much for, umpired a first-class game of ball. He has been umpiring in Cambridge and Sumerville, and the man that gets by in these places can umpire any game of ball. I saw him umpire Sunday at Cambridge, where 10,000 people were yelling for everything in sight, but he never turned a hair, calling the plays as he saw them.

There is a rising young sporting man in this town—Henry ("Buck") McHugh, who is very much interested in baseball. We run across him quite frequently, and Henry proceeds to hand us some advice, or what he thinks is advice, on how to run a ball team. Of course, I am no John McGraw or George Stallings, but without putting myself on the back I probably know a few things about the game; and, while I would generally take Henry's advice on sports in general, and boxing in particular, I will have to draw the line at baseball: for as a baseball adviser Henry makes a second signal man.

While down at Cambridge Sunday we were handed something new in the line of baseball strategy. The score was tied, with one run apiece, and at this stage of the game three men were on the bases, with one down, when "Razor" said: "What's the matter with that pitcher? Why don't he pass the fellow at the bat and get the weaker hitter coming up?" And this with the team at the bat, only wanting one run to win. Do you wonder I am getting gray listening to this kind of baseball?

Some time in the future I am going to write a page full of stories from some of the stuff that is passed out to me during the season. Life or Judge would pay good money for it.

Well, we saw by the papers that Woburn beat a bunch of lemons from Stoneham, 10 to 2. The Stoneham manager was talking to me before the game, Saturday. I told him to call me up Sunday after the Woburn game, but up to this writing I haven't heard a word.

Arlington came to life at Medford and beat the Legion Post, 8 to 0.

Reading was beaten by the Boston Woven Hose and Rubber Co., 3 to 2.

Lexington K. of C. won from Newton Y. M. C. A. in a good game. We will have Lexington here later in the month. There are some great baseball people in Lexington, and they surely like to visit Winchester and win a game if possible.

St. Ambrose beat Commonwealth Shoe team easily at Whitman Saturday.

The Speedway Club, with Buck O'Brien pitching, got a bad beating from the Brennan Shoe Co. "Buddy" Ryan and John Manley are with the Speedway Club.

The Brennan Shoe Co. would like very much to have us go out there and play their team a game, but it looks like home games for the rest of the season, unless the attendance falls off here.

Finally, all up for Woburn tomorrow. Bring your horns, bells, anything to make a noise, and let's make a big day of it.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Law's delay is the lawyer's meal ticket.

It is extremely easy to find trouble and make excuses.

A woman doesn't necessarily cry when she sheds tears.

Love of man for himself never grows less.

All men are born good, but few stay good.

Enterprise is like a sprout that is pruned by experience.

The man who is long on words is apt to be short on deeds.

Apparently too many men nowadays are trying the experiment of running automobiles on alcohol instead of gasoline!

The "striking policeman" who are to head the Labor Day parade in Boston are, in fact, neither "striking" nor "policemen." Governor Coolidge effectively settled their status some time ago.—Stoneham Independent.

Representative Richard B. Coolidge of Medford, representing the 25th district, of which Winchester is a part, should be returned to office. He has proven a faithful and diligent public official, giving attention to the needs of all his district, Winchester especially. He is unopposed for the office, but his good work should, nevertheless, receive the recognition of the voters by their staunch support.

Last Friday afternoon, too late for announcement in the Star, Mr. Lewis Parkhurst gave his consent to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for Senator from the Sixth District. Needless to say, Winchester residents are mightily pleased. We might profitably and with great pleasure enumerate Mr. Parkhurst's many qualifications for this office; we would, if we did not know that his modesty would deplore it. It is, however, needless in Winchester, where his record as a citizen bends the list and where he will, without question, receive a vote which will elect him by an overwhelming majority.

Apparently the alphabet is still the controlling factor in determining political results in Massachusetts. We read in one of the Boston papers that every man who can get within the first five letters thinks he has a right to aspire to office, while we be unto the poor fellow whose name begins with a W or an X. What an absurd thing it is that in this intelligent state of Massachusetts we are really finding that it does make a difference where a man's name is on the ballot, and that the initial A is worth a lot of votes in a political fight. If we carry this direct primary nonsense to a finish, it is not going to be long before somebody by the name of Aab will take up his residence in Ohio and be sure of an election to the presidency almost without contest. After all, we are not a very intelligent electorate.—Andover Townsman.

The practice of young people operating motor cars without licenses is growing, and its resultant danger is increasing. Young girls and boys dart hither and thither through traffic, operating powerful automobiles. Are they all licensed? Are they all above the age required by law to operate motor vehicles? Several serious and other less serious accidents within the past few days have been caused by youthful operators. Some communities have already started a campaign against them, and officers are stopping any who appear to be below the age limit. Some good results are already being found, but the law must be more stringently enforced. One would not think of placing a girl of 14 or 15 years in the cab of a locomotive, and permitting her to run that locomotive over an enclosed right of way, with every crossing guarded and with the locomotive confined to a rail. Yet there are many girls of that age placed in charge of an automobile, capable of making as great speed as many locomotives, to run that car over our highways without any method of guarding the lives of the men, women and children who use those highways other than the ability of the operator to control the car.—Medford Mercury.

Sherard Clay and family are at their cottage, Lake Sunapee, N. H., for the vacation period.

COX TOASTS SIR THOMAS

Murray's General Manager Praises Sir Thomas Lipton's Sportsmanship

When Sir Thomas Lipton's green-hulled Shamrock IV glided over the finish line ahead of America's cup defender, Resolute, in the International Yacht Races on Tuesday of last week, thereby winning the second of the series for the cup, among the first on board the yacht Victoria to congratulate the distinguished sportsman was M. H. Cox, vice-president and general manager of Murray's and a well-known resident of Winchester, who, with Mrs. Cox, were guests of Sir Thomas for the day's festivities.

As representatives of all of Great Britain's possessions, England, Ireland, Scotland, Canada, Australia and others, were aboard the yacht, it was deemed the proper thing for one man representing each dominion to give a short toast to the Irish skipper's victory. It was Mr. Cox's good fortune to respond for Ireland, and in view of the fact that the Shamrock flies the pennant of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club, he took the occasion to speak in most glowing terms of the admirable sporting qualities of his host.

Mr. Cox, in the course of his remarks, pointed to the fact that Ireland had never been conquered, and that the victory of the Shamrock, for the first time in so many years, only went to further endear the Irish baronet to the hearts of all who loved true sportsmanship.

At the conclusion of the first race on Tuesday of last week, Mr. and Mrs. Silas McCormick, of International Harvester fame, and Mr. and Mrs. Alexander H. Revell and their son, Richardson Revell, all of Chicago, motored home with Mr. and Mrs. Cox, and were their guests at dinner at Murray's. On Saturday evening following the second race, Mr. and Mrs. Cox were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Revell at the Atlantic Yacht Club.

Mr. Cox also received acceptances from Sir Thomas, members of his party, and other prominent visiting yachtsmen, for a dinner party at Murray's after the races.

YOUNGSTERS FELL INTO GOOD HANDS

Samaritans of the good sort haven't passed out of the life of the day, as the record blotter at Winchester police headquarters will testify. And if the police aren't enough, then four little North Woburn kiddies will back it up.

Four little ones—Joe Sposky, aged 10; John Sposky, aged 9; Peter Sposky, aged 5, and their chum and neighbor, Joe Greney of New Boston street, North Woburn—were found wandering about at 9.45 Friday night in the vicinity of Railroad avenue, Winchester.

They were found by Harry Dotten, William Nowell and Leslie Johnson, well-known Winchester young men. The kids seemed to be lost, so the trio of young men proceeded to question them. They found that the youngsters had been away from home all day, and hadn't eaten since morning; they were lost and were looking for their homes near the Merrimac Chemical Works.

A feed for the wanderers was decided upon, and they were treated to George LeDuc's lunchroom, where they were given all they could eat, the trio paying the bill. Then they were taken to the police station and turned over to the officer there.

A phone call was sent to the Woburn police, and Patrolmen Sweeney and Rooney were sent after the boys to take them to their homes. So the kids had quite a time, feed, auto ride and strange country, and everything. It proves that Samaritans are still around, and Dotten, Nowell, and Johnson are thus listed in the memories of the four little boys.

GOVERNOR COOLIDGE'S ACCEPTANCE

The New York Sun, in a recent editorial concerning Governor Coolidge's letter of acceptance, says:

"Regardless of party, all Americans are certain to read Governor Coolidge's words with exaltation and gratitude. There is indeed little that is partisan in them; they go too deep for partisanship. They are the message of a man who thinks, and thinks for America, to his fellow citizens, whom he hopes to lead to think also, and in the same direction."

The notification committee, which met at Northampton last week, consisted of one member from each of the state delegations which went to Chicago, and Mr. Parkhurst of this town represented Massachusetts on that committee.

Board of Survey:

Whereas, after due notice and hearing as provided by Chapter 191 of the Acts of 1907 and acts in amendment thereof and in addition thereto, this Board, sitting as a Board of Survey, on June 14, 1915, voted to approve the grade and line plans of a certain proposed street or way known as Jefferson road, running easterly and southerly from Highland avenue over land of William S. Walbridge to land of Goldu, which said plan was signed by the Board and filed in the office of the Town Clerk, and

Whereas, after due notice and hearing as provided in the Statute aforesaid, this Board, sitting as a Board of Survey, on April 16, 1920, approved a plan entitled "Plan of Proposed Lawson Road Extension, Winchester, Mass.," made by Edward R. Wait, architect, which said plan was signed by the Board and filed in the office of the Town Clerk, it is

Voted, That this Board, sitting as a Board of Survey, does hereby rescind its approval of the line and grade plan of the proposed street or way known as Jefferson road, and of the plan entitled "Plan of Proposed Lawson Road Extension, Winchester, Mass.," heretofore filed with the Town Clerk as aforesaid.

Voted, That this Board, sitting as a Board of Survey, does hereby approve the plan showing the proposed location of Jefferson road and Lawson road entitled "Plan of Proposed Lawson Road Extension, Winchester, Mass.," made by Edward R. Wait, architect, 46 Cornhill, Boston, Mass., dated July 15, 1920, presented with the petition of the said Edward R. Wait, dated July 19, 1920, which plan is hereby ordered filed in the office of the Town Clerk after the signatures of this Board shall have been affixed thereto.

Present at this hearing were Messrs. Preston Poul and Frank E. Rowe of the Planning Board, Town Engineer and Assistant Town Engineer, Parker Holbrook and Edward R. Wait, representing William W. Thomas of Portland, Me.

Madison Avenue: A letter was received from the Town Engineer stating that he has laid out locations for catch basins on Madison avenue in connection with surface drainage work on the basis of a considerably lessened width of roadway than the width at this time. This street has a layout width, the Town Engineer states, of 45 feet, about 31 feet of which is roadway, the remaining width of 14 feet being divided into sidewalks each about 5 feet wide, with loam borders on either side of 2 feet in width. The Town Engineer suggests that the roadway be narrowed to 22 feet, as it seems ample for all the needs, he states, of the travel which passes over it. The matter was left to the Town Engineer, he to carry out his suggestions, shortening up the street as much as it seems advisable at the present time.

The meeting adjourned at 10.20 p. m.

Clerk of Selectmen.

LETTER FROM SEC. ROOSEVELT

Mr. Whitfield L. Tuck of Winthrop street has received the following letter from the Assistant Secretary of the Navy:

July 31, 1920.

My dear Mr. Tuck:

Very many thanks for your letter of congratulations. I thoroughly appreciate the interest and support of men like yourself and I feel that the party has a wonderful chance for success this year.

By concerted effort I feel certain that we can come very near carrying Governor Coolidge's own State.

May I tell you how very glad I am that you are to be the candidate in the Eighth District. I predict success of the ticket.

Very sincerely yours,

Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The candidates for the Democratic Town Committee, filed this week, include Whitfield L. Tuck, chairman; Edward F. Maguire, Patrick E. Fitzgerald, Daniel F. Dineen and Andrew E. Flaherty.

INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE

The nine from the Woburn Machine Company visited Winchester Tuesday evening, and played against a team from the Whitney Machine Co. It was a stubborn contest, with the decision in favor of the Whiteys. Both teams were on their mettle and turned in a neat fielding game, but Whitney was a shade stronger at the bat.

GUAM

Where Intoxicants Are Used To Catch Fish.

The increasing commercial importance of Guam is illustrated in a recent visit of the postmaster of Guam, principal city of our smallest possession, to the United States in behalf of better postal service for the island.

Curious customs and natural resources of Guam are described in a National Geographic Society bulletin as follows:

"The fruit of a common tree (Barringtonia speciosa) the natives used to stupefy fish.

The fruit is pounded into a paste, inclosed in a bag, and kept over night. The time of an especially low tide is selected, and bags of pounded fruit are taken out on the reef next morning and sunk in certain deep holes in the reef. The fish soon appear on the surface, some of them lifeless, others attempting to swim, or faintly struggling with their ventral side uppermost. The natives scoop them in their hands, sometimes even diving for them.

In the mangrove swamps when the tide is low hundreds of little fishes with protruding eyes may be seen hopping about in the mud and climbing among the roots of the Rhizophora and Brugiera. These belong to a group of fishes interesting from the fact that their air bladder has assumed in a measure the function of lungs, enabling the animal to breathe atmospheric air.

Men, women and children of Guam are expert swimmers, and are as much at ease in the water as on land. As they throw themselves into the sea and come bounding from wave to wave they remind one of dolphins.

According to the testimony of early writers, their houses were high and neatly made and better constructed than those of any aboriginal race hitherto discovered in the Indies.

They were a happy, careless people, fond of festivities, dancing, singing, story telling, and contests of strength and skill, yet sufficiently industrious to cultivate their fields and garden patches, build excellent houses for their families, braid mats of fine texture, and construct canoes which were the admiration of all the early navigators. They were much given to buffumery, mockery, playing tricks, testing, mimicry, and ridicule, offering in this respect a striking contrast to the undemonstrative Malaysians.

The natives of Guam are, as a rule, of good physique and pleasing appearance. Owing to their mixed blood, their complexion varies from the white of a Caucasian to the brown of a Malay. Most of them have glossy black hair, which is either straight or slightly curly. It is worn short by the men and long by the women, either braided, coiled, or dressed after the styles prevailing in Manila.

The people are essentially agricultural. There are few masters and few servants on the island. As a rule the farms are not too extensive to be cultivated by the family; all the members, even the little children, lend a hand.

Timely Hints

The frequent near cloudbursts of the last few days have done a lot of damage in the local home gardens. Questions are coming to the County Horticultural Agent, whether or not a continuation of this is to be expected. No one can, of course, answer this question. It is always good garden practice to attempt to decrease the amount of damage done to the minimum. This is done by insurance. Insurance is in the nature of a cover crop, placed upon the soil as soon as crops are removed, or between the rows when the crops in the rows are not expected to cover up all the space. Among the better cover crops are the legumes, which means those plants which gather nitrogen from the air through their foliage, and add to the soil through nodules upon the roots. Clover is one of the more common legumes. Hairy vetch and alfalfa are used extensively by farmers. Timothy grass seed is also used extensively, especially in the Connecticut Valley by the tobacco growers. These crops are not only improvers of the soil, but when spaded or ploughed under another spring will very materially increase the value of the garden soil for products because of the large amount of humus added.

Crops to Plant

The season is advancing fast, and there are only a few crops left which may be safely planted; late cabbage plants may be set, turnips and spinach seed may be planted. Turnips are not, as a rule, included in home gardens because of the prevalence of root maggots. Unless you know from past experience that they are not likely to be troublesome, it is much wiser not to put in turnips.

Tomato Plants

The trimming and pruning of the tomato plants should be continued for some time yet. This, as already suggested, means nothing but cutting out the laterals which start at the axils of the leaves at the main stem. Most home gardeners train their tomatoes to one or two stems. These, of course, must be tied to the stick or trellis upon which they are supposed to climb. Those home gardeners who are permitting the tomatoes to grow upon the ground would do well to save the lawn clippings or other humus material, and place this under the vines upon the soil. This covering will prevent the fruit from getting dirty, keeping it dry, and thus making conditions less favorable for development of blight, and will act as a blanket upon the soil.

Do Not Hill Potatoes

The writer, within a few days, had the privilege of looking over the large home garden plots in Framingham. He found the practice which is so prevalent among people from foreign countries of hilling their potatoes to be very popular in this section. Doubtless, other towns are as bad as Framingham. In this county, except on very heavy land, it has been found repeatedly to be very poor practice to hill potatoes. This is because hilling increases the area of the surface exposed to the air, heat from the sun, and wind to dry the soil in a greater distance than it would if the soil was level or nearly level. Most potato planters try to get their soil in deeply and then not hill appreciably.

Spray Material

Do not forget that when you use the commercial products upon the market containing Bordeaux mixture, it is desirable to use them at least 3 times as strong as the manufacturers recommend.

THE MAIL MAN

A Courier of Geography.

Did it ever occur to you that your city letter carrier, your village postmaster, or your rural route carrier, has a past?

He is the agent by which the long arm of Uncle Sam taps your shoulder one, two, maybe three times a day, yet he is so unobtrusive that you probably do not know him half so well as the policeman or the school teacher.

Recently, however, he has been in the public eye by the presentation of his need for increased pay, and, in this connection, the National Geographic Society calls attention to him as an historic figure.

"The history of the postal service and its employees extends to the days of the Romans when the earliest known means of transmitting a message was by courier," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of that Society. "These admirable organizers, the Romans, marked by a post the place in the road where the relay of one runner by another was effected; thus they named our system long before it was born."

The first letter post seems to have existed in Hanse towns in the thirteenth century in order to facilitate relations between the merchants of the various members of the Hanseatic League.

The British Post Office had its beginning in the sixteenth century and our own colonial methods of handling mail were inherited from our British forefathers. Long before the people had any means of exchanging either personal or official letters, the King had established a system for conveying his personal messages and official documents by royal messengers. In the reign of King John this petulant monarch paid out a large sum for a postal service and charged it to the Household and Warlike accounts. Messengers who were thus entrusted with matters of state had to be above suspicion. They went the whole distance and were paid according to the length and danger of their journeys.

When Edward IV found the Scots were too hot upon his trail he decided that he needed a system of communication between his own headquarters and those of his fighting forces, so he had horses placed at twenty-mile intervals on the road between England and Scotland. That was our present Post Office system in embryo. Finally, in 1512, Sir Brian Tuke became the first Postmaster-General of Britain, and personally took charge of all the royal messengers.

Persons of less importance than kings had to arrange to send their letters by their servants, messengers, merchants or friends, but there is evidence that by the close of the fifteenth century regular couriers between a few main points were employed.

In a Privy Council Proclamation in 1603 the duties of mail carriers were made extremely arduous. The postman had to have two leather bags lined with 'bayes,' or cotton, for his letters, he had to toot a horn whenever he saw anyone approaching, or at least four times in every mile, he might not delay more than fifteen minutes at any point, and he had to make at least seven miles an hour in summer and five in winter. Besides this, he had to keep a record of the name and address of the sender and recipient of each letter.

In 1648 New England proposed to the British sovereign that a post office system be established in the colonies, as it was 'so useful and absolutely necessary.' His Majesty paid no attention to the plea, but Richard Fairbanks, in the same year, set up an office in Boston to receive letters from ships. He undertook to deliver the letters received and charged a penny for each letter. He also received mail for out-going ships, but no one was forced to send mail through his office.

What a step it is from those days to a system that specially delivers our eager and anxious words, carries our parcels, registers our valuables, banks our money or transmits it to pay our bills, and was the Paul Revere of our drafts for service in the World War, rallying Americans to Concord and Bunker Hills on the fields of Flanders!

Today, in many sections of our country, the farmer has his daily paper just as the Wall Street banker has his, and often he has a superior advantage in that the mail man who delivers it to him is his friend, and may add verbal bulletins on items of local interest.

A thrilling story of the devotion of mail men to their duties is that of the Pony Express, the first rapid transit mail line across the 1,000 miles of prairie, desert, snow-capped mountain peaks, and alkali wastes between the Missouri River and the Pacific Coast. It was inaugurated early in 1860 in order that the West might be kept more closely in touch with the North in view of the trouble brewing from the slavery question, and, though it had an existence of only sixteen months, it made the East and West only ten days apart at a time of crisis.

The date of starting was to be March 26, 1860, and Forts Kearney, Larabee, Bridger, Great Salt Lake City, Camp Floyd, Carson City, the Winnie Silver Mines, Placerville, and Sacramento were to be the points of delivery of mail. In St. Joseph, Missouri, eager and excited crowds gathered in the streets to see the first courier, the wiry, twenty-year old Johnnie Fry, as he dashed away on his jet black steed for the first lap of the race of flesh, blood, and determination against the desolate spaces of an unpopulated country.

These riders were clad in buckskin shirts, ordinary trousers, high boots, soft slouch hat, and were armed with sheath knife and Colt's revolvers and Spencer carbines. The best time they made across the trackless waste was in carrying President Lincoln's inaugural speech to San Francisco—seven days and seventeen hours."

Cosmopolitan Switzerland.

Before the Romans conquered the territory now known as Switzerland, it was inhabited by a collection of hostile tribes, for the most part of Celtic origin. But the district of the eastern Alps in which the present nation of the Swiss is situated was in possession of the blood of mixed Latin and Etruscan stock. At the time of the Roman invasion of the Roman empire, Rhodan received a certain number of German-speaking immigrants, and in the tenth century was used for a while as a basis of operations by the Saracen brigands, who made Europe unsafe.

C. A. CHAPLIN
3 Euclid Ave. (opposite Tel. Win. 853)

In order to acquaint the public with the general telephone situation, and some of the reasons for delay in completing new installations—chief among which is the difficulty of getting the numerous kinds of necessary material—we have prepared a series of announcements of which this is the first.

The General Telephone Situation

The reason orders for new telephone service cannot be completed as promptly as in the past, and that some orders are delayed weeks or even months, is that we are trying to meet an abnormal demand for service with a subnormal supply of the materials necessary to give service.

It is not unnatural for persons moving into a house which formerly had telephone service to assume that, because of that fact, service to them is readily possible. For this mistaken assumption we ourselves are chiefly responsible, because we used to talk about "renting" a telephone, and even bill subscribers for "monthly rental." Consequently the mind of the average subscriber is still focussed on the telephone instrument as the controlling factor of telephone service.

While the telephone instrument is indispensable, it is only one of more than a hundred essential parts of telephone equipment. Lacking any of these parts, a telephone switchboard would be as ineffective as an automobile without its carburetor.

Some of these parts are made by ourselves; others by dozens of specialty manufacturers in various parts of the country. We could increase our production if we could get the raw material and the transportation. But with labor troubles in the wire-drawing mills came a shortage of the copper wire necessary for cable and switchboards. Scarcity of paper caused almost a famine of the special kind of paper necessary for the insulation of these copper wires in the cable. And then came the freight embargoes, following railroad labor troubles, so that for three weeks this summer one of the largest cable manufacturing plants in the country had to shut down because it could neither get the necessary raw material into its plant nor the much wanted finished product out of its plant and on its way to us.

OUTING OF EMPLOYEES OF THE WINCHESTER LAUNDRIES, INC. AT CANOBIE LAKE

A most enjoyable outing of the employees of The Winchester Laundries, Inc., was held last Saturday at Canobie Lake. Some 160 employees, together with the officials of the company, left Winchester at 8 o'clock in twenty-two of the company's delivery cars. There was a fine list of sports, including two baseball games, first, between the drivers of the delivery cars and the inside workers; the other, a contest between two picked teams of ladies from the several departments. The ladies' game was exceedingly interesting, and many of the players showed considerable skill, both at batting and fielding. Other sports were indulged in, such as: 100-yard dash, three-legged races, broad standing jump, high jump, ball-throwing contest, etc. The old-fashioned games of "Pinning the Tail on the Donkey" and "Easy Money" were arranged for the elder employees who did not take part in the athletic events.

The General Chairman of the committee in charge was Wilfred Perry. The members of committees were: Committee on Transportation: H. J. Pickering, M. B. Lovering, H. S. Johnson. Committee on Grounds: John Mead, M. C. Ambrose, T. V. Desmond. Committee on Sports: J. H. Hammond, J. F. Fitzgerald, E. E. Parker.

A FINE BALL PARK

Here's what they think of our well-kept ball field:

The first game of the series between Winchester and Woburn teams will be played today at Manchester Field. Undoubtedly many fans will attend from this city, and it is hoped that among their number may be noticed a good representation from our city government, so that they may obtain a view of a well-kept, neat ball park.—Woburn Times.

The interior of the Winchester Trust Co. is being refinished and decorated.

MISS IDA M. SANDS

After a long illness, Miss Ida May Sands, daughter of Mr. George H. Sands, died at her home on Lake street, Saturday. She was 36 years of age and was a native of St. John, N. B. She had lived in this town for 27 years.

Miss Sands was a graduate of the Winchester High School, class of '93, and was a member of the First Congregational Church. Besides her father she leaves three sisters—Miss Margaret J. and Miss Cassie E. Sands of this town, and Mrs. George L. Worcester of Beverly; also two nieces. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Howard J. Chidley of the First Congregational Church, and were held at the residence at 2 o'clock, Monday. There was a large attendance of friends and many beautiful flowers. The burial was in the family lot in Wildwood Cemetery.

OIL STOVE FIRE

The alarm from box 47 last Saturday noon was for a flaming oil stove in the residence of James Scott on Loring avenue. There was no fire other than the stove, which filled the house with dense black smoke, and the blaze was extinguished by the time the fire apparatus arrived. The firemen made a quick run to the box, being at the scene exactly three minutes after the telephone message was received at fire headquarters.

WHIST PARTY

Monday evening, despite the extremely warm weather, an enthusiastic crowd attended the whist given at the K. of C. rooms on Vine street by Miss Annie Haggerty and her assistants, Mrs. J. Frank Davis and Mrs. Mary Kelley, in aid of the coming bazaar.

A very pleasant evening was spent with cards and music, and a substantial sum of money was realized.

Prizes were awarded Mrs. Timothy Donovan, Mrs. J. Frank Davis, Mrs. Mary Kelley, Mrs. Mame Higgins, Miss Alice O'Donnell, Miss Katherine Foley, Mr. M. C. Ambrose, Mrs. Bert Bond, Mrs. Tom Keane, Mrs. P. Hennessey, Miss Nora Rogers, Miss Katherine O'Connor, Miss Sarah Quigley, Mrs. D. Reagan, Mrs. J. Murphy, Mrs. Katherine Maloney.

PROBATE AND OTHER COURT NEWS

The will of Julia E. Johnson of Winchester, who died June 9, has been allowed by the Probate Court. Alfred S. Hall of Winchester has been appointed as executor, and has given a bond of $12,000. The estate is valued at $7000, all in personal property.

Edward McManus of Winchester is an heir-at-law to the estate of his uncle, Daniel McManus of Concord, who died July 22. No valuation of the estate was filed.

USED ONE-WAY STREET THE WRONG WAY

An accident occurred in the centre Monday noon at 12:45, when a light truck of the Winchester Laundries, Inc., was in a collision with a touring car. The accident occurred at the blind corner at Mt. Vernon street and Converse place. Harry J. Pickering was driving the laundry truck and Alfred T. Knox of Somerville, employed by James Wade, at the Central Garage, was driving the touring car, which came out of Converse place in the wrong direction, that being a one-way street.

Mr. Pickering was not, of course, expecting the touring car, which hit his truck and carried it across the street, bending mud guards, wheels, and front axle. The touring car was not injured and, fortunately, neither driver was hurt.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

For several years the White Ribboners of New England have met at Old Orchard, Me., during the summer, for conference and instruction. This year the meeting, called the Intra-State Institute, is to be held August 10, 11 and 12. On the program we note the name of Mrs. Grace M. Hamilton, who will speak on "Duties of County Presidents and Vice-Presidents." As Mrs. Hamilton is not only president of the Winchester Union, but is at the head of the Middlesex County W. C. T. U., she will be able to speak from experience, as she has won much praise for her ability to fill the positions of whose burdens she is to discourse.

Active work is being done by the W. C. T. U. here and elsewhere in getting women to register in anticipation of the right to vote in November, in case the thirty-sixth state ratifies. Of course, those already registered to vote for the school committee will be automatically placed on the regular list, providing they have not moved since registration. So many have moved during the past year that it is well to make sure one's name is on the list.

Probably the most important matter to enlist the attention of women during the coming campaign is the making sure that the candidates for Congress are on the right side of the enforcement law. A determined effort will be made to weaken, if not overturn, the Volstead Act, making the enforcement of little avail. The country generally is back of the Eighteenth Amendment, but the danger is that the liquor men—and women—may take advantage of the satisfaction of those who are "dry" but do not think it necessary to vote for continued enforcement. Give Prohibition a little more time and a fair show, and there will be no question, but as yet there are those who are not yet convinced and they are easily hoodwinked by those whose interest in having the country "wet" is chiefly financial.

WINCHESTER VISITING NURSE ASSOCIATION

Weekly report ending August 12: Calls made by Visiting Nurse (Mrs. Gormley), 52; maternity cases, 1. Calls made by Child Welfare Nurse (Miss Jacobson): pre-natal, 7; child welfare, 46; social service, 3. Babies attending clinic, 13.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES

The following cases of contagious diseases have been reported to the Board of Health for the week ending August 12: Diphtheria, 1; whooping cough, 1.

BASEBALL TOMORROW

The second game of the Woburn series will take place tomorrow on Library Park unless it rains, when it will take place the following Saturday. After the great game both teams put up at Winchester, there will surely be a record-breaking crowd out to watch this contest. We will stand pat on our team, with the exception of two outfielders who will be on hand at Woburn. After the fifth inning, when I removed Lawrence for indifferent playing, we were badly handicapped in the outfield. "Honey," while he does not claim to be an outfielder, did well enough in the pinch, but this man Doble will never do. I had some fine reports about him, but he looks like anything but a ball player to me. So I will have to get a couple of experienced men for right and centre. The infield will remain as it is, with Davidson and Bradish as a battery. We should win from Woburn more decisively than we did at Winchester, but I understand that they have left several of their players go, as I expected they would if they lost to Winchester. You people from Winchester can expect to see an entirely new team up there next Saturday, and that is one reason why they do not have more luck in their games, while we have had practically five regular men all season in our line-up. If you expect to get a seat up there, an early arrival will be in order and don't forget to root. Winchester is at last waking up to the fact that they are not witnessing a ping-pong game, and the crowds are showing the proper spirit, rooting for their team. Hardy will be behind the plate and Cushing on the bases.

JACOB REEBENACKER

Mr. Jacob Reebenacker, of 42 Brookside road, Winchester Highlands, died at his home yesterday afternoon after a long illness. He was 61 years of age.

Last March Mr. Reebenacker submitted to a transfusion of blood at the Winchester Hospital, which for a time bettered his condition, but he had been in a serious condition for several weeks and his death was not unexpected. He was born in Suwaney, Del., and was a tinsmith by trade, working for many years for the firm of Brock Bros., Cambridge. He had made his home in this town for 12 years.

He leaves a wife and seven children—Maurice O., Edith W., Edward K., Ruth V., May G., Roy D., and Evelyn C. Three sisters and a brother, all of Philadelphia, also survive him.

The funeral services will be held from the residence this Saturday afternoon at 2:30. The burial will be in Wildwood Cemetery.

BORDER ROAD OPEN

South Border Road, known generally as the Border Road, was opened to automobile traffic this week, the final coat of oil having been applied and warning signs, etc., set up. This road runs from the head of the Mystic Valley Parkway through the edge of the Fells to the Fellowship in Medford, connecting with the later near the police station. The road is the result of Ex-Representative William A. Kneeland's efforts, for it was through his petition that the money was appropriated for its construction by the State. The road is about two and a half miles in length and is quite winding. It makes a big cut for people from Winchester and points north in reaching the Revere Beach Parkway.

WELL REPRESENTED IN COURT YESTERDAY

In the Woburn court yesterday: Alfred Capeni of Winchester, riding a bicycle on the sidewalk of the Parkway, was fined $15; Frank Colucci, Winchester, similar offense, $10; James Apostolis and James Anagnos-ton, both of Peabody, bathing in Winchester's reservoir, were fined $5 each and Albert L. Littlefield of Lynn, driving a machine on an excluded road in the Fells reservation, was fined $10.

ITALIAN CELEBRATION TOMORROW

The annual observance of Feast of the Assumption by the Italian residents of Winchester will be held tomorrow (Saturday). As announced last week, the program for this year's observance is very complete and one of the largest and most pretentious the Italians here have yet undertaken.

During the afternoon the usual parade will be held, starting from St. Mary's Church, with a route through the Italian section and to Manchester Field.

The program at the field will open at 7 o'clock with a concert by the General Disz Band of Boston, the crack Italian organization. The music will include a long list of selections of an operatic nature and will continue until dark, when there will be a big display of fireworks. The program was printed in full in last week's Star.

Arrangements have been made by the Winchester police department and by the electric lines to handle a record crowd. Over $600 has been appropriated for the fireworks.

DOG TRAINED TO SMUGGLE LIQUOR FROM MEXICO

Killed by Border Guards

Training dogs to smuggle liquor across the Rio Grande is the latest ruse devised by the ingenious minds of those who make their living along the border by means of illicit importation to the United States of liquor and drugs. This innovation in line-running came to light at El Paso recently, when a Mexican river guard shot a "dog smuggler" in the act of swimming the Rio Grande with four bottles of tequila, a Mexican liquor of cactus distillation, tied across his back.

The dog, as the story of his loyal service to his master is told by United States customs men, had been making his nightly trips between Juarez and El Paso with contraband goods for several months. The strange but regular actions of the animal first were noted by customs officers about two months ago.

Beginning at two o'clock in the morning, the dog would begin his operations. Signal lights flashed by confederates in the gang of smugglers stationed on each side of the river always preceded the dog's trip across the stream. Dashing out of a cluster of squatted houses along the Mexican side of the river, the animal would plunge into the Rio Grande with his load of tequila, or whiskey.

Emerging on the American side of the river, the well-trained "smuggler" always was successful in eluding pursuers, who often sought to lasso the dog, being loath to shoot the unsuspecting law violator. A brisk run through valleys and the line runner would be at his goal, where he would be unburdened of his load.

A lapse of a few minutes, lights would flash back and forth across the line, and the dog would make the return trip, only to repeat the performance.

The point at which the dog crossed would be changed by the smugglers about every night, in order to make detection more difficult. The animal would make ten or twelve trips every night. Numerous attempts were made to trace him, but he was too fleet of foot and his master never was caught.

When all other attempts at capture failed, guards began to shoot at the successful "smuggler." The dog, with his load swung in a sack about his neck and shoulders, swam low in the water, and many attempts to kill him failed, but one night the bright moonlight made him a distinct target, and a shot put an end to the border's most distinctive line runner.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

The Spectator has very little sympathy with the law which has, by a stretch of leniency, recognized what is somewhat delusively called "peaceful picketing"—which means that strikes may lawfully surround any man's business plant and attempt to dissuade others from going to work therein—provided they use no violent means. Even this is a stretch, for it certainly makes a conspiracy to interfere with the business. The law condones it chiefly because of the sentimentalism which latterly has influenced all our legislation and our court decisions. We may as well recognize peaceful picketing as legal, whether it ought to be legal or not. At any rate, it is so. The great difficulty with it is that, peaceful pickets so readily forget the limitations set to their actions and drift over to the sort of picketing which is not peaceful at all. Peaceful picketing practically doesn't exist, save in the theory of our philanthropic professors and social enthusiasts. It usually slopes over into violent picketing—which not even the professors and social theorists defend. As a Winchester gentleman lately emphasized, what needs defense just now isn't the right to strike, but the right to work. The right to strike is so firmly established that one begins to speculate whether any one else has any rights left. It all began with the fact that labor, then unorganized and an easy prey, was downtrodden. It was so, and it got the sympathy it merited. But labor isn't downtrodden any longer, and one suspects that after a little the sympathy so long monopolized by the labor striker will be transferred to some other quarter. It certainly will if strikers persist in overdoing things, for the simple reason that people do invariably sympathize with the under dog, irrespective of who poses as that dog. Labor has emancipated itself, and is by way of acquiring in its turn a power to oppress. Whenever it does oppress, it will find itself treated as oppressors always are. The thing for organized labor to avoid, then, is overplaying its hand through any excess of confidence. Labor has learned much from capital. It learned the power of organization. It might with profit learn also from capital what happens when organizations become so mighty as to lose their sense of responsibility. Capital suffered for its sins, and still suffers. If it came to the point where labor, similarly organized and powerful, committed similar sins, it in turn would suffer. Oppression is most likely to consist in denying to free people the right to work if they want to, and in claiming that, whether this be abstractly right or wrong, nobody shall venture to question it in the concrete on penalty of being mobbed.

Robert Louis Stevenson said that the two uses of wealth were a yacht and a string quartet. A favorite theme with those who are teaching children to write "compositions" is "What would you do if you had a million dollars?" There are few here in Winchester and elsewhere who have not dreamed of what they would do with a fortune. The noblest use of money is assuredly that which means the modest dissemination of culture and of healthful pleasures of recreation for the mind and body, of welfare for the toiling masses, of the enlightenment of education for the many. The money might be given for a library, a hospital, a playground, an orchestra. A large fund may be lodged in the hands of an individual, but not that he may spend it on himself. He becomes trustee and steward. He is engaged in a great work of healing or of inspiration, and the fund permits him to do that work on a scale he could not attempt when crippled for want of resources. The ignoble materialist spends his money for a vulgar "splurge." He spends it that he may create envy in the minds of his holders. Each article of merchandise he has about him dangles his price mark, and his attitude is an invitation to contemplate a picture of success. But the lasting riches are not in the furniture we buy; they are in the friends we make and keep; they are in the satisfaction that we know in the quiet sessions with our own souls; they are in the consciousness of duty done in every public and private relation and of faith kept with our place of service and with the community at large. As humanity marches along the winding pathway that leads to the millennium it does not bestow its love and trust on those who care only to feed and clothe and lodge themselves. It bestows its affection on the unselfish, and it responds to those who are seeking to keep it. Those who are rich are those Winchesterites who have amassed not the dollars or the pearls, but the abiding tokens of esteem and of affection that are offered by their fellows while they live.

ALAND ISLANDS MAY BECOME BALTIC FIUME

Caught in the swirl of the minor war flurries that disturb Europe are the remote Aland Islands, where Swedes and Finns are clashing in a manner suggestive of the erstwhile dispute between Jugo-Slavs and the Italians along the Adriatic, according to newspaper dispatches, the National Geographic Society has issued, from its Washington headquarters, the following bulletin on the Aland Islands:

"For more than 200 years the Aland Islands, which are situated like a cork in the wide mouth of the Gulf of Bothnia, have been a sort of Alsace-Lorraine question between the Swedes and the Russians. After having passed back and forth several times, they were finally ceded to Russia in 1809. During the reign of Nicholas I they were strongly fortified, a move most distasteful to Sweden because the islands occupy a strong strategic position—with respect to Stockholm, the Swedish capital, which is less than 100 miles to the southwest from Bomarsund, the chief fortification of the islands.

"These fortifications were short-lived. In 1854, during the Crimean War, a Franco-British fleet, under Sir Charles Napier and Baraguay d'Hilliers, destroyed the works, and after that time the islands were left unfortified, in accordance with an international agreement.

The Aland group, which is separated from the Swedish mainland by Aland Bay (Aland Haf) and from the Finnish mainland by Skiftet Sound, is composed of some 300 islands and rocky islets, the total area of which is not more than 550 square miles. The largest island, Aland, a name signifying 'land of streams,' is almost as large as all the others combined, having an area of 247 miles, about twice the size of Martha's Vineyard.

Cattle-raising and fishing are the chief occupations of the 25,000 people who live on the islands. Some cereals (barley and oats) are grown on the thin soil, and there are a few forests of birch, spruce and fir.

Finnish troops are reported to be marching through the streets of Mariehamn. This attractive little bathing resort is the chief town of the islands, having a population of 1,400. In times of peace a daily steamer service is maintained between this port and Abo, the oldest and historically the most interesting city in Finland. The voyage from Abo to Mariehamn takes about 10 hours.

It was in the waters adjacent to the Aland Islands that Peter the Great's navy won its first important victory, defeating the Swedes in 1717.

Only about 90 of the 300 islands are inhabited, and the fisherfolk, in the main, are of Swedish descent.

Sweden's desire to hold the islands arises in part from the fact that they control the entrance to the Gulf of Bothnia, through which most of that kingdom's internal trade is carried on."

Winchester Wins the First Game of the Series in a Great Fifteen-Inning Contest

By Mack

Winchester came through in great style last Saturday, and won a great game from Woburn in the first of a five-game series. Woburn got two runs early in the game, due to a poor start of Davidson, but after the third inning they failed to do anything with him.

These two runs looked like victory for Woburn, and they felt the game was already won, but as in other games this season, the Winchester team does not know when it is beaten, and they went into their half of the ninth with as much courage as at the beginning of the game.

Christoforo, the first man up, got a nice hit and stole second. He was held there while Hevey was being thrown out. Davidson then came through with a long single to left center, and Christy scored, while "Davey" went to second on the throw in. Nelson, the next man up, drove a fine two-base hit to center, and the score was tied, while the Winchester crowd went wild with enthusiasm.

After that it was only a question of time when Winchester would win the game, as the Woburn team did not act like a crowd who could stand the pace. We kept getting men on in nearly every inning after the ninth, and it went along until the fifteenth, with the head of the batting list coming up.

"Honey," the first man up, reached second on an overthrown at first base. He was promptly sacrificed to third by "Christy" and second on Hevey's short fly to left, with only one out. And this was where the Woburn strategists fell down! They had their outfielders playing down by the river and Leland was backed almost to Wedgemere Station for our hitters. If Downey had been playing a proper outfield position he would have gathered in Hevey's fly and the game might still have gone a few more innings; but, as we are not responsible for running the Woburn team, they will have to stand the blame for poor direction.

Here's the score:

NOTES

8 won, 2 lost, for a percentage of .800. We hope to increase this next Saturday.

There was a large crowd on hand to see this game, but the weather kept as many more away from the field.

Cambridge, Somerville, Medford, Stoneham, Lexington, Arlington and Quincy were some of the places where part of the crowd came from.

I also met Mr. George Brine, who came up from Atlanta, Ga. Mr. Brine is a former Winchester boy and is one of the big men of that Southern city. He is generally on hand for this Woburn series each season.

Judge Johnson was also an interested spectator at the game, and stayed until the last man was out.

The Judge also heard me tell a couple of Arlington men (?) where they got off. These two men (?) had their car backed up to the fence, enjoying a fine view of the game; and when I asked for a contribution they positively refused to give. Their only excuse was that I would not play Arlington. I'll play Arlington any time, but I refuse to hand the manager of that team the Town Hall, High School and part of Manchester Field for playing here. At any rate, they can't support a team over there, so it was a waste of time trying to get twenty-five cents from them.

Three of the Arlington team were on the field, watching the game—Cadigan and the two Geary boys, and they bought tickets as they came in, and they were the only Arlington people who did.

Now, let us tell you about some of the plays and players in this game. McOwens, on the Woburn team, was the only man on that team who played his string out. He got one hit to right field, where he was never known to put one before.

Weaver seems to lack some of his former skill, and Winchester surely hit him hard. The box score fails to tell anything about the hitting. He also does entirely too much crabbing, which does not help his pitching any.

King at first base looks like a good player, but I don't think any of the Winchester people would exchange Sullivan for him.

Hillis played a good game in the field, but was like a wooden Indian at the bat.

Duschane was the best-looking player on the Woburn infield, and he put up a great game.

Harris is another fine player, but reports say that Woburn has let him out. You probably are not aware of the fact that a ball player is not supposed to make an error when he plays on the Woburn team, but such seems to be the case.

Downey, Walsh and Leland did all they had to do in the outfield, but, as I said last week, Leland is not the same player he was two years ago.

Ed Walsh put up a good game at the bat, and he started all the trouble for Winchester when he poked one of Davey's slow ones to center. He had to get out of the game in the eighth, due to a wrenched knee.

Bradish did not play as good a game as usual, but I was told that he was not feeling well. He kept this to himself, and I did not hear of it until Monday night. He will be O. K. for the game tomorrow.

Davey was the same cool, easy-going worker that he has proved to be all season. He got off to a bad start, and Woburn got two cheap runs; but, as I have said elsewhere in the paper, the Woburn team did not do much with him after the third inning—only two hits in the next 12.

Sullivan on first is some ball player, and how he can hit that ball! He did something that had not been done before to my knowledge when he put one of the balls across the river, although it was foul. If he can get a couple of long ones in the tall grass at Library Park their outfielder will have a job finding them.

Christy played a great game at second base and made three nice hits off "Kiko." He also stole two bases and scored a run. He played all around Hillis in every department.

Hevey put up a brilliant game at short when I put him in there in the fifth inning, and he will add strength to our infield.

Nelson also showed up well, but he is careless on the bases.

"Mack" was in the game every minute, but hit in hard luck. He was out on the coaching lines working hard all through the game, and he also had to do the "stalling" while "Davey" got his wind in the ninth; and, of course, the Woburn crowd were crazy about that.

As I said before, "Honey" did all he had to do, and came in mighty handy in the pinch.

We also met Alderman Winn from Woburn at the game. He was probably getting a line on the ball field, and I expect to hear that he has started something at the Council meeting in regard to putting Library Park in shape for Saturday.

We noticed in the Times last Saturday an article calling for proper care of Library Park. Well, we have played on some dumps and pastures this season, but none of them have anything on the dump up there. This park is under the care of the Public Works Department and they have plenty of men to keep it in condition. I hate to think what would become of Manchester Field and our park system if they were under the care of the Public Works Department of Woburn.

And speaking about our playground, there was an article recently in the Star signed by Mr. Jones, asking for tennis courts. I asked one of the Park Board why they could not have them, and he informed me that the proposition has been put up to the Finance Committee several times, only to have it turned down, so that it seems to me that the only thing Mr. Jones and those people who want to play tennis can do is to take this thing up at town meeting and get an appropriation for this purpose. Also, Mr. Jones overlooked his best bet for tennis courts, and that is Ginn Field, so called, between Wedgemere and Manchester Field. This place can be entered by auto from Bacon street, and it would make one of the best tennis fields in the country, with possibly room for six courts. I am with you, Mr. Jones, for tennis courts or anything else that helps athletics. We have the playgrounds and parks. Why not get some use out of them?

Your Gas Meter Is More Accurate Than Your Watch

Put one hundred of the best watches against one hundred gas meters in a crucial test for accuracy, exposed to the same varying conditions of heat, cold, humidity, and the meters will win out every time.

All things considered, the gas meter is one of the most accurate measuring instruments in use today.

Like the registering turnstile in baseball parks, railroad stations and fair grounds, the meter will not operate unless something passes through it. The mechanism is not set in motion and the indicator hands cannot move except as more or less gas passes through the meter and makes them move.

Before a meter is set in your premises, it is thoroughly tested and proved for correct registration by your gas company, or, in certain sections of the country, by meter inspectors employed by the city or state. These inspectors are your trusted representatives and they place an official seal upon the meters, thus certifying to their accuracy.

It is interesting to know that the original mechanical principles adopted in 1841 for the correct measurement of gas still persist. Hundreds of inventors have endeavored to get something better, but they have improved on details only. Today the meter stands as the survival of the fittest. If a more perfect device could be obtained, your gas company would promptly adopt it.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Every wise man takes his turn at acting foolish.

Love is a disease of the head that affects the heart.

If a man runs into debt he must either crawl out or stay in.

About the only law recognized by love is the mother-in-law.

Lots of men, after laying out something for a rainy day, get discouraged but it does not rain.

The greatest grief in life is to be misunderstood.

Money still talks, but it doesn't say as much as it used to.

The Park Commissioners received several complaints recently of the low-hanging tree limbs at Manchester Field, owners of automobiles, which are required to park behind them, being unable to see clearly. Commissioner Alexander ordered these trees trimmed, which was done before the Saturday game, affording an unobstructed view.

There are still many people who oppose automobiles driving onto Manchester Field at the hall games. They claim that those who go on foot are entitled to some rights and consideration, which the auto drivers do not show them. The complaint seems not without justification. It constitutes an element of danger for the large number of automobiles to use the same path that the crowd on foot must traverse. Not only this, but during the game the path is used of necessity by many who stand to watch the game, and the autos are constantly passing in and out, crowding these people off the path. There was a formidable array of cars at Saturday's game, and it was seldom that a car was not going out or coming in. Either definite hours should be set for the arrival and departure of the cars, or they should be sent to park on the east side of the field. The latter would seem the best, for the cars have tops to protect the occupants from the sun and they would be in no danger from stray balls, which also make a dangerous situation. It is said that there were over 100 autos at Saturday's game.

Sandy Beach is rapidly developing into a real bathing resort. The number of grown people who frequent the place daily (and nightly) is constantly increasing. If conditions continue, it will not be long before some one, either the town or state, will be called upon to erect a bath house.

A Texas editor complains "that he really does not see why the mechanic should charge $9.00 for simply smearing grease on his auto cushions." Probably it was $9.00 grease.

ARMENIA

Of timely interest because of President Wilson's proposal that the United States assume a mandate over Armenia, though written prior to that proposal, is a communication to the National Geographic Society from Melville Chater.

Relating his personal experiences in that famine-stricken land several months ago, Mr. Chater writes:

"Erivan, the capital of Armenia's provisional republic, is an inconceivable contrast to the Georgian government seat at Tiflis. At Erivan one finds no spacious prospect nor vice-regal palace, no smart shops, Russian opera, nor gay night life. To behold misery in Tiflis, one must search it out. In Erivan one cannot escape it. This poor, straggling, dingy city of the plains, whose government offices suggest some hastily extemporized election headquarters, and whose Parliament chamber is rigged up with benches and cheesecloth in the auditorium of the second-class theater, boasts of but one beauty, and that—to speak in paradox—is forty miles away; for, in whatever quarter of Erivan you may be, lift your glance, and great Ararat of eternal snows is seen brooding distantly over the mean streets with his aspect of majestic calm. He is the Armenian's Olympus, or rather say, the Sinai of a race which has known bondage and wilderness wandering, and for centuries a people's imagination has turned toward him.

The little Erivan republic which centers about Ararat contains within its present limits less than 1,500 square miles—only one-half of which area is capable of high productivity—two hundred miles of railroad, and about 2,000,000 people. It has been the center of refuge for Turkish Armenians ever since the massacre of 1915, and between 200,000 and 300,000 of them are camped within its borders.

As for the city itself, its former population of 40,000 has been doubled by this influx. There starvation and typhus have claimed their toll of 9,000, the death rate fluctuating between fifty and eighty a day.

Though the doctor and I were here to observe the worst phases of the situation, each of us waited for the other to suggest a trip to the Igdir region, where we were told starvation was most acute.

The town of Igdir, with its local and near-by populations of 30,000 Armenians, 20,000 Tatars, and 15,000 Yezidis, revealed some squalid streets with but a few people seated disconsolately here and there, as we drove in. Throughout those tortuous, sun-beaten byways no children played and no animals roamed. The air was heavy with dreadful silence, such as hangs over plague-stricken communities.

We found the children, such as they were, inhabiting an orphanage where, in one sickened at putridity's horrible odor, and were informed that there were neither medicines nor disinfectants wherewith to allay the condition of the many little sickbeds.

Sick? Say, rather, the bedridden—a word which more justly describes those tiny, withered up, crone-like creatures, upon whose faces the skin seemed stretched to a drumhead's tightness; whose peering eyes shot terror and anguish, as if Death's presence were already perceptible to them, and who lay there at famine's climax of physical exhaustion. In those young, yet grotesquely aged faces, we seemed to see a lifetime of tragedy packed into eight or ten childish years.

The mud huts which we visited presented an inviolable picture—a barren, cave-like interior, lacking one stick of furniture or household utensil, and with a few bleached bones scattered here and there. The occupants, stretched on the clay floor, would half lift themselves to regard us with dazed and questioning eyes. Those gaunt faces, those attenuated bodies clad in a shaginess of filthy rags, seemed centuries removed from civilization. You felt that you had stumbled into prehistoric man's den during some great famine year.

Suddenly a shriek went up and a woman rushed out of her hut, with agonized face and with hands lifted to heaven. Hers was such abandonment as proclaims that death has struck the first-born; yet it was a tale of mere robbery. What the captured thief delivered back to her proved to be a paltry handful of roots. And upon entering the woman's house we found, in fact, her only daughter lying dead, not yet cold, while the mother crouched dry-eyed before a tiny fire, intently watching the pot wherein bubbled those precious roots, her next stomachful.

One seven-year-old girl crouched by herself, cracking something between two stones and licking her fingers. The doctor bent over, examining the object. He asked with peculiar sharpness, "Where did she get that—that bone?"

The child looked up with a scared, guilty glance; then her answer came through the interpreter, who said in a low voice, "Yonder in the graveyard." I am not sure that we preserved our composure.

TWO SINGERS

I

"Come, thou fount of every blessing!"

'Twas a maiden sang the hymn,
And she sang it without ceasing.

With a voice that had a ring
Like the clear note of a bell,

Yet of feeling not a trace.

"Come, thou fount of every blessing,
Tune my heart to sing thy grace!"

Yes, the face was fair to see,
But it gave not the impression

That the words which came so free
Were the heart's sincere expression.

"Teach me some celestial measure, Sung by ransomed hosts above";

But she longed not for the treasure
Of her Lord's unchanging love.

II

"Come, thou fount of every blessing,
Tune my heart to sing thy grace!"

'Twas a woman, old and feeble,
Sang the words so full of praise,

Thou' the notes were cracked and broken,

And the eyes with age were dim,
Yet the eager face gave token

Of the faith that was within.

Ah, she trusted in Him wholly,
For she felt the need of Him;

And her spirit was but lowly
As she crooned the blessed hymn.

So she sang, in happy measure,
Of the joys that were to come;

For she hoped, by His good pleasure, Safely to arrive at home.

"What a pity!"
"Is it not too bad?"

GIPSY SMITH VISITS CANADA

Twenty-six years ago there was born in a tent of a gypsy encampment in Scotland, Capt. Gypsy Pat Smith, the soldier-evangelist who has been visiting in Canada. His father was a Roman of pure blood, but had broken the traditions of the tribe in marrying an Irish toleean. Pat's earliest days were spent travelling through the lowlands of Scotland and the north of Ireland and England, the typical nomadic life of a gypsy boy. He had no religious training, as the gypsies have no religion of their own. Until he was sixteen he went barefoot and earned his living by selling pots and pans, clothes pegs, baskets and mops. At the age of eight he was sent to school, but owing to the fact that the tribe travelled every summer he was forced to confine his education to the winter months. For four winters he attended school, and—his education was complete.

Many are the conjectures as to who the gypsies really are. Gypsy Pat Smith gives the following account of them: "We have a language of our own, called Romany. A great many of our words are distinct Hindustani words. Through the ages the Anglo-Saxon race has married and intermarried until they have become what they now are, but the Romanys have only married among themselves. Thus they are a separate people with customs and language of their own. They are a counterpart of the Jewish nation—a nation without a country."

Gypsy Pat explained that there were several tribes of gypsies, and their rule was to elect the oldest man as king. The Boswell tribe, he said, was staying in Toronto, and he had received a visit from one of its members. The word "gipsy" was the name bestowed upon them by "Gorgius," or people who were not gypsies. In Great Britain there were 40,000 Romanys of pure blood.

"No gipsy ever steals," said Captain Pat. "He finds things—but he never steals. I knew of one man who found a horse in a field, dyed it and the next day sold it to the farmer who owned the field."

Of his early life he says: "I never heard the name of Jesus except as an oath. My mother was a very good and sweet woman but she knew nothing about religion. At the age of sixteen I had never been naked if I belonged to my Master. My father would send me out to 'find' something for supper each day, and if I returned empty-handed he would beat me and send me out again. I had no education and no chance to rise. At this age I had become leader of a gang of roughs on the south side of Glasgow, and I was prouder of those twenty-one boys than General Currie was of his whole army. We specialized in university students. After one scrap, when the leader of the students and I were rolling in the mud, he cried out he had had enough. So we shook hands and asked each other's name. He was the son of one of the richest men in the city. We formed a great friendship, and a few Sundays after he told me he had promised his mother he would go to church. Instead we went to the tent mission which had been built for D. L. Moody's work. A man asked my friend if he were a Christian, and he said he was—which was untrue. The man asked me. I had never been asked before and I felt overcome and said 'Yes.' The man asked me when I had become converted. I pointed to my chum and said, 'The same time as him.'"

After that, exclaimed the captain, for six nights he had cried himself to sleep, and the following Sunday he stood up at the meeting and said that, "sink or swim," he intended to live for Christ.

"From then my whole life was transformed. I went home to the gipsy tent on Vinegar Hill and, putting my arms round my mother's neck, I said: 'Mum, I've found Christ. I'm saved!'

"A year and a half later, in the same tent, I knelt with her and led her to the feet of Jesus. I count among my personal friends some of the greatest men in Great Britain, but I never had honor shown me like that God bestowed upon me that night."

Gypsy Smith preached his first sermon when he was seventeen. When he was eighteen his father put him out for being a Christian. Six months later his mother died. Soon after this, in response to many requests, he decided to become an evangelist. "Shortly after mother's death I came home and found father in the stable with his two horses. I put my hand on his shoulder and said: 'Isn't it time you started for heaven?' and then I saw my first miracle. Two tears rolled down his cheeks, and in a moment he was on his knees asking God for mercy."

In 1914 the evangelist was becoming so famous that he was asked to tour Canada and the United States. On August 4 he had his bags on the steamer, ready to sail, when word came that war was declared. He immediately left the ship and enlisted as a trooper in Lovat's Scouts in the "First Hundred Thousand." He was offered a commission, but refused. After ten months he had risen to be a sergeant and had recruited 1,500 men. He was then given a commission in the First Tyneside Scottish of the Northumberland Fusiliers, and he went to France in 1915.

In the battle of the Somme he was shot through the arm and the thigh, and was forced to lay in the field all day. When night came he managed to crawl back to the trenches; it took him nine hours to cover 700 yards and he fainted seven times.

WHAT IS THE UKRAINE?

In the heart of the Ukrainian territory Poles and Ukrainians are closing in battle with the Bolsheviks.

"What is the Ukraine? The Poles and the Lithuanians of a few centuries ago knew well this most turbulent section over which they attempted to rule, and Imperial Russia for a long time was greatly troubled by this very unruly part of her expansive domain. The Tatars and the Turks felt its proximity because of the many raids made upon them by the wild warriors of the steppes," says Nevin O. Winter in a communication to the National Geographic Society.

"The Ukraine, or little Russia, has had a troublesome career. The wild Seythians helped to feed ancient Greece and her colonies from these same endless steppes whence Germany expected to draw sustenance. A thousand years ago Kiev was already becoming an important place. When the Saxons still ruled England, in the long ago, the banks of the Dnieper were a meeting place for many races, drawn thither by commerce. Religious differences had not yet arisen, for all were worshippers of idols. Even then a Slav people were safely established here, sowing and reaping their harvests and sending their surplus grain down the river to the Black Sea.

The name Ukraine means 'border-marches.' For centuries it was the bulwark that protected Poland and Lithuania from the Tatars, Turks, and other migrating Orientals. As a result it has had cruel taskmasters.

The native population was largely Cossacks—a wild and unruly people at that time. They were not originally a tribe, but were men who went forth into the wilderness to find freedom. The vast steppes, covered with grass to the height of a horse, within which a multitude of game lurked, lured them on.

There were Poles and Lithuanians and Russians and even Turks among them. They became marvelous shots, riders, and swimmers; their horses were famous for their swiftness and endurance. Their differences gradually blended in a unity of purpose and principle.

The Ukraine includes southeastern Russia, with the exception of the province known as Bessarabia, which partakes of the character of the Balkan States, and is peopled with Rumanians and Bulgarians. The great seaport of Odessa and surrounding country have been added to it under the new alignment.

The Ukraine does not reach much north of Kiev or east of Kharkov, but it is a large State in itself, about as large as the German Empire, with some twenty-five or thirty millions of people living in it.

The largest city of the real Ukraine is Kiev, around which national life probably centers because of the deep religious associations in connection with the shrines and many holy places. It was at one time the capital of all Russia. Kharkov is the leading commercial town in it, unless Odessa, on the Black Sea, is considered.

There is a lure about the limitless stretches of the steppes in the Ukraine. In wide, level spaces, or in gentle undulations, they reach out until sky and horizon meet in a barely perceptible line. Parts of it remind one very much of our own western prairies. In spring and summer it is an ocean of verdure, with the varied shades of green of the growing vegetation interspersed with flowers of many hues; later, in the autumn, after the crops are harvested, it becomes a brown waste of stubble and burned-up pastures; in winter it is a white, glistening expanse of snow.

The unending forest land of the north has disappeared—not suddenly, but by degrees. Most of it is treeless, however, and a feeling of sadness and almost depression involuntarily creeps upon one as he travels over the steppes for the first time.

There are not many old towns in the Ukraine. Except in Kiev and Kharkov, one will hardly find a building more than a hundred years old. No old medieval churches built up by the toil of generations of devout hands, no old chateaux of the nobility, no palaces rich in pictures will be encountered. The great majority of the towns are still big, overgrown villages.

The towns are separated from each other by enormous distances, with imperfect communication. The peasants plant their villages in the lee of some swell in the surface or by the edge of a stream in which they can water their flocks during the drought which may come.

Winchester Exchange and Tea Room will be open for business Monday, August 16.

happens the most formidable of sharks is the "man-eater" (Carcharodon carcharias). It roams through all temperate and tropical seas and everywhere is an object of dread. Its maximum length is 40 feet and its teeth are three inches long. While there are few authentic instances of sharks attacking human beings (prior to the recent tragedies), there have undoubtedly been many cases where sharks simply swallowed people who had fallen overboard, just as they would swallow any other food. How easy it would be for a man-eater to devour a person whole may be judged from the finding of an entire hundred-pound sculpin in the stomach of a 30-foot shark on the California coast. A certain man-eater 36½ feet long had jaws 20 inches wide, inside measure, and teeth 2½ inches long. This may have been the "great fish" of the scripture narrative, and it is possible that at that time much larger man-eaters existed than are now known, as sharks, teeth with cutting edges five inches long have been found on the seabottom, and these are believed by naturalists to have belonged to sharks not long dead. The phosphate beds of South Carolina yield very large fossil teeth of a shark which was related to the man-eater of the present day; judging from the comparative size of these teeth. Professor Goode thought that sharks 70 or 80 feet long must have been common.

Many years ago a Norwegian bishop in a learned paper brought to the attention of the scientific and theological worlds a shark which he attempted to prove must have been the "great fish" that swallowed Jonah. This was the basking shark (Cetorhinus maximus) known also as the elephant or bone shark, which is an inhabitant of the polar seas, but occasionally strays as far south as Virginia and California, and in former years was not rare on the United States and British coasts. The species has the habit of times of collecting in schools at the surface and basking in the sun with its back partly out of water. It reaches a maximum length of 50 feet and is exceeded in size by only three or four animals extant. Provided with small teeth, it feeds on fishes and floating crustaceans, and is not of a ferocious disposition. It is dangerous only by virtue of its great bulk and when attacked its powerful tail easily demolishes boats. In former years the basking shark was hunted for its oil on the coast of Norway and Ireland; it was also harpooned on the shores of Massachusetts in the early part of the last century, and as many as 12 barrels of oil were sometimes obtained from the liver of one shark.

There are many records of basking sharks 25 to 38 feet long from the coast of New York, Massachusetts, and Maine, but the species has not been common in our waters in recent years.

The largest of all fishes, the largest of all cold-blooded animals and the largest of all existing animals, with the exception of a few species of whales, is the whale shark (Rhincodon typicus), originally described from Good Hope, but now known from India, Japan, South America, Panama, California, and various other places, a small specimen having been obtained on the Florida coast a few years ago. This shark has a very broad and obtuse snout and an exceedingly wide mouth armed with numerous minute teeth; the dark-colored body is marked with many small whitish spots. The species is stated to attain a length of 70 feet and is known to exceed 50 feet. Notwithstanding its immense size, however, it is harmless to man unless attacked, and feeds on the small creatures for which its teeth are adapted. Its huge bulk makes it dangerous in the same way that a whale is dangerous. Years ago it was reported that the sperm-whale fishermen at the island of Saint Denis, in the Indian Ocean, dreaded to harpoon a whale shark by mistake, and stories are told of a harpooned fish, "having by a lightning-like dive exhausted the supply of rope which had been accidentally fastened to the boat, dived deeper still, and so pulled a pigroque and crew to the bottom."

Several surrounding places were visited by violent thunder storms Sunday afternoon, much damage being done by lightning at Lynn and Swampscott. Winchester sweltered in one of the hottest days of the summer, no rain falling here.

Potato Lice and Potato Leaf Hoppers

We have repeatedly called the attention of home gardeners to the likelihood of serious damage from aphids on potatoes. They have been very bad in sections, particularly in the dry sections. The apple men throughout the season have been experiencing serious trouble with leaf hoppers, which ordinarily frequent potatoes more than they do apple trees. The first brood this year appeared to be worse on apples than on potatoes. The second brood, which is now making its appearance, appears to be worse, to date, upon potato foliage than upon apple foliage.

The apple men have been making a study of the control for this trouble and feel that they have nothing entirely satisfactory. The history of this insect has been that it becomes bad, and when it is bad its natural parasites increase in numbers rapidly, so that it is only a short time before the parasites become so numerous that they clean up the leaf hoppers.

The men who are trying spraying find that it is necessary to use the nicotine sulphate or Black Leaf 40 about double the usual strength, and add a lot of lime water, which is made from slaking caustic lime. This liberates the nicotine quickly and makes the men using it sick unless they are strong users of tobacco and have become somewhat immune to the effects of nicotine. It is suggested to backyard gardeners that the best way of handling this matter is to keep the potato vines healthy and growing rapidly. This may require additional applications of quickly available nitrogen, such as nitrate of soda, sulphate of ammonia, liquid hen manure or the like.

Tomato Blossom End Rot

A lot of home gardeners are being disappointed daily when attempting to pick their first few ripe tomatoes and finding them of no value, because of a rot on the blossom end. This trouble is known as blossom-end rot and is likely to be more serious upon the first few tomatoes upon dry land and upon vines that for some reason or other are not in as good a physical condition as they should be. The proper thing to do is to remove these tomatoes, bury them or place them in the garbage can. In other words, they should not be permitted to stay upon the plot adjacent to the tomatoes.

Backyard Strawberry Beds

Strawberries and all other berries, as a matter of fact, have been so very high this year that many home gardeners are making plans to put in small plantings of strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, currants and the like. Those who want to put in strawberries may gain a little time by making their plans now to put in pot-grown strawberries within the next 15 days. The land in the meantime should be thoroughly prepared and heavily fertilized. It is well always to use a piece of land that has been cultivated for more than one season in order to prevent trouble in the future from white grub. It is rare that a commercial grower or backyard gardener ever overfertilizes the land upon which he contemplates growing strawberries. Use fertilizer or manure in liberal quantities and then use as much again, if one wants good results.

Save Winter Squashes

Quite frequently now in gardens where winter squash are being grown can be found vines here and there that are dying. If an examination is made it will be found that the trouble is in the main stem where it emerges from the ground. If the stem is slit up and down a small, white vine borer will be discovered. The damage made by this animal can be quite largely done away with by covering the vines at the different joints where leaves come out with dirt. Root systems will develop at these joints which will carry the vine, even though the stem is entirely cut off where it comes from the original root system.

European Corn Borer Quarantine

The larger share of Middlesex County is in the corn borer quarantined area. Home gardeners will do well to become familiar with regulations concerning this quarantine. Complete information can be obtained by addressing L. H. Worthley, Tremont Temple Building, Boston. In effect, the regulations are such that any home gardener should be careful in giving away corn or other vegetables from the garden to persons who propose to carry it into homes outside of the quarantined area. In other words, the government is endeavoring to hold within the quarantined area all forms of vegetables and fruit which might possibly carry the borer.

WOMEN THE FINANCIERS OF THIS FORGOTTEN KINGDOM

Along busy highways of ocean travel, land links between Japan and Formosa, not far from China's coastwise routes, yet visited by only two or three white persons a year—such are the Loo Choo (Luchu or Ryukyu) Islands.

"Loo Choo is a land full of the indescribable charm and mystery of the Orient, but replete with the pathos of a vanishing race," writes Roy Chapman Andrews to the National Geographic Society.

But, although it has been 40 years since there sounded the death knell of this little hidden kingdom, Loo Choo is not yet Japan. The traveler realizes this even before he lands. The pine-clad, ton-dotted hills which form the background of the strange little cities of Naha and Shuri have an unfamiliar look and the pretty tiled roofs of the diminutive houses, just visible over the surrounding array stone walls, give fascinating hints of what may be found beyond their lacquered gateways. On their entire 900 square miles of land only one white man, an American missionary, is resident.

With our money changed we began to look about to spend it, for Loo Choo is the home of the real lacquerware famous throughout the world. Much of it is exported, and the finest of the boxes, bowls, trays, tables, etc., which are in daily use in Japan and China and sold to tourists throughout the Orient, come from the little city of Naha, or Shuri, its neighbor across the hills. The lacquerware, when first made, is a dull brown, but really first-class pieces improve with age and soon change to a beautiful vermilion, becoming brighter and clearer the longer they are used.

When we came to buy lacquerware we were greatly surprised to find that bargaining had no place in Loo Choo. Without exception, the first price asked for an article was the one for which it was sold. Never in the Orient had we met with a similar condition.

It was interesting to find, also, that the women of Loo Choo conduct all business and have charge of everything pertaining to money—with the single slight exception of spending it. The market, where in the morning trading for vegetables and fruit is carried on, resembles a suffrage meeting place, for among the crowded mass of humanity not a man is to be seen.

The straight backs and erect carriage of the Loo Choo women are due to the custom of carrying everything upon their heads. No matter what the object, be it large or small, it is perched upon their thick, black hair, and off they walk in the most nonchalant manner, apparently paying not the slightest attention to keeping the object in place.

The most striking thing about Naha and Shuri are the high stone walls which surround the houses. These walls are generally covered by a small banyan tree, called the goin maru, growing like a great vine and sending out numberless roots which sometimes reach a hundred feet from the original stem.

These also serve as a hiding place for a snake, a kind of adder, six or seven feet long, which is the curse of the islands. Their bite is generally fatal in a few hours, and many people are killed by them each year.

MIGHTY CHANGE IMPENDING

Editor of the Star:

Prohibition will not bring the millennium—at least, not today. It will present its difficulties and its problems. But law-abiding people, whether they like it or whether they do not, will accept the situation, and will remember that, after all, progress in human affairs can only be obtained by change. Prohibition, if it is enforced, will bring about a mighty change in human affairs. Let us hope that the progress of the human race will be correspondingly as great.

In order to acquaint the public with the general telephone situation, and some of the reasons for delay in completing new installations—chief among which is the difficulty of getting the numerous kinds of necessary material—we have prepared a series of announcements of which this is the second.

Reserve Telephone Equipment Exhausted

We used to engineer our plant—switchboards, cables, circuits, and all necessary parts thereof—in anticipation by several years the growth of population or manufacturing in any particular place or region. Consequently, we were always able to meet promptly demands for service, no matter how large or unexpected.

Hence, during the war period we were able to give service to a rapidly increasing list of subscribers, although we had little priority consideration as a necessary industry and were compelled by government restriction to abandon our normal programme of advance construction.

When the war ended, however, these reserve facilities had been almost wholly preempted by the growing demand. Our usual reserve of central offices, switchboards, power plants, conduits, cables, manholes, pole lines no longer existed. We required rubber, paper, copper wire, lumber, silk, clay, glass, porcelain, paraffin, and many other things not ordinarily associated in the public mind with telephone service, in order to restore our reserves.

Every business man will realize the difficulty experienced in getting some, if not all, of these things. We had to get all, or devise some efficient substitute for those which could not be had.

We have installed more new telephones thus far this year than in any previous similar period of telephone history; and we could have done still more but for the exhaustion of our reserve equipment caused by general conditions of production and transportation. These are showing signs of improvement, however.

Our morale is good. Our people are earnestly desirous of giving good service and of extending it as fast as possible. Although there are many persons to whom we cannot at once give telephone service because of conditions wholly outside our organization, we are determined to meet their desires as soon as it is humanly possible to do so.

CONQUERING BUBONIC PLAGUE IN THE PHILIPPINES

Recent discovery of a number of isolated cases of the bubonic plague in the United States lends interest to a bulletin of the National Geographic Society, describing how the disease was conquered by American medical authorities in the Philippines.

"The United States drove the bubonic plague out of the Philippines as completely as it swept the yellow fever out of Cuba," says a communication to the Society.

"Bubonic plague was discovered at Manila, December 26, 1899, and slowly but steadily increased up to December, 1901.

The deaths in 1900 numbered 199, and in 1901 reached a total of 432. The disease was at its worst each year during the hot, dry months of March, April and May, nearly or quite disappearing during September, October, November, and December. It will be noted that the number of cases in 1901 exceeded that in 1900 by 200, while the number of deaths was about two and a half times as great, and the percentage of mortality among persons attacked increased from 73.4 in 1900 to 91.7 in 1901.

On account of the important part which house rats are known to play in the distribution of bubonic plague, a systematic campaign was inaugurated against these rodents in Manila. Policemen, sanitary inspectors, and specially appointed rat-catchers were furnished with traps and poison, and both traps and poison were distributed to private individuals under proper restrictions. A bounty was paid for all rats turned over to the health authorities, and stations were established at convenient points throughout the city where they could be received. Each rat was tagged with the street and number of the building or lot from which it came, was dropped into a strong antiseptic solution, and eventually sent to the Biological Laboratory, where it was subjected to a bacteriological examination for plague.

Buildings in which plague rats were taken were treated exactly as were those where the disease attacked the human occupants. The bacteriological examination of rats enabled the board of health to follow the pest into its most secret haunts and fight it there, and was the most important factor in the winning of the great success which was ultimately achieved.

With very few exceptions, there was no recurrence of plague in buildings which had been disinfected and renovated. As center after center of infection was found and destroyed, the percentage of diseased rats began to decrease, and in January, 1902, when, judging from the history of previous years, plague should have again begun to spread among human beings, there was not a single case. In February one case occurred. In March there were two cases as against 63 in March of the preceding year, and before April the disease had completely disappeared."

SANDY THE PLACE

Visit Sandy Beach on Mystic Lake if you want a thrill. Rescuing drowning bathers goes on at this place daily and the news of the doings there is rapidly replacing political and world events in the Boston papers. The record thus far of Life Guard Raymond Wallace is at eighteen—and his record is followed by numerous others.

According to the list up to Monday one boy was rescued Thursday, one boy Friday, and one boy and two girls Saturday night. The weekly list runs much higher.

Notwithstanding the publicity and praise, Mr. Wallace and his sister, Miss Marion Wallace, who teaches and watches over the girl bathers, and to whom the credit of numerous prompt rescues must also be accorded, appear to be little moved over the situation. To them it is all in a day's work, and one extra rescue during the day means little. As a matter of fact it is seldom during a busy afternoon that their services are not needed on an average of at least once an hour.

They make light of their work. "It is, of course, hard to watch them all," says Marion. With over 300 splashing about in the water one would be inclined to admit her contention. "But if we could only count on some of the big boys and men giving a little help," she continues, "it would be a very simple thing to safeguard all." "The trouble is, when a kid slips off the raft or gets too far out, the rest just stand and watch him, instead of helping pull him in." "If we are not too far away from him it is a simple matter to get him out." "But if he is off any distance it is a hustle."

During the rush hours Raymond uses the skiff provided for him, keeping it just beyond the shallow water ready for any emergency. Marion remains on the beach, and while she wears her jersey she does not go into the water except when needed. With the crowd which has frequented the beach the past two weeks it has been impossible to give much of any swimming instruction.

Most of the patrons of the beach are from Woburn, and the early afternoon trains carry crowds to Wedgemere, while all during the afternoon and evening the railroad tracks are covered with groups walking to and from Woburn and Wedgemere. According to the Woburn paper it is the practice of some at the beach to throw the younger children off the raft, and it says that "the fiendish sport" will probably result in a drowning unless the Park authorities take immediate steps to stop it. The local Park board, under whose management the beach comes, has provided two pretty capable instructors and guards, and the Wallaces say that they have excellent support in maintaining order.

K. OF C. TAG DAY

Last Saturday, August 14, was undoubtedly a day of events in Winchester. Besides the usual band concert and display of fireworks in celebration of the Italian Festival, the K. of C. held a Tag Day in aid of the coming Rainbow Bazaar, to be held Nov. 8, 9, 10, for which permission had been kindly granted by the Selectmen to the committee, composed of Mrs. M. C. Ambrose, Mr. M. E. O'Leary and Mr. W. R. Benton.

From early to late a few of ladies could be seen selling their tags, and it is owing to their splendid efforts that a very substantial sum was collected. The day was in charge of the following committee:

Mrs. Frank Crow.
Miss Madeline Reardon.
Miss May Kennedy.
Miss Lucy Glendon.
Miss Josephine Glendon.
Miss Isabella McKenzie.
Miss Margarette Sullivan.
Miss Katherine Sullivan.

GIRLS TO PLAY BASEBALL

A match has been arranged for Labor Day between two baseball teams composed of girls from the Winchester Laundries, Inc., and girls forming an All-Woburn team. The match will be played at the field of the Woburn Legion. A cup is to be awarded the winning team, besides another cup for the girl showing the best all-round baseball ability.

ITALIAN CELEBRATION

The celebration of the Feast of the Assumption, carried out by members of Winchester's Italian colony Saturday afternoon and evening, proved one of the most pretentious affairs of its kind yet undertaken here. Opening with a parade in the afternoon and closing with a band concert and fireworks in the evening, the affair drew a record crowd to Winchester.

The parade started from the Italian section at three o'clock, the route being through the various streets occupied by Italian residents, and through the center. In the Italian section many of the houses were decorated in a most attractive manner.

The evening's program was a big attraction and provided great pleasure to the host of people which attended. Opening with a band concert by the celebrated General Oiaz Italian Band, and which gave a program of operatic music, it included one of the finest displays of fireworks the town has ever seen.

The attendance of automobiles was larger than that on July 4th, when what was said to be the largest turnout yet assembled on the Parkway and Manchester Field. Automobiles were parked in every available space. The entire Parkway was filled and there were as many on Manchester Field as could be accommodated.

The music was very fine, and the director, Mr. Generoso Rossi, came in for great applause. Not only was the music good, but there was plenty of it, the program continuing long after the close of the fireworks. Many people who attended stated that they had never heard better music.

The fireworks were the finest ever seen here—and the Italians have before now given some very fine displays. No two pieces were alike, and many new novelties were exhibited. The big crowd, estimated at about 7,000 persons, witnessed them with delight from start to finish. There were many set pieces, all very beautiful, these finishing with a remarkably fine piece of crossed United States and Italian flags, topped by liberty's torch. The rockets and air pieces provided thrill after thrill as they were shot off in order, smoothly and without a wait.

It is seldom that Winchester has enjoyed a more pleasing and satisfactory program, and the Italian residents are to be congratulated upon their efforts and their generosity in sharing their pleasures with their townspeople.

The affair was in charge of the following committee:

Domenico Antonio Petruzza, Capo Comitato; Bernardo Gigliotti, Vincenzo Barbaro, Antonio Gronda, Vincenzo Gigliotti, Michele Costantino, Giacomo Pantaleo, Gaetano Comita, Orazio Fiore, Giuseppe Lazzerara, Baldassaro Asaro, Giuseppe Rania.

NAMED ON UNITARIAN COMMITTEE

Twenty-one states, the District of Columbia and Canada are represented by the more than 100 members of the national committee of the Unitarian campaign announced for this fall, which William H. Taft, as honorary chairman has recruited to direct the first united denominational effort of a nation-wide character in the history of the Unitarian church. More than 25 prominent men and women of Greater Boston will serve under Mr. Taft.

The committee will be called to meet in national convention in Plymouth in October. Mr. Lewis Parkhurst of this town is one of the committee, and another member is Mr. Robert Winsor.

WOMEN MAY REGISTER

Women who desire to register for voting should understand that the registration room at the Town Hall is open for them daily. The only period between now and Saturday, August 28, when they cannot register is this Saturday, August 21.

Women may register at the Town Hall, first floor, daily from 8 to 12 and 1 to 5. No registration Saturday, August 21. They may register on the last day, Saturday, August 28, until 10 p. m.

FIRE SATURDAY EVENING

On Saturday evening at seven o'clock the fire department was called out for a blaze on Converse place in the cobbler shop conducted by Thomas O'Loughlin. The fire was largely smoke and was under a small cupboard, it being discovered by the proprietor upon his return after a short absence. The department made quick work of extinguishing it. It is thought the fire was caused by a flying match head and that it had been smoldering for some time.

REAL ESTATE NOTES

Thomas H. Barrett reports that final papers have been passed in the transfer of the property 10 Fells road to Mrs. Kathryn MacDonough of Somerville. This estate, consisting of a modern 10-room house, with over 25,000 square feet of land, was known as the Chapman place, owned by Mrs. Cora Chapman. The purchaser will occupy at once.

Mr. Barrett also reports the sale for Allie E. Davidson of the 16-room double house and 8100 square feet of land at 20-22 Park road to Henry S. Peirce of Everett. Mr. Peirce has already taken possession.

Through the same office, papers have gone to record for the sale of the property 1 Cliff street and 244 Highland avenue for Rebecca Ayer and Florence Gendron, consisting of double house of 18 rooms and about 11,000 feet of land, to Asa Kennerson of Newton, who has already taken up his residence there.

The property of James F. Butler, 28 Oak street, has been sold to Mrs. Delia Hanley of this town, papers having been passed through the office of Mr. Barrett the past week.

Mrs. Mary Halwartz of Charlestown has purchased through the office of Mr. Barrett the 18-room double house, 8 and 10 Hillside avenue, formerly owned by Addie E. Marsh and Martha G. Stone of Boston and Winchester. The transfer includes a garage and nearly 18,000 feet of land. Mr. Halwartz, who is a naval officer, has been stationed at Hingham. The family will occupy 8 Hillside avenue.

BASEBALL TOMORROW

Tomorrow should see another big crowd and a good game. With the way Winchester has been going we should pack Manchester Field every Saturday afternoon from now on.

Arlington will be here for the game tomorrow, and this game will decide that series. Satisfactory arrangements have been made all around, and we can expect to see a wild crowd of rooters on hand to help Arlington. This team went down to Hull Tuesday and beat Bayside 4 to 1, and, of course, any team that can beat Bayside on their own grounds must have been playing good baseball. In fact, Arlington thinks there is nothing to the game; only a win for Arlington.

That is a good way to feel, as it means a good game with plenty of excitement. Winchester will probably play the same team that was used at Woburn, with the exception of Hevey who has gone away for a few weeks. "Christy" will play short, with a good, hard hitting second baseman in his place. Cushing and Dale will umpire. The game will start at 3.30, and a large crowd will be here from Woburn to see this game, so early arrivals will secure seats.

AUTO ACCIDENT IN SQUARE

An auto accident occurred in the Square Wednesday afternoon when Ex-Selectman Patrick Noonan got mixed up with a Pierce Arrow coupe and an Eastern Street Railway trackman. Mr. Noonan was driving his Cadillac sedan around Knight's corner towards Woburn. He attempted to pass back of the Pierce Arrow, which was travelling west across the railroad tracks. He did not notice Patrick Connolly of Woburn, who was kneeling on the electric car track switch measuring for some repair work. He saw Connolly just in time, and in avoiding him struck the rear of the Pierce Arrow. He could not quite clear Connolly, who was struck and knocked to one side.

Both cars stopped immediately and Connolly was picked up and taken to the hospital by Mr. Noonan. He did not appear hurt, other than a little bruised. The Pierce Arrow, owned by Mr. Alfred Thomas of Worcester, had its back mud guard bent and Mr. Noonan's Cadillac escaped uninjured.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Women of Winchester, the vote is yours. The settlement of that question in this critical hour leaves neither time nor energy to waste in useless shouting on one side or sulking on the other. There is much work to be done, and done at once.

Those who have professed a desire for suffrage will, of course, use their opportunity to the fullest extent of their ability and power.

Those who have said, "I do not want the vote, but if it comes I will do my full duty," have no choice. See that your names are on the Register at the Town Hall before noon, Saturday, August 28, and be prepared to vote for the principles and parties in which you have most faith, at the primaries, September 7.

BARRY-McDONOUGH

Miss Mary Genevieve McDonough of 53 Park street, Woburn, daughter of Mrs. Delia McDonough of that city, and Mr. John Joseph Barry, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Barry, were united in marriage on Sunday evening at St. Charles Catholic Church, Woburn, by the Rev. Fr. John J. Gorman. The ceremony was performed at seven o'clock, the couple being attended by Miss Ethel F. McDonough, sister of the bride, and Mr. Francis White of this town. The double ring service was used and Master Edward McDonough, brother of the bride, was ring bearer. Little Theresa McDonough, sister of the bride, was flower girl.

This bride wore for her wedding dress a gown of white crepe with veil of tulle, caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses. Miss Ethel McDonough, the bridesmaid, was dressed in pink crepe and wore a picture hat to match. She carried pink roses.

A reception followed the ceremony, held at the home of the bride's mother, Park street, Woburn. There was a large attendance of friends of the couple and many handsome gifts of silver, cut glass and house furnishings were displayed among the tokens of esteem from a host of acquaintances. The residence was decorated for the occasion with palms and cut flowers, and the newly married couple were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Delia McDonough and Mr. and Mrs. Barry.

At the close of the reception Mr. and Mrs. Barry left on a wedding trip to New York and Washington. They will make their home in Woburn.

MARTIN-BYERS

A quiet home wedding took place on Saturday evening at the residence of Mrs. R. W. E. Leach, 32 Fletcher street, when her daughter, Miss Avis Lillian Byers, was united in marriage to Mr. Richard Alexander Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Martin of Bangor, Maine.

The ceremony was performed at five o'clock by Rev. Henry S. Potter of the Baptist Church of Arlington, the couple standing beneath an arch of white roses and asparagus fern in the living room. The wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Mrs. E. Bayne Harnett of Brookline.

The ceremony was small, attended only by a few intimate friends and relatives, the guests including Mr. and Mrs. E. Noble of Providence, R. I., Miss Alice Chase of Portsmouth, N. H., and Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Harnett of Brookline.

Miss Marion E. Martin of Bangor, Me., was maid of honor, and Mr. Archer C. Bloud of Washington, Penn., was groomsmen.

The bride wore a dress of old lace over white satin and carried a bouquet of bride's roses. The maid of honor wore princess lace over bisque colored georgette and carried a bouquet of premier roses.

A reception followed the ceremony from five-thirty to seven-thirty, the couple being assisted in receiving by their parents. The residence was most attractive in decorations of white roses, palms and sweet peas. Mr. and Mrs. Martin will make their home in Fort Fairfield, Me., where Mr. Martin is in business, following a tour through the White Mountains and Canada.

PLAYGROUND EVENTS UNDER WAY

Opening yesterday afternoon with jumping contests, the annual athletic events for the Manchester Field Playground have started for this season. Yesterday's events constituted the first preliminary contests. Today the running contests will be held, and on Friday next, August 27th, the finals in all events will be run off, commencing at 2 o'clock.

The method of holding the events this year is an innovation. By holding the preliminary events it is anticipated that the finals will prove much more interesting and will be run off in less time than has been taken in past seasons.

The events are in charge of Miss Ooris Bowman and her assistant, Miss Marion Bowman, and the boys are in charge of the Instructor at the Playground, Mr. Thomas Flaherty.

The finals will be run off in conjunction with the annual exhibition of the work done by the younger children in basketry, weaving, paper novelty work and other instruction given during the summer.

The playground will not close until Labor Day as usual.

Mrs. Frank E. Barnard, who has been stopping at Melvin Village, N. H., has returned home.

TREASURER WITHDREW FUNDS

In connection with the agitation concerning the closing of the Hanover Trust Co., the following letter is of interest to Winchester people. Previous to its receipt the Winchester Trust Co. carried a large deposit of State funds. The letter, it should be noted, was never replied to, and on March 16 the treasurer withdrew all State funds from the bank.

(Attention of the President)

Gentlemen:

Having recently been elected Treasurer of this Commonwealth, it will be necessary for me to devote the greater part of my time during the coming year in the performance of my duties at the State House.

It is also my desire to continue with my advertising business as before, but in order to do so, and for the sake of convenience, I have found it necessary to move my office to this address.

During my ten years as an advertising agent, I have successfully handled publicity campaigns for many of our leading industries, and am confident that I could be of valuable service to your bank in a similar capacity.

May we arrange for an interview at your convenience? With best wishes for a prosperous new year, I remain,

Yours very truly,
(Signed) Fred J. Burrell, A. J.

IMPORTANT PURCHASE

Winchester Laundries, Inc., Takes Over Waltham Plant

Announcement was made yesterday of one of the most important deals in laundry business in this section, when President Arthur T. Oowner of the Winchester Laundries, Inc., stated that his firm had purchased of the Glover Estate the Waltham Laundry. The Waltham Laundry is one of the older institutions, and since the tragic death of its proprietor the property has been under litigation by the widow and the estate.

The Waltham Laundry Co. recently petitioned itself into insolvency, Mr. Francis M. Carroll being appointed receiver. The Winchester firm purchased for the receiver under a court order. Under its former management, the Waltham Laundry was a very successful plant, and under the efficient management of the Winchester organization will doubtless become an important factor in the southern and western districts of Greater Boston.

The Winchester Laundries, Inc., already operates a branch plant in Lowell, where it is planned to erect a building along the most modern lines and in accordance with present-day requirements. It now plans to enlarge the business of its new Waltham branch in a similar manner.

Children from the Manchester Field Playground, 70 in number, enjoyed a truck ride to Lynn Beach last Thursday, later visiting Bass Rocks. The children were taken in two big trucks under the supervision of Mr. Thomas Flaherty, Miss Doris and Miss Marion Bowman, instructors at the playground. A very enjoyable day was spent by the entire company. Lunch was taken and eaten on the sand, and the majority of the party enjoyed a salt water dip at some period during the day.

MOVES INTO METHODIST CHURCH

The Winchester Laundries, Inc., which recently purchased the land and edifice of the Methodist Episcopal Society at the corner of Mt. Vernon street and Converse place, adjoining its plant, began to move into the church this week.

According to the agreements of the sale, the Methodists will retain the upper part of the church for worship, the Laundry taking immediate possession of the basement. Accordingly, work has been begun on a concrete passageway connecting the church with the plant, and this construction of offices for the clerical and book-keeping staff is under way. All of the laundry offices will be moved into the church, that portion of the plant which has been occupied by the offices being used for enlarged shipping room and power plant. The laundry will soon install an additional boiler.

The Methodist Society will continue the use of a portion of the church until such time as it erects a new church building on the former Pattee lot at Church, School and Oak streets, recently purchased in conjunction with William Parkman Lodge of Masons.

BUILDING PERMITS

The following permits have been issued by the Inspector of Buildings for the week ending August 19:

J. M. Pringle of Boston. Double brick garage at 47 Yale street, 21x23 feet.

Samuel Corabi of 10 East street. Wood henhouse at same address, 8x15 feet.

Winchester Laundries, Inc., Converse place. Concrete passageway connecting present office building with Methodist Church building, 7x12 feet.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

It would seem that in these days of short hours, and labor conveniences, the modern family could find time to decorate itself with flowers. The old-fashioned home with its beautiful garden, was no beauty brought with cash. Usually the busy housewife, already burdened with the imperative cares of a large family, could find time for her beloved holly-hocks and roses. And how they did glorify the simple old home here in Winchester and elsewhere! The modern dwelling may be more tasteful than the old home was; but if it gives up the old flower garden, its handsome brick or stucco or shingles are no substitute for the gay loveliness of the flowers. It does not take such a lot of time to develop a beautiful garden, and the results are a glorious compensation for the effort.

The Spectator finds in "Better Farming," a farm periodical, an article titled "War and Panic Prices" which ought to interest every Winchesterite. To quote:

"There is just complaint of the present high prices, but it may be a little comfort to know that they have been higher. I have been going over the record, which shows the prices prevailing in the years between 1865 and 1868, just following the great war between the states. It appears that cotton was $1.54 per pound, wheat was $2.16, cattle $9.50 per hundred, hogs $15.60, butter 70c, flour $23.50 per barrel, sugar 37c a pound, tea $2.10 per pound, calico 50c a yard, potatoes $5 a bushel, wool $1.70 per pound. Doubtless everybody was asking then, as now, 'Will these war prices ever tumble?' They did tumble and they tumbled fast when once they started downward. The low level seems to have been reached in the years of 1895, 1896 and 1897. An extract from a local paper of that period in Iowa has come to my desk. The prices quoted are as follows: Eggs, 7½c dozen; butter, 10c per pound; spring chickens, 5c per pound; ducks, 5½c; geese, 3c; hay, $6 to $7 per ton; steers, $3.50 to $4 per hundred pounds; cows and heifers, $2 to $2.50; hogs, $2.50 to $2.85; sheep, $2 to $2.50; Corn appears to have been worth 15c to 17c per bushel; wheat, 40c; oats, 11c; potatoes, 9c to 12c per bushel; wool, 11c per pound. Horses were sold for $5 to $25 each for unbroken westerners, others from $20 upwards, but it took a good one to bring $100.

The prices must have been discouraging to the farmer, but he had some consolation in the fact that he could buy a pair of overalls for 35c, suspenders for 9c two flannel shirts for 45c, shoes for $1.50, ladies' fine shoes $2, a pound package of coffee for 20c, 18 pounds of granulated sugar for $1 and a sack of flour for 95c."

The chief instruction that the foregoing figures impart, both high and low, is this: conditions today will not be the conditions tomorrow. No one desires the post-war prices of 1895 nor those of 1920 to continue. Neither do we desire the panic prices of 1897. There must be and will be a fair medium which will grant to the producer a fair return for his investment and labor will give the consumer in Winchester and elsewhere a chance to live without mortgaging his next year's salary.

A Winchester man praising the postal service admits that there "may be isolated instances of delay." Why there "may be"? There have been, there are, there probably will be.

A Winchester man complains that women today put on too much style. "Even the high school girls can't study as they ought to," he says. "All they can think of is style, moving pictures and 'steadies.' If they could only see themselves as others see them! Some of them look like skinned ducks more than human beings, with their paint and powder, half naked, half upholstered in a pompadour style and done up in a bundle."

The mothers are to blame. They allow their girls too much liberty. No man wants to support a girl who goes in for style exclusively.

The Spectator.

BASEBALL

 Winchester Wins Second Game of Series at Library Park Before Large Crowd.

By Jack

 We played the second game of the series at Woburn Saturday, and as in the previous contest we were the victors by another close score, 1 to 0.
 We scored this run in the opening inning by three fine hits, one of which was good for two bases. After that it was impossible to get any kind of a at short accepted eldo Fi fifth drive through the infield Weafer had behind him. Cadigan at short accepted nine chances without an error, while Harris at third and Hillis at second were not much behind.

 This had to be so as we were hitting Weafer hard all the afternoon, and the least crack in his defense
 would spell a bad defeat.

 Davidson pitched cool ball and was well supported by his team; Sullivan was the only man to make an error,
 and that on a throw from Davidson.
 P. Walsh in right field has been credited with another error, but most of the crowd were inclined to give McQuinn a hit for his drive.

 One of the largest crowds that ever saw a game in Woburn witnessed the contest, and Manchester Field won't be any too big when we play the third game here here Saturday afternoon.

NOTES

 3 won, 2 lost, for a percentage of .820. This is some record to be proud of.

 Winchester was well represented at the game. Even the parade here failed to keep the crowd home.

 This game at Woburn also attracted a large crowd of out of town fans that came in autos and trucks from all directions.

 The game was run off in quick time, requiring only one hour and a half to play it.

 The game also was free from arguments, except when Weafer and Mc-Quinn would try to get away with something.

 Weafer, when he was called out by Hardy on strikes, threw his bat with great force against the stand.

 This was a signal for the crowd to get after him, and they surely did boo and "ride" him during the rest of the game.

 McQuinn also made a foolish attempt to make the umpire look in the wrong when he was called out at second base standing up. There is no excuse for such an exhibition, especially when the play is not even close.

 In the first inning, "Christy" tried to steal second, which he did successfully, but in sliding into the bag, Hillis' foot was caught under him and as "Christy" moved up to let Hillis get out of the way he took his foot off the bag and was called out.
 That was the reason for the umpire's change of decision. "Christy" says the next time he will sit there for a week instead of being a good sport.

 We had two new players in the lineup, Mulcahy in left and Walsh in right fields. Walsh is rated as a fine player, being an especially fine first baseman, while we all know what Mulcahy can do, and what a fine raception he got from the crowd there.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING

August 16, 1920

 The Board met at 7.30 p. m. Present: Messrs. Kidder, Blackham and Dolben.

 The records of the meeting of August 9 were read and approved.

 Warrants were drawn for $3,556.61
 and $1,730.65.

 Licenses, 1920: Common Victualler: A license of this class was granted to Mr. A. Miles Holbrook for the purpose of conducting a Community Kitchen. This license, approved by the Chief of Police, is effective until May 1, 1921.

 State Elections (Primary Tuesday, September 7, 1920): Word was received that all the election officers recently reported by the Board to serve at the State Primary would be able to serve with one exception, Mr.
 Kenneth M. Pratt being the one who would be unable to serve. The Board under suspension of its Rule 4 appointed Mr. T. Price Wilson, Republican, to serve in place of Mr. Pratt.

 Pole Locations, 1920 (Yale street):
 A petition was received from the Edison Electric Illuminating Co. of Boston, asking permission to erect and maintain four poles with the necessary fixtures and wires thereon as follows: Yale street, southerly from Wildwood street, four poles. The Board voted to hold a hearing in regard to this matter in the Selectmen's Room, Town Hall Building, at 8 p. m.,
 August 30, 1920.

 Board of Survey: As advertised, the Board held a hearing at 8 o'clock p. m.
 in regard to the petition of Bonelli-Adams Co. (by Parker Holbrook) for the approval of a certain plan accompanying said petition for the location and construction of Stone Briar road, beginning at Rangeley road and extending southeasterly about 335 feet, as shown on said plan. Present at the hearing were Mr. Arthur N. Holcomb, of the Ginn Trustees; Mr.
 Preston Pond, chairman of the Planning Board; and the Town Engineer.
 Objections were raised to this plan by the Town Engineer, Mr. Pond and the Board, as they felt that if this lay-out was approved it should also include laying out a street through to Bacon street. Mr. Holcomb, of the Ginn Trustees, stated that it was the intention of the present Ginn Trustees to eventually lay out such a street, but that he was not prepared at the present time to say when this lay-out should be made. He said also there was a mistake made in the name of the street on the plan. The Board voted to disallow the petition, and the Town Engineer was instructed to talk with Mr. Holcomb, and suggest to him that a plan be submitted which would show a street through to Bacon street.

 Madison Avenue: A letter was received from W. E. Beggs, asking the Board to reconsider its action in regard to reducing the width of Madison avenue. As the Board at its previous meeting voted to leave Madison avenue at its original width, this letter was ordered filed.

 The meeting adjourned at 10.30
 p. m.

Your Gas Meter Is More Accurate Than Your Watch

 Put one hundred of the best watches against one hundred gas meters in a crucial test for accuracy, exposed to the same varying conditions of heat, cold, humidity, and the meters will win out every time.

 All things considered, the gas meter is one of the most accurate measuring instruments in use today.

 Like the registering turnstile in baseball parks, railroad stations and fair grounds, the meter will not operate unless something passes through it. The mechanism is not set in motion and the indicator hands cannot move except as more or less gas passes through the meter and makes them move.

 Before a meter is set in your premises, it is thoroughly tested and proved for correct registration by your gas company, or, in certain sections of the country, by meter inspectors employed by the city or state. These inspectors are your trusted representatives and they place an official seal upon the meters, thus certifying to their accuracy.

 It is interesting to know that the original mechanical principles adopted in 1844 for the correct measurement of gas still persist. Hundreds of inventors have endeavored to get something better, but they have improved on details only.
 Today the meter stands as the survival of the fittest. If a more perfect device could be obtained, your gas company would promptly adopt it.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

If we were all as good as we advise others to be, heaven would be on earth.

This is a hustling age and the modern lunch counter will help you to hurry through.

You can't always tell what your neighbors think of you by what they say.

A man never realizes how insignificant he is until he attends a suffragette meeting.

It isn't always love that enables a married couple to get along, sometimes it is common sense.

Some of us at least will welcome the mechanical telephone operator. It cannot detract from present service.

Have you noticed the minute details of the daily rescues at Sandy Beach? There appears no lack of rescuers, and if the season lasts long enough every boy at the beach will have probably had the opportunity to figure as a rescuer or victim.
It seems to be the coming popular sport.

The Town of Winchester is indebted to its Italian residents for one of the finest programmes of music and fireworks it has ever enjoyed.
The thanks and congratulations of all our people are extended to them.
Among themselves, asking no outside assistance, they furnished a program of which any place should be proud.
They deserve due recognition of their successful efforts.

Sandy Beach at Mystic Lake is again in the limelight. Opened this year by town authorities, primarily for the use of Winchester boys and girls, it has become the most popular bathing resort in this section, and local children at present number but a small percentage of those who use the place. For a number of years, until the water became too foul, the Metropolitan Park Commission kept Sandy open for bathing, first a regular officer and later a life guard being stationed at the spot during specified hours. At other hours no one was allowed in the water. This year, Winchester, blessed with an abundance of water for swimming, made an attempt to open the beach under the supervision of the local Park Board.
The place immediately developed into a resort which was frequented by more outsiders than local children.
Not only the children but many men and women are using the place daily and nightly. Sandy Beach, being a part of the Metropolitan Park system, is open to residents of the State, and any resident who wishes is free to enjoy its privileges. Bathers frequent the beach from Woburn, Stoneham, Somerville, Melford and Arlington.
The closing of Horn Pond in Woburn has added to the attendance largely during recent weeks. The original purpose of the Town appears to have been swept away, and at present Winchester is maintaining the beach for the Metropolitan Commission. The regular hours provided by the Town are ignored, and bathing goes on at all times, with some of the largest crowds present at times when no protection whatever is provided. Winchester not taking it on itself to enforce its rulings. It would be a pity to close this beach, which affords an opportunity to the stifling heat to so many, especially children. On the other hand many are questioning the advisability of the Town's maintaining the beach.
It does not appear safe either, to have such a large crowd of bathers entirely unprotected at other than bathing hours. If this place is suitable for bathing the Metropolitan Commission should maintain it. It appears needed and certainly affords relief and pleasure to a very large number of people. According to recent reports the local Park Board is to make another effort to open a swimming place on Wedge Pond, and this matter will probably again come before the Town at the annual meeting. Meanwhile it is said that the Town's supervision will continue through this season at Sandy. As first opened for the benefit of the younger children, Sandy beach proved an ideal spot, but with the arrival of older boys, men and women, it has become considerably changed in its character and should receive the attention it warrants.

Republican Women So Designated in Letter to Whitfield Tuck

The following letter has been received by Whitfield L. Tuck from Harriet May Mills, who evidently does not hold those of her sex who vote
the Republican ticket in very high esteem, to say the least. Her observation of the favor of the "proletariat" for the Democrats is interesting.

Mr. Whitfield Tuck,
Winchester, Mass.
My dear Mr. Tuck:

Thank you for your congratulations on my designation as secretary of state at the unofficial convention of the Democrats. I am proud of my party and its magnanimous action in welcoming the women to the honors of the organization. It is a great contrast to the policy adopted by the Republicans.

But some women like to be ignored.
They do not even know why they are Republicans. They are like the colored children down south; they do not remember anything politically since Abraham Lincoln. My mother is much pleased with the honor given me and to all women through me. I hope to win at the polls just because I am the first of my sex to make such a run and because I want my sisters to have a chance to enter into offices later.

I sincerely hope for the sake of the country that our national and state tickets may win this fall. Men tell me there is a constant change in favor of the Democrats among the proletariat. It is most encouraging. Our candidates are of the very best in character, vision and ability.

I am glad to hear you sent a woman from Winchester to the state convention. With high hopes for our party in November, I am,

Very truly yours,
Harriet May Mills.

Dower of Somerville, Elmer Derby of Winchester, Frank Melaugh of Winchester, and Samuel Rich of Quincy.

tions on the piano and a quartet,

tributed vocal selections.

On their return from the wedding trip to Maine, Mr. and Mrs. Farrell will reside in Winchester.

MISS KATE ROWNE

Miss Kate Bowne, a resident of Winchester for the past eight years, died at her home, 5 Lewis road, Sunday, after a long illness, being confined to her bed for the last three months.

Miss Bowne was a native of Walden, N. Y. She was an aunt of Mr.
Maurice C. Tompkins of Cabot street.
She leaves two sisters, Mrs. William Denniston of New York, and Mrs.
Emma Campbell of this town. She was 64 years of age.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Howard J. Chidley of the First Congregational Church on Monday afternoon at four o'clock at the residence. Other services were held at the homestead at Walden, N. Y., on Tuesday afternoon, the remains being buried in the family lot at that place.

PRETTY OUTDOOR WEDDING

Vermont Dentist Marries Winchester School Teacher.

[Putnam, Conn., Patriot.]

One of the prettiest home weddings that has occurred in Putnam in a long time was that of Mildred Durfee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Durfee, and prominently known in Winchester as a teacher in the public schools, to Dr. George Abbott, of Bethel, Vt., which took place at the Durfee home on the Heights, Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The ceremony was performed on the veranda, which was attractively decorated with hydrangeas and daisies, by Rev. George Peck, the family minister from their old home in Rutland, Vt.
The double ring ceremony was used.

The bride was charming in a dress of white satin with veil of tulle and carried a bouquet of bridal roses and sweet peas. Her sister, Sallie Durfee, was bridesmaid, and wore a yellow or-gandie frock and carried a bouquet of Orpheus roses and bachelor buttons.
Little Dorothy Killen from Flushing, N. Y., a niece of the bride, was flower girl. She also was gowned in yellow organdie. The best man was the groom's brother-in-law, Major Dwight Smith, of Stowe, Vt.

The bride is well known in Putnam and for a time was a teacher at the Israel Putnam school. The past four years she has been teaching in Winchester, Mass.

The bridegroom is a well known dentist in Bethel, in which place they are to keep house in "Gate of the Hills," the home of Mary Waller, the author.

The young couple left for a motor trip to the White Mountains and to Lake Winnepesaukee.

HARDING A CHAMPION OF DUMB ANIMALS

Senator Harding, the Republican nominee for the presidency, and Mrs.
Harding, we are told by a mutual friend, are greatly interested in humane work, lovers of animals, always ready to champion their cause. Should they become the occupants of the White House, we are assured that any humane legislation in Congress would find in them loyal advocates. It may be they have come "to the kingdom for such an hour as this."—From Our Dumb Animals, August, 1920.

ber.

THE CHAPLAIN RELENTED

The chaplain was a Scotsman, who resented any innovation in the service. A generous member of the congregation, thinking it would be desirable to have the lessons read from a lectern instead of the prayer desk, presented the church with a handsome brass one in the form of an eagle.

The minister, however, did not take kindly to it, and declined to use it the first morning, but towards evening he relented somewhat, and at the close of the service he astonished and entertained his congregation by giving out the following: "I give notice that next Sabbath the word of God will be read from that burlap."

HOW SUGAR MADE CUBA A WORLD ELDORADO

Sugar, like shoes, we once took for granted. Now procuring enough for the preserving season may be a problem, and sugar "spuk cases" are not uncommon in lands where the supply is rationed.

Writing to the National Geographic Society, William Joseph Showalter says:

"With a sugar production nearly doubled, and prices more than doubled since 1912, one can readily see why Cuba is the world's Eldorado of 1920, and why sugar is its king."

The imagination is almost overpowered in attempting to comprehend the vast proportions of the sugar industry of the island as it exists this year.

The cane produced is of such tremendous volume that a procession of bull teams, four abreast, reaching around the earth, would be required to move it. The crop would suffice to build a solid wall around the entire two thousand miles of the island's coast line as high as an ordinary dwelling house and thick enough for a file of four men to walk abreast on it.

The sugar extracted from this cane would load a fleet of steamers reaching from Havana to New York, with a ship for every mile of the twelve hundred that stretch between the two ports. The great pyramid of Cheops, before whose awe-inspiring proportions millions of people have stood and gazed in open-mouthed amazement, remains, after five thousand years, unrivaled as a monumental pile; but Cuba's sugar output this year would make two pyramids, each outlasting and overtopping Cheops.

The wealth the outgoing sugar crop brings in is not less remarkable in its proportions. Four hundred dollars out of a single crop for every human being who lives on the island—a sum almost as great as the per capita wealth produced by all the farms, all the factories, and all the mines of the United States!

What wonder, then, that Cuba today is a land of gold and gems, richer than Midas ever was, converting Croesus, by contrast, into a beggar!
Sugar cane is grown by three classes of planters in Cuba. Perhaps the major part of the crop is grown by share farmers, or "colonos," as they are called. The owners of the sugar mills furnish them with a given number of acres of land to plant, and give them an agreed share of the sugar they produce.

The next class is composed of the land-owning farmers, who grow their own cane and have it ground on shares, after the fashion of the rural grist mill. The remainder of the cane is grown by the owners of the mills themselves. At some central the "administration" cane, as that grown under "central" management is known, amounts to only 4 per cent of the total; at others it amounts to 90 per

Even the share farmer, at pre-war prices, made money. According to 'Cuba Before the World,' the official handbook of the Republic at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, when sugar was selling at 2.62 cents a pound, his share of the sugar brought him, on the basis of twelve sacks in the acre,
a return of from $46 to $51 per acre.
The return of the planter owning his land was from $56 to $61 per acre.
When one remembers that the selling price of sugar is from four to six times as high in 1920 as it was then, the size of the per-acre income today is apparent.

How much net profit the cane-grower reaps at 1920 prices is hard to estimate, but that it is large will appear when the methods of cane-growing are stated. To begin with, after the first crop the planter does not have to bother with seed time for about ten years. The soil is so deep and so fertile that one planting produces ten harvests. Neither does cultivation bother him after the first season, for the blades stripped from one crop form a mulch that keeps the weeds from competing with the next one.

Think of the profits that the American farmer would make out of corn if he could get ten crops from one planting, and did not have to plow nine of them at all to keep down the weeds.

Another item in the low cost of producing sugar is the cheapness of the motive power. The cane is hauled in ox-carts. The oxen live from six to ten months a year on the blades stripped from the harvested stalks, and the remainder of the year on succulent guinea grass. Think how prosperous would be the American farmer
if he could have animal motive power requiring not a pound of grain to feed it!

Spray Vines

Cucumber, tomato, melon and potato vines should be sprayed frequently with Bordeaux mixture in order to control blights and diseases. August is the month when blight usually does its greatest damage. Many people feel that the potatoes are already infected with blight. This probably is not true because most of the potato trouble is due to dry weather and the work of potato lice and leaf hoppers. So far as reported, no phoma stem blight has made its appearance to date.

Using Up String Beans

Many home gardeners have more string beans than they care for. This is the time to can them for winter use, or else permit them to become dead ripe and use them as shell beans, or else permit them to dry and save them for seed or for baking purposes next winter.

This is one of the times in the year when beans are likely to be cheap enough to warrant canning them. The market should be carefully studied for other bargains as August is likely to be the bargain month.

Keep After Weeds

Home gardeners should be particularly careful at this time of the year in seeing to it that not a single weed is permitted to go to seed. It is easy to slight this and many gardeners do who keep their gardens in excellent condition until this period, when they permit stray weeds in rows or hills to blossom and produce seed. They produce such a great quantity of seeds that even though half a dozen plants are left in the garden, seeds enough are produced to cause a lot of trouble in succeeding years. Probably the best way to get rid of these large weeds is pull them out, permit them to dry thoroughly and then burn them in order to destroy the seed.

Saving Garden Seed

Many of the home vegetable seeds may be saved at home for next year's planting. This is particularly true of lettuce, radish, beans and the like. One should see to it, however, that the seeds are harvested from plants that have made a quick, vigorous growth and are free from disease.

from the regular Metropolitan officers.

The Town closes the beach late in the afternoon and does not have anyone there after that time, warning signs being posted to forbid bathing at other hours. This, however, does not materially lessen the number who seek relief from the heat, and far into the evening the beach is crowded. Sundays, too, see the place crowded, and to a visitor Sandy resembles to a close degree a small Revere Beach, many grown-ups now using the place as a daily rendezvous, sunning themselves on the sand and sporting in the water between times.

On Thursday a boy from Woburn by the name of Duran was rescued by Lifeguard Wallace after he had slipped off the raft. According to stories of this rescue the boys had untied the raft and pushed it into deep water. The big crowd on it keeps it partly under water most of the time, and the Duran boy, who could not swim, lost his hold and sank. Wallace noticed the raft farther out than it should be at about the same time, and rowed his boat over. He had to dive into deep water to pull the boy out, and when brought ashore considerable work was necessary to bring him to a doctor passing in his auto on the Parkway assisting. The boy was later taken to his home.

On Friday, Charles M. Duran, also of Woburn, met with a similar accident, being rescued by Wallace after he had slipped off the raft. According to report Duran and his companions had also pushed the raft into deep water when the boy lost his hold and went down. Wallace rowed his boat to the raft, but those on it were too excited to tell where the spot was that the boy had gone down. Noticing bubbles coming to the surface Wallace dived and found the boy in about 12 feet of water. He brought him to the surface and to the shore. Wallace was assisted in this rescue by Samuel Elliott and Fred N. Stevenson, according to report, and Park officer Roche aided in resuscitating the boy.

Saturday appears to have been a banner day. Shortly after the Wallace left in the afternoon Margaret Carpenter of Woburn is said to have been pushed off the raft by boys and sank. She was unable to swim and would have drowned had not John Tedesco, also of Woburn, seen her and pulled her to the raft. She was taken to shore and quickly revived, little the worse for her experience.

Later in the evening the raft again figured in a new drowning when it was untied and pushed into deep water. Sinking under the weight of its load of bathers, Marguerite Baker of South Sheridan Circle and Evelyn Millett of Providence, R. I., her guest, lost their place on its top and went into deep water. Miss Millett could swim, but Miss Baker was unable to help herself. Miss Millett's cries brought Harold Quinn of Woburn, a former U. S. Marine and pressman at the Woburn Times, to the scene, and he immediately seized the Baker girl. The Millett girl, who tried to aid her friend, became exhausted and Quinn was obliged to rescue both of them. The job was a big one and he had his hands full, no one going to his aid, although there was plenty of verbal assistance from the crowd.

He finally succeeded in freeing himself from the Millett girl and getting both to shore, where it was necessary to do considerable work to bring the Baker girl to.

Sandy Beach has been closed to swimming the past two years, being opened this year by the local Park Commission under permit of the Metropolitan Commission. The Town of Winchester employs the Wallaces as life guards and for the purpose of instructing the younger children in swimming. The crowd has, however, grown all out of proportion to the original idea, and it is not possible to give any swimming instruction.

Another rescue was effected at Sandy Beach on Monday. Two Woburn boys, 15 and 18 years of age, James H. O'Donnell and Edward F. Peterson, pulled out Wentworth Collier of Somerville. Collier was attempting to swim around the float when he became exhausted. According to report he had gone down for the second time when his rescuers appeared and saved him. He was unconscious, and Park officer Edward Roche again proved his ability at resuscitation after working over him for nearly an hour. Later he was sent to his home in Somerville.

Tuesday's rescue was figured in by two Woburn boys whose names were not known. During the middle of the afternoon one boy tried to reach the float. He succeeded in getting out to it, but was rather exhausted by his efforts, and just as he reached it the side which he grasped went under water beneath the weight of those standing on it. He got a mouth full of water and lost his hold, having sunk before he was noticed. Another Woburn boy immediately dove into the water and brought him to the surface, and with the assistance of others took him to shore. It was reported that both boys refused to give their names, although pressed to do so by Boston reporters who were at the scene.

"I Spent $1 on Rat-Snap and Saved the Price of a Hog"

James McGuire, famous Hog Raiser of New Jersey, says: "I advise every farmer troubled with rats to use RAT-SNAP. Tried everything to get rid of rats. Spent $1 on Rat-Snap. Figured the rats it killed saved the price of a hog." RAT-SNAP comes in cake form. No mixing with other food. Cats or dogs won't touch it. Three sizes, 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold and guaranteed by Central Hardware Co., Allen's Pharmacy and Richardson's Market.

In order to acquaint the public with the general telephone situation, and some of the reasons for delay in completing new installations—chief among which is the difficulty of getting the numerous kinds of necessary material—we have prepared a series of announcements of which this is the third.

New Telephone Equipment Scarce

We appreciate, and with deep sympathy, the feelings of a subscriber who has bought or leased a home in some section where, for the time being, we are without facilities, and who says to our commercial representative: "Why, you have poles and wires on the street and the house itself is wired. All you need to do is to connect us up."

We wish the solution were as simple as all that. There may be poles and wires, but every wire already assigned. There may be a cable, but not a spare circuit in the cable. There may be a spare circuit, but not another inch of available switchboard at the central office with which to connect that circuit. We have had new sections of switchboard delayed weeks in their operation because of the absence of such little accessories as ringing keys or relays.

The reason for this scarcity of telephone equipment is very simple. We couldn't maintain our usual ratio of advance construction during the war, because the government needed for war purposes the very things we needed for telephone purposes. Consequently our margin of reserve facilities was gradually absorbed by the demand.

We are short of copper wire, silk, rubber, clay, beeswax, glass, thread, porcelain, paper, paraffin, antimony, tin, shellac and other materials entering into the construction of telephone equipment because the whole world is short of these things or of material fabricated from them. Our engineers are searching the markets of the world for these things while other experts are endeavoring to develop satisfactory substitutes.

We are making progress in both directions, but it is necessarily slow because never has there been such a demand for service as at the present time. Incidentally, there has never, in a similar period, been such a fulfillment of demand.

We want to make clear to those awaiting telephone service that we realize the handicap under which they are laboring and are keenly desirous of removing it as soon as possible. We want them to understand, also, that building a telephone plant is not a matter of some poles and wire, but literally of hundreds of different kinds of material, raw or fabricated. Nevertheless the spirit of our people is not to set up this difficulty as an alibi, but rather as a challenge to their inventive genius and resourcefulness.

EAMES OUT FOR GOVERNOR'S COUNCIL

Ex-Senator Edward B. Eames of Reading is making a campaign for the Republican nomination for the Governor's Council in the sixth district that appeals to the voters of Middlesex County, party leaders say after making a trip through the county in the interest of party organization. That may be one of the many reasons why ex-Senator Eames is daily receiving numerous offers of support from party members who know him only through his excellent record at the State House.

The candidate is not a politician. He is a business man and a farmer. He was born and brought up on a farm and is an enthusiastic grower. For fifteen years he was engaged in the wholesale fruit and produce business. He is now in the wholesale and retail ice business and also a lumber operator. For a few years he was a railroad man. When he was 19 years old he was offered the position of conductor on the Boston & Maine railroad, but he declined to go into business. In Reading he was assessor for three years and superintendent of streets for as many more. His other political experience was in the Massachusetts House for two years and the Massachusetts Senate for two more. In the Legislature he was most active in the Committees on Agriculture and on Roads and Bridges. He was chairman of the latter.

LEO FRIEDE AGAIN WINS CANOE TITLE

Murphy of Union Boat Club Finishes Second

Leo Friede of New York City, international canoe sailing champion, won the national trophy again Wednesday at the annual regatta of the American Canoe Association at the Thousand Islands. His time for the race of six miles was 1h. 5m. 3s.

Friede won the first race for the trophy last Friday and the second Tuesday. The third and final race was held Wednesday over a triangular course of 1½ miles, sailed four times around. There was a very strong wind.

Hermann D. Murphy of the Union Boat Club of Boston, formerly of the Winchester Boat Club, led at the start, followed by Friede, who passed Murphy on the beat to windward. R. Armstrong of New York and Dudley B. Murphy of Lexington, son of Hermann L. Murphy, were slightly astern. Friede increased his lead on every round and beat H. D. Murphy over the finish line by more than three minutes. D. B. Murphy finished third, Armstrong fourth, F. Palmer, Hartford, Conn., fifth, and T. Coggins of Chicago sixth.

Friede has won the trophy each year since 1914, and again sailed the Mermid, with which boat he has won all previous races.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Meyer and family, touring through Maine and New Hampshire, are stopping over the week-end at the New Waumbek, Jefferson, N. H.

WINCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, AUGUST 27, 1920

PRICE FIVE CENTS

LEWIS PARKHURST

Winchester, Mass.
To the Republicans of the Sixth Senatorial District:

Governor Coolidge, in one of his many admirable papers, says: "No man has a right to place his ease or convenience or the opportunity of making money above his duty to the State."

In time of war all able-bodied men are called to the colors, and in a democracy the problems of peace are oftentimes almost as important as the issues decided by force of arms. The government is what the people make it, and its efficiency and permanency depend, to a great degree, upon the men selected to make and execute the laws.

Complaint is frequently heard that business men are so engrossed in their private interests that they will not give to the state the benefit of their ability and judgment. In the present chaotic condition of the economic life of the country it is especially desirable that men of affairs contribute of their knowledge and experience to help solve the many perplexing problems which have arisen as a result of the Great War.

The management of the affairs of the Commonwealth is a great and important business, and nowhere can that foresight, economy and common-sense which make for a successful private business find a better field for action than in conducting municipal, state and national affairs according to sound business principles, with no other object in view than to promote the public welfare.

Believing all this, as I do, I offer my services as a business man to help conduct the affairs of the State of Massachusetts in the State Senate in an honest and economical manner. I have made arrangements with my business associates, so that, if I am elected, I can give to the state my entire time, if necessary, as a duty which I owe to the community in which I have passed so many happy and profitable years of my life.

August 23, 1920.

BASEBALL TOMORROW

Tomorrow we will start on our victory road again, with Stoneham as our opponent. Our team will be as strong as any that has played here this season, and we will make Stoneham know that they have been in a ball game.

It has been several years since we have played against any team from our neighboring town, and this game is creating all kinds of interest up there. In seasons past these games were just as much of an attraction as the Woburn games, and always filled up the field with a great crowd of rooters. Stoneham has always been noted for being a good sporting town, and the way the Stoneham K. of C. team has been playing this season has kept the sport alive, and large crowds are turning out to see the games. The team is an unusually strong one, and has lost only a very few games this year. I am not sure yet whether Davidson will be here for Saturday, but I have engaged a first-class man and experienced pitcher who can be depended upon to deliver the goods. Sullivan will catch with a first-class man on first base. A new shortstop will be on hand, with Christy back at his old place on second, and another hard-hitting outfielder has been secured. With these changes in our team we will not be much afraid of Stoneham or any other team. Get your seats early, as there is bound to be another big crowd.

Stoneham will line up as nearly as possible, also Winchester:
Stoneham—F. Logan or Sweetman, pitcher; White, catcher; Donovan, 1b; G. Cogan, 2b; J. Cogan, ss; Quinlan, 3b; Sewell, lf; Hamill, cf; Conway, rf.

Winchester—Davidson or Fitzgerald, pitcher; Sullivan, catcher; Walsh, 1b; Christoforo, 2b; McCarthy, ss; Nelson, 3b; Mulcahy, lf; Mack, cf; Quigley, rf.

Mrs. N. M. Stinson is a guest at Hillsdale Farm, Jefferson, N. H.

CAMP WINCHESTER

Report to Parents and Friends

We are encamped on the shores of Great Heron Lake, in the town of Plymouth, though 14 miles from the business section of the town, 3 miles from Sagamore and Cape Cod Canal. There are ten boys in camp—Alden Reed, Richard Clark, James Woolley, Lawrence Hallock, Leslie Stuart, Malcolm Stuart, Nelson Bennett, Lars Sandberg, Robert Jennings and Edwin Howard.

The schedule of camp life is as follows: First call, 6.30; calisthenics and morning dip, 6.40; reveille exercise, 7.00; breakfast, 7.15; inspection, 9.00; work hours, 9.00 to 11.00; swimming, 11.00 to 12.00; dinner, 12.30; rest hour, 1.00 to 2.00. Hours from 2.00 to 5.00, baseball, fishing, boating, hiking, etc. Retreat, 6.00; supper, 6.30. Story-telling, camp fires, and scout craft in the evening. Lights out at 9.15; quiet at 9.30. The boys have rapidly swung into line in following this schedule, and their physical condition is in all cases excellent. No colds or the like, though the weather has been somewhat inclement. Most boys have gained in weight.

On Tuesday a track meet of ten events was held, with all boys competing, and the points scored were as follows: James Woolley, 16; Lars Sandberg, 15½; Edwin Howard, 13½; Richard Clark, 12; Alden Reed, 11; Nelson Bennett, 10; Leslie Stuart, 7; Lawrence Hallock, 3; N. Stuart, 2; Robert Jennings, 2. The winner, James Woolley, received a silver scout medal for proficiency in swimming.

The camp would be very glad to welcome any visitors, whether parents or friends, who may care to come from Winchester.

A. E. BUTTERS.

Scout Executive, Winchester Council.

The parents of the boys who have been privileged to enjoy the camp, especially the mothers, desire to extend to Mr. Butters their appreciation and pleasure over his work and the excellent results. A number of them have visited the camp and have found the living conditions exceptionally well cared for, the food (cooked by Mr. O'Brien) especially good and wholesome, and, what is always important, every boy having the time of his life.

HARDING AND COOLIDGE AT BRAVES FIELD

Harding and Coolidge day at Braves Field, Boston, next Saturday afternoon, August 28, under the auspices of the Republican League of Massachusetts.

Governor Coolidge, Senator Lodge, and Congressman Patrick H. Kelley, of Michigan, will be at Braves Field and deliver the first real Republican campaign opening speeches in Boston and New England.

From all over the state Republicans are sending word that they will be present on this, the greatest event of the campaign, to hear the Vice-Presidential candidate, the leader of the Republican party in the United States Senate, and the great orator from the Middle West discuss the issues of the campaign.

One feature, never before seen or heard in Boston, will be the employment of voice magnifiers, or electric megaphones. These wonderful instruments were first used in the great Colosseum at Chicago at the Republican National Convention. This will be the first time the voice magnifiers will have been used at an open-air mass meeting. Every word spoken by the orators will be heard in every part of the great Braves Field grand stands.

Tickets of admission to Braves Field for next Saturday can be had by writing to the Republican League of Massachusetts, 333 Kimball Building, Boston, or telephoning to Fort Hill, 5540.

Unlimited space for parking automobiles is guaranteed all visitors to Braves Field next Saturday afternoon.

SCHOOL NOTES

The public schools will open as usual on the Wednesday following Labor Day, September 8, 1920. Pupils four years and nine months old will be admitted to the Kindergarten, and pupils five years and nine months old will be admitted to the first grade.

As there will be no first or second grade at the Gifford School this year, all pupils from this district attending grades one and two will go either to the Mystic or Highland School. Mt. Pleasant street will be the dividing line; pupils living on Mt. Pleasant street will go to the Highland School.

Pupils who have been assigned to grades three and four at the Mystic School will go to the Gifford School. Pupils who have been assigned to grades three and four at the Highland School will also go to the Gifford School.

No report has yet been received by the school authorities from the United States Bureau of Education on the survey made by the Bureau last May. A preliminary report showing the general conclusions of the survey commission, and outlining tentatively recommendations for a building program, was expected in July. The Superintendent of Schools has written the United States Commissioner of Education, requesting him to forward this report as soon as possible.

More than the usual amount of painting has been done on the school buildings this summer. The interior walls and ceilings of the Mystic School, the Highland School, the Wadleigh School and about a dozen rooms in the High School have been repainted. The exterior of the Gifford School has been repainted, and it is planned soon to repaint the Rumford and Chapin buildings. A new chain has been laid and fence built on the east side of the Rumford School. About $1200 worth of new playground and gymnasium apparatus has been purchased, and is ready to be set up at the different school buildings.

Mrs. Ethel N. Jewett, principal of the Prince School, has resigned her position, to take effect September 1. She is to take the principalship of a grammar school in Portsmouth, N. H. Mrs. Jewett has been principal of the Prince School for the past three years.

Miss Anna S. Dewhirst of the Gifford School and Miss Marjorie H. Davenport of the Wadleigh School have both resigned their positions, to take effect September 1.

ITALIANS IN FIGHT SUNDAY NIGHT

The Italians on Swanton street furnished considerable excitement Sunday night, when four of them, two being Boston visitors, engaged in a quarrel in which razors and knives figured to the extent of cutting up two of them quite badly. The argument is reported to have started when one of the visitors made a disparaging remark concerning the town of Winchester. A local resident resented it, and trouble followed.

Officer Donaghey was notified that there was trouble near Quigley court and when he arrived there was a big crowd, all thoroughly angry. He arrested Alberto Fiore of Boston, Domenico Dellaventura of Quigley court, both of whom were bleeding badly from various knife and razor wounds. They were later charged with assault and were taken to the Winchester Hospital, where they were patched up.

In addition, Officer Donaghey arrested Anthony Juliano of 22 Spruce street and Salvatore Fiore of 4 Holland street for creating a disturbance. They were not cut.

A number of women about the scene fainted when they saw the wounded men, who presented a gruesome sight, covered as they were with blood.

In the Woburn court Monday morning the case was postponed until this Friday.

PLAYGROUND FINALS TODAY

Preliminary events for the annual closing sports on the Manchester Field Playground were run off last week in running and jumping contests, the winners securing places in the finals to be held this Friday afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock.

The idea of running the preliminaries on two days previous to the final events will undoubtedly cut the time in running the actual program to proportions which will make the event of interest. In previous years much time has been taken up with heats, so that the sports have been rather long drawn out.

Last Friday afternoon the second series of preliminary races resulted as follows:

Potato Race, 1st heat—Alice Bennett, 1st; Kathleen Valley, 2d. Second heat—Dorothy Kindred, 1st; Mary Lehman, 2d. Third heat—Dorothea MacKenzie, 1st; Elizabeth McFeeley, 2d. Fourth heat—Annie Chitel, 1st; Marion Hanlon, 2d. Fifth heat—Margaret McKee, 1st; Ruth Snodgrass, 2d.

Turkey Race—Albert Hill, 1st; Gordon Ryerson, 2d; R. Jewett, 3d.

Egg and Spoon Race, first heat—Margaret McKee, 1st; Marion Hanlon and Annie Chitel, 2d. Second heat—M. Theistle, 1st; D. McFeeley, 2d. Third heat—M. Bennett, 1st; K. Valley, 2d. Fourth heat—R. Snodgrass, 1st; D. MacKenzie, 2d. Fifth heat—D. Kindred, 1st; E. Mullen, 2d.

75-Yard Dash, first heat—H. MacKenzie, 1st; A. Chitel, 2d. Second heat—M. McKee, 1st; K. Valley, 2d. Third heat—I. MacKenzie, 1st; M. Lehman, 2d.

High Jump, 2ft., 2in.—Alice Bennett, 1st; Elizabeth McFeeley, 2d. Dorothea MacKenzie, 3d.

High Jump, 2ft., 6in.—Isabel MacKenzie, 1st; Annie Chitel, 2d; Dorothy McFeeley, 3d.

High Jump, 3ft., 9in.—Gordon Ryerson, 1st; Francis McKee, 2d; Francis Tansey, 3d; Granbury Lewis, 4th. Joe Callahan, 5th.

BOWLING COMMITTEE APPOINTED

President William S. Oimstel of the Calumet Club announced this week the new bowling committee appointed to handle the sport at the club this year. The committee has been made up as follows:

John H. Taylor, chairman; Walter J. Brown, secretary; J. Wahl Bond, Barton K. Stephenson, John A. Madocks.

Plans are under way already for the opening fall tournament, which will start about October 1. Entry cards will soon be issued. It is anticipated that there will be a big bowling demand at the club this fall and winter, for the sport gained immensely in popularity last season, and many new members have signified their intention of taking it up this year.

The alleys have been given a thorough inspection during the summer, and men have been at work on them all this week, getting ready for the fall and winter.

WINCHESTER YOUNG MAN APPOINTED TO NEW YORK POSITION

The many friends of James A. Cullen, well-known automobile mechanic of this town, will be interested to hear of his appointment to the position of Supervisor of the Course in Automobile Design, Construction and Repair given at the School of Industrial Arts, Mt. Vernon, N. Y. To those who know him personally, the choice of Mr. Cullen is not unexpected, as he has had previous offers to act as instructor at the Edgewood Arsenal, Maryland, and also at the Oklahoma Military Academy, which he declined.

He is a member of Winchester Council 210, K. of C., and a graduate of the local high school, where he won many admirers for his aggressive playing on the football and basketball teams. His broad experience, which includes service with some of the largest automobile companies in Boston, gives him a knowledge of automobiles which is hard to duplicate.

Mr. Cullen leaves Winchester about September 7, and he carries with him the best wishes for success of all who know him.

522 WOMEN REGISTERED

522 Winchester women have registered to vote up to yesterday noon. Town Clerk Mabel E. Stinson has been kept busy daily attending to the registration and placing the new names upon the list. Thus far 37 men have been registered during the week.

BLANCHARD-PARSHLEY

August Wedding Largely Attended by Winchester Society

There was a large attendance at the wedding on Saturday evening of Miss Esther Parshley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic A. Parshley of Warren street, and Mr. Dean Blanchard, son of Mr. George W. Blanchard of Washington street. The ceremony took place at the Parshley residence, which, with its summer beauty of green lawns and attractive gardens, could hardly be improved upon as a setting. Added to this attractiveness, cut flowers, palms, and fern in the interior of the residence completed the picture to a degree to delight both the bride and her guests.

Rev. Howard J. Chidley of the First Congregational Church performed the ceremony in the parlor, the couple standing beneath an arch of rosebuds and asparagus fern. The wedding march and incidental music was given by the Blaikie Trio. The ceremony was attended only by relatives of the couple.

The bride wore a simple dress of white satin, with pearl trimming at the neck, tulle veil, caught with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. She was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Marion Parshley, sister of the bride, who has been in New York for the past two years, and now returns to make her home with her parents, was maid of honor. She wore a dress of silver green tulle and carried Ophelia roses. Mr. Sidney C. Blanchard, brother of the groom, was best man. Two matrons of honor, Mrs. Sidney C. Blanchard, sister-in-law of the groom, and Mrs. Lowell R. Smith (Lannah Locke), of Detroit, completed the bridal party. The matrons wore Nile green satin and carried bouquets of pink sweet peas and lavender.

The ceremony was performed at seven, and at the following reception, extending to ten o'clock, over 200 guests called to offer their congratulations. The attendance included not only friends from this town, but many from surrounding places, Canada, Amherst, Springfield, Lowell, Portland, Boston, Acton, Provincetown, New York, Wellesley and Detroit, Mich., being included. The gardens were used in entertaining, a marquee on the lawn opening directly into the formal garden, and being reached by an opening cut from the side porch.

The ushers were local and college friends of the groom, and included Messrs. M. Walker Jones, Charles R. Marshall and Kenneth F. Caldwell of this town, Malcolm Chesney of Pittsfield, Edward H. Goodridge of Bristol, Conn., and G. Bradford Hamilton of Portland, Me.

Mr. and Mrs. Blanchard will enjoy an auto tour through the Berkshires and the White Mountains, stopping through the early fall at Portland, Me. They will make their home here, residing at the Blanchard residence on Washington street. Mrs. Blanchard is a graduate of the Winchester High School, class of 1912, and from Jackson College, class of 1917. Mr. Blanchard, who is of the firm of George W. Blanchard & Co., was a member of Winchester High School, 1911, and graduated from Amherst in 1916.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

If politics becomes the fashion with the fair sex, we shall see an amazing interest manifested in the game. Out in Ohio, where they take politics more seriously than in most of the States, the women are holding mock political conventions, with all the lobbying for candidates, preliminary advertising and political practices (not corrupt, of course) which accompany the game. It is really so interesting that the bargain sales are for the moment neglected. Why not something of the kind here in Massachusetts? Our wives, mothers and sweethearts are going to have the suffrage privilege very soon, and The Spectator insists they can't know too much about politics, if they wish to vote intelligently.

A Winchester churchman recently returned from Washington, D. C., says a Baptist church in that city has a class of 321 members, the regular attendance being from 500 to 600. Miss Jessie Barret, the teacher, started the class in 1917. She had six members. Now more than 100 are pledged to give one tenth of their income. In 1919 they gave $3000 to the home church, $6000 to benevolent work, and $1200 for a car for Miss Atkins, Methodist missionary to Malacca. They support a girl training for work in Burma, and another in training in Louisville, who plans to go to China. Both were of the class. Six more have signed for missionary work.

Every red-blooded Winchesterite is a friend of the Boy Scouts. The Boy Scouts constitute one of the most useful and worth-while organizations that could be devised for their benefit, both physical and moral, during the formative years of their lives. The scout work appeals to the imagination of the boys, and does that much-needed thing of making really hard work seem like play. It trains boys for emergencies that may arise throughout their lives, demands of them observance of chivalry toward the weak, help for the injured, and encourages the doing of good wherever it can be done. If that alone is not worth while, The Spectator misses his guess.

But the Boy Scout learns something for himself and puts into practice in a small way the ingenuity that we all like to see cultivated in young Americans. The knowledge of woodcraft, the knowing of the trees, the animals, the handicraft of making something out of nothing, and the self-reliance inculcated by teaching a boy what to do for himself if he were thrown on his own resources, are all included in the scout training. When a boy gets to be a first-class scout he knows something that probably a great many of the men in Winchester and elsewhere who are asked to support the movement do not themselves know anything about. These trained Boy Scouts are qualified to save life and to render first aid intelligently. They have done it time and again. The scouts are useful to any community, and during the war they were the patient errand boys, the effective help in time of need of any of the larger movements they were asked to serve. They deserve persistent attention and support. They will be the better citizens as a result of the scout training.

The Spectator.

mon. Then won't you be proud of me? And he would laugh, dance me around and kiss me. Now, O God, he is dead! Only a mother or father who has a boy buried in France knows what that means.

"Now his mother wants his name on a monument and not on the wall of a building. The good mayor tries to please all. If some people want a large building, it will be nice, but please have the monument, too, for even a little child knows that a soldier's monument stands for a dead soldier. Who, in going in and coming out of that building in years to come, will remember why it was built? They won't care.

"It would be nice to have the monument stand where all the parades pass by it, where all the busy working people can go by it on their way to work, and where mothers who choke back sobs in their throats and clench their hands so they won't cry in public, can see it, can stand beside it, touch it and know their boy helped place it there. I have no grave to visit. Please give me this much.

"I wish other mothers would write to the papers and say the way they feel. I know you will print this, Mr. Editor, so I thank you now.

BASEBALLWinchester Drops the Third Game of the Season to Arlington

Before another large crowd last Saturday, on Manchester Field, Winchester lost to Arlington, 5 to 0. The Winchester team was weakened greatly by the loss of several players, who had promised to show up here for the game, only to notify me Thursday and Friday nights that they were unable to come. Up to ten o'clock Saturday morning I had no catcher, but was fortunate enough to get the man I had through a friend in Charlestown. He proved to be the best in the lot of new players. I had to use "Mack" in the box against his own will, as the pitcher who was sent to me proved anything but a "find." There has been entirely too much criticism about the loss of this game. We have won 9 out of 12 starts, and will continue to win more, but if the "fans" of Winchester cannot accept defeat as well as victory, they don't deserve a hall team. I am doing all I can to give the people of this town good baseball, and I think I have succeeded so far, and this without any recompense to myself. Therefore, all the uncalculated criticism fails to make any kind of a hit with me. Davidson went out of town to pitch a game, for which he received $40. This is entirely too much money for me to pay, as our receipts won't stand for it. I do not blame Davidson in any way, as he would be foolish not to take it; and, furthermore, with Davidson or Walter Johnson in the box Saturday we could not have won. We got one hit off Collins and failed to score a run, while Arlington managed to come across with five, helped out by some mighty poor playing of some of the alleged hall players I had on the team. I never saw a team win a game yet without hitting or getting over a run, but from the talk I have been hearing this week Winchester is supposed to do it. The trouble with most semi-pro managers is that they do not know where they are from one week to the next, as players are continually shifting. I pay as much and more to players than any team in this section, but at that I cannot get what players I want. If some of these critics had this team to manage for a couple of weeks you would see some great baseball on Manchester Field, I don't think.

NOTES

9 won, 3 lost, for 750 per cent. Watch us add to this next week. Geary, the Arlington manager, said during the week, "If we could play on Manchester Field every Saturday, there is not a team in this section who could beat Arlington." It seems as though they play beyond their speed when they play here. Collins, who faced us last Saturday, is not rated as a great pitcher, and has been batted all over the lot several times this year. Only last Wednesday South Boston got to him for 16 hits and 14 runs, beating Arlington 14 to 1. Such is baseball. "Bull" Lowe played a fine fielding game, but his eyes have gone back on him, and he does not bat as well as usual. He is a fine player to have on any team. Cadogan got away with a little questionable work when he was caught off second base. He is not rated as a "dirty" player, but he looked bad in this case. That young Grady who plays right field for Arlington is a coming player, and how he hits the ball! He is the best batter on the team. He would look good on our team. We missed Hevey at short. Christy is a fine player, but he does not like short field. Either third or second suits him better, but at that he puts up a good game, and was in there every minute. Hurley at second base was picked as one of the best interscholastic second basemen, but semi-pro and school baseball are two different propositions. Harvey, who caught the game, is a fine catcher, and only came out to help me in the pinch. He was a former International League player, and caught "Nixie" Carney in his best days. Harvey is now a representative up at the State House from Charlestown. Do you suppose the representative we have from this district would get into a uniform and help out a team?

This is not a political column, but the man we have representing us from this district is anything but a sport. He fell down on everything he ought to vote for, and don't let any one tell you different. I got stung. I voted for him last fall, but never again.

Hevey is out at Plattsburg, N. Y., but will be here Labor Day. In his first game there he scored two runs and got three hits, including a two-bagger off Selleck, the former Yale pitcher.

Carrigan, who caught here, Barrett of the Lincoln, and "Jocko" Halligan of Fordham are on the same team.

Harry Cox, Jr., who formerly filled in at first base for Winchester High, is trying a comeback, and may be seen down on the field several evenings each week. He says if he makes good he is going to try for the town team.

Sunday the Machine Co. went to Newton and beat a team from the Stowe and Woodward Rubber, 7 to 1. Charlie Flaherty pitched the game, and "Jack" Hanlon caught. We have got to have Sunday baseball here another season, as there is no excuse for not having it. There was a fine crowd at the game—men, women, and children—and in no better way could a Sunday afternoon be spent.

Jimmy Boyle umpired on the bases and behind the pitcher, alternating with the Newton umpire. Jimmy is a Winchester boy, and while the Newton players and crowd did not have a kick coming, his own crowd were telling Jimmy what a fine umpire he was, with the accent on the "fine." Three trucks and a couple of autos carried the crowd to the game from here.

"Dixie" Allen's All Stars played some team at Stoneham Sunday, and won, 16 to 2. "Dixie" got four hits, and the boys around town, knowing Dixie's hitting ability, wanted to know who did the pitching for Stoneham, or did Dixie use a shovel to bat with.

WINCHESTER PLAYER MAKES GOOD

The Plattsburg Daily Republican says of Saturday's ball game between Plattsburg and Port Henry: "Hevey (Jack) hit Selleck, Yale's star twirler, three times safely, making a two-base hit and two singles. Hevey started the big batting streak of Plattsburg in the first inning. He picked one to his liking and gave it a ride for two bases. He also started in the third inning, making a pretty single. Gilbo was the only man on Port Henry to get past second base. In the fourth Baird singled. Pape drove a hot one down to Hevey, who proved that he is the man we have been waiting for all summer. Hevey to Power to Halligan—a double play put over as a double should be put over. Score: Plattsburg 15, Port Henry 0.

Your Gas Meter Is More Accurate Than Your Watch

Put one hundred of the best watches against one hundred gas meters in a crucial test for accuracy, exposed to the same varying conditions of heat, cold, humidity, and the meters will win out every time.

All things considered, the gas meter is one of the most accurate measuring instruments in use today.

Like the registering turnstile in baseball parks, railroad stations and fair grounds, the meter will not operate unless something passes through it. The mechanism is not set in motion and the indicator hands cannot move except as more or less gas passes through the meter and makes them move.

Before a meter is set in your premises, it is thoroughly tested and proved for correct registration by your gas company, or, in certain sections of the country, by meter inspectors employed by the city or state. These inspectors are your trusted representatives and they place an official seal upon the meters, thus certifying to their accuracy.

It is interesting to know that the original mechanical principles adopted in 1814 for the correct measurement of gas still persist. Hundreds of inventors have endeavored to get something better, but they have improved on details only. Today the meter stands as the survival of the fittest. If a more perfect device could be obtained, your gas company would promptly adopt it.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Truth is stranger than fiction and equally dangerous.

Isn't it strange how we always feel sorry for people who don't like us.

A tricky man like an old pack of cards is hard to deal with.

Something is surely wrong when a man measures his means by his meanness.

Some people will go all the way through life looking for the chance to get even with somebody.

The ladies! Watch them register!

Let's see; about this time last year didn't we get a little rain?

Sammy Bench is losing its popularity.

The dark clouds of school approach on the horizon.

That sidewalk appropriation appears to be in use—and most of us do not need to be told so. Of course, we know it is not being used where you want it.

Another problem for suffrage: How will the registrars guess their ages? One official says that most of the replies to the age question are "over 21" or "over 30," etc. No doubt the vexing matter will soon be rectified.

Great efforts are being made by the Republican Town Committee to turn out a representative vote at the primaries, September 7th. You should certainly make it a point to show your interest and attend the polls. This is a day when most of us have nearly everything done for us, but there still remain a few little duties which we must attend to ourselves. One reason why you should attend the polls is your civic and national pride; another is to give your support to Mr. Lewis Parkhurst.

The matter of traffic regulations has been carried so far that there are many motorists who do not know just what they should do to comply with the law. The attitude of many police officers does not tend to simplify the conditions, either. Fortunately, the latter does not apply to Winchester, where our officers have the reputation of being gentlemen. It is interesting to see cars passing through the square take the turn around the gateposts' slant, though—and not particularly safe, likewise.

SOLVING WOMEN'S PUZZLES

Under the above heading, a Boston newspaper, the Boston Post of August 24, prints the following:

QUERIES INVOLVING DIVORCE, MARRIAGE AND THE VOTE

Puzzles of women voters' registration which have been troubling not only prospective female voters themselves, but officials of town and city boards of registrars in all parts of Massachusetts, are being solved by experts in the office of the Secretary of State. All kinds of queries involving divorce, separation, marriage and the like are being answered daily now as fast as they are asked.

Loves Man and Vote

"If a woman of foreign birth marries a citizen of the United States," one woman queried, "and later is divorced from that man, has she a right to register and become a voter?" The woman, who was made a citizen of this country through her marriage, thinks she still has a right to be a citizen. But under the law the divorce from her husband takes not only the man but the citizenship away from her. The answer to her question is "No."

Four questions asked most frequently of officials at the women's registration booth in Greater Boston, which were answered yesterday by experts at the State House, are as follows:

Q. "If a man and wife come to this country from a foreign land, and the man becomes a citizen, thereby making his wife a citizen, if they are divorced, can she register?" The answer is "No."

Q. "If a woman born in Boston, whose parents and grandparents were citizens, is now married to a foreigner, can she register?" The answer is "No."

Q. "If a woman, even though born in a foreign land, marries a foreigner who has become a citizen, and he dies, can she register?" The answer is "Yes."

Up to Registrars

Q. "If a woman is separated from her husband, who is a citizen, she residing in one city and he in another, can she register in a city different from the one he lives in?" The answer is, "That is for the registrars to decide, according to the circumstances in each individual case."

There are scores of other questions all hinging on various phases of marriage, divorce and death, but all are being answered satisfactorily by the experts in the secretary's department who are ready for more.

ARE YOU A SLACKER?

Editor of the Star:

No woman in Massachusetts eligible to vote in the next election will want to be left out in November, when the citizens of this country elect the next President of the United States. She may think now that "doubtful things are uncertain," and put off registering until the 36th State has actually ratified. She knows there will be another chance, but this is not playing the game. Massachusetts has called upon prospective women voters to register now in the month of August. Special and expensive provision for registration of women has been made in most towns and cities during August. Are women going to prove themselves slackers in their first opportunity to be cooperative in civic convenience and welfare? They offer such proof if they fail to register now. By failing now they may continue slackers and find on Election Day that they cannot take part in a great, historical event.

Women may register at the Town Hall, office of the Town Clerk, first floor, daily, from 8 to 12 and 1 to 5. On the last day, Saturday, August 28, until 10 p. m. Don't put off registration till the last day.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

A merry party of young people, having loved George Sullivan's birthday, proceeded to celebrate it in the real, old-fashioned way by surprising him at his home on Vine street last Tuesday evening.

The party was started off in the usual way, with gifts, games, music, and dancing, when one of the young ladies present surprised the assembled guests with all the paraphernalia for a mock wedding.

The principal characters were drawn for, with this result: Miss Regina Welch, blushing bride; Mr. Walter Stewart, groom; best man, Vincent Ambrose; bridesmaids, Marion Davis, Eileen Harrold and Kathleen Welch; flower girl, Olive Jones; organist, Pearl Dearborn; father of the bride, George Sullivan; parson, Frank Holman; sexton and bell-ringer, George Cummings; author and manager, Miss Mildred Hamilton.

Guests—The Misses Margarette Welch, Alice Drew, Mary Holland, Ruth Ambrose, Mr. Edward Holland, C. Sullivan, F. Murphy and W. Shaughnessy.

The bride was gowned in blue and white checked gingham with bridal veil (Scotch lace curtain), and carried a bouquet of red dahlias.

The ceremony went without a hitch with the exception of the parson's showing marked inability to read the marriage service without a telescope. However, the author of the manuscript came to his assistance, and the young couple were pronounced "unhappily married" and advised to live as far apart as possible if they wished to remain happy.

Even the dog, Rex, shared in the jubilation, for he appeared at the party all "holled up" in a brand new collar of rolled leather, presented to him by the Cummings family for the occasion, and shared the birthday honors with his young master.

Refreshments were served and at a late hour the party broke up, voting the affair a huge success.

MISS EVA DODSON

Miss Eva Dodson, a former resident of this town, daughter of Henry Dodson, died in Philadelphia last Saturday. She was 25 years of age. The funeral services were held at two o'clock, yesterday afternoon at the New Hope Baptist Church, Rev. William H. Smith officiating. The burial was in Wildwood Cemetery.

Daniel Canniff, a former well-known resident of this town, died on Monday at Revere. For a number of years he had resided in Cambridge. The funeral services were held on Wednesday.

"A physician of long experience told us the other day that, when the time comes, few men dread death itself for themselves. There seems to be some kind provision of nature which influences men to meet the inevitable end calmly and almost contentedly. What they do dread, he said, is leaving their families unprotected for, and he told of some sad scenes where men about to die repented in bitter self-reproach their failure to assure while yet there was time the comfortable future of those looking to them for material support. It was the strongest life insurance argument we ever heard."

PURRINGTON LOOKED UP WOOL

Mr. George F. Purrrington of this town, Secretary of the Boston Wool Association and a member of the firm of F. N. Perkins of Boston, was in Woburn this week in connection with the ownership of the three tons of wool found in that city. The bales of wool were found by boys near Horn Pond Mountain and near Pearl street, Woburn. It is thought they were thrown from some of the big wool trucks which pass through this section, to be later taken by confederates. Investigation revealed that in Burlington there was a place where a considerable quantity of wool had been hidden in the woods, but this had been taken away before the place was discovered. When Mr. Purrrington found that the wool was owned by the Government he concluded his investigations, he having been sent to the scene by private owners.

SUCCESSFUL LAWN PARTY

Directed solely by Mrs. J. A. Scott of Loring avenue, the lawn party and dance given Wednesday afternoon and evening at her Main street residence proved one of the most successful affairs yet held in aid of the K. of C. building fund. There was a large attendance, both afternoon and evening. The afternoon program was almost wholly for the children, sports and refreshments fully occupying the attention of the throng. In the evening there was dancing, with music by a ladies' orchestra and by a violin, cornet, piano and drum. Two dancing platforms were erected, one large one for the younger people and a smaller one for the elders. A most substantial sum was realized by Mrs. Scott.

SCOTCH FOURSOMES

Saturday afternoon's play at the Winchester Country Club was a Scotch foursomes, best ball of pair to count, one-quarter handicap of pair. Three pair turned in cards of 81 and 75, while all the scores were very close.

The summary:

C. A. Wheeler and R. L. Smith, 81-75; R. V. Neely and L. W. Bart, 81-75; J. A. Wheeler, Jr., and A. N. Bond, 81-75; A. H. Abbott and P. A. Goodale, 86-75; I. F. Hall and C. M. Crafts, 86-75.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Kelley and daughter, Miss Bertha Kelley, were the guests over the week-end of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Sanderson at their summer home at Lake Boone.

W. K. HUTCHINSON OUTING

The annual outing and field day, Wednesday, August 25, proved a great success in every way, and was participated in by over 100 employees of the five stores that are conducted by this enterprising and ever-growing company.

After an inspection of the famous Hutchinson Farm and Fruit Orchard of over 100 acres, the entire group was gathered for a photo, after which the long list of sports was run off, concluding with a twilight ball game, after which dinner was served on the lawn by a caterer. A band made up entirely of the employees of the company furnished music for dancing in the spacious living rooms of the Hutchinson residence.

Before breaking up, the band played on the lawn many old and popular airs, while the entire company sang. On behalf of the company, employees' appreciation for the hospitality of Mr. W. H. K. Hutchinson's family was voiced.

EX-SENATOR EAMES FOR GOVERNOR'S COUNCIL

Ex-Senator Edward B. Eames of Reading, candidate for the Republican nomination for the governor's council in the sixth district, enjoys the distinction of being father of the movement for the payment of $100 bonus for the world war veterans.

Early in the session of 1919 when the question of some suitable recognition of the sacrifices of Massachusetts soldiers and sailors arose, Edward B. Eames, then senator, announced that he should agitate that the sum of $100 be appropriated for each veteran, not as a payment for services nor in lieu of any government compensation, but solely as a slight recognition to those who had offered themselves in the service of the country. Ex-Senator Eames told that in granting this gratuity to the veterans, length of service should not be taken into consideration, believing that each man had taken upon himself an equal responsibility with every other soldier or sailor.

At the Republican caucus which was held to determine what action would be taken by the party in the matter of the bonus, at which all kinds of propositions were presented, a majority of which ranged from $10 to $50, Senator Eames insisted upon his original proposition of $100 to every man, and, in the face of strong opposition by cheese-paring legislators, he carried his point.

The hundred dollar bonus bill as passed by the Massachusetts Legislature stands as a monument to the determined and efficient work of Ex-Senator Edward B. Eames.

On every bill presented during 1918 and 1919 in the Massachusetts Senate favoring those in the forces of the United States and their dependents, ex-Senator Eames stood squarely for the men in the service of their country. Owing to his influence several soldiers' bills passed the Legislature which would have otherwise been rejected.

Ex-Senator Eames' sympathy for veterans dates back to his boyhood.

It is because of ex-Senator Eames' activities in the Massachusetts Senate in favor of all the soldiers' bills that he has among his most enthusiastic supporters practically every service man and his dependents throughout the district. Everywhere that ex-Senator Eames went this week he found service men ready and anxious to help him in his contest.

All He Had Left

The conjuror was giving a sleight of hand performance. One of his feats was to make a marked dollar bill disappear in the sight of the crowd, which he did successfully.

"That marked dollar bill will be found in the vest pocket of that gentleman," said the conjuror, pointing with his magic wand at Sam Lawding. All eyes were riveted on Sam, who advanced to the front, took some money from his vest pocket and said: "Boss, here's your change. Ah've had two beers and a cigar out of that dollar you told me to keep in my pocket till you called for it."

Over Forty-One Thousand Telephone Stations

Have Been Added to Our System Since January 1, '20

Notwithstanding difficulty in providing equipment, we have added to our system so far this year more telephones than there are in the combined cities of Lowell, Lawrence and Lynn.

Even in times when telephone equipment was plentiful and quickly obtainable, and the demands for our service were normal, we would have been proud of such an unusual development. Under present conditions it is by far the biggest job we have ever done. But yet applications are being received faster than we can provide for them; and today we have

Over Twenty-Four Thousand Orders Awaiting Completion

We believe that our first obligation is to protect the existing service. Before we provide for new business we must be sure to properly take care of existing business. To do otherwise would mean a deteriorated and unsatisfactory service for all.

Present indications are that it will be many months before we shall be able to provide for all the new telephone service that is desired. Meanwhile, we will continue to secure all the equipment possible and use the resourcefulness of our engineers to provide substitutes for that which is unobtainable.

We are counting upon the people of New England to recognize that under existing conditions we are doing our best to first protect their existing service and then to provide for additional service as promptly as possible.

PLAYGROUND MEET AND EXHIBIT

Fun in Games Held on Manchester Field Friday

The annual exhibition of summer work and the final closing athletic games of the Manchester Field Playground were held last Friday afternoon with a fair attendance at both. The extreme heat kept many away, but withal there were enough interested in the playground to attend and enjoy the interest of the children in their program.

Under the direction of supervisor Thomas Flaherty the other boys at the field have developed remarkably along all athletic lines, while the girls and younger children, under the supervision of Miss Martha Bowman and her sister, Miss Marion Bowman, made a fine showing both in their handcraft work and in their games.

The exhibition was along the usual lines and was displayed at the north end of the field beneath the big willows by the river. An attractive table was heaped high with baskets, embroidery, lace cloths and other useful articles, with samples of draw loom, worsted work and wall paper beads by the littles folks.

The sports were the big attraction, and Mr. Flaherty and Miss Bowman were assisted in running them off by Miss Marion Wallace, swimming instructor in Sandy Beach, who was clerk of course; Park Commissioner George T. Davidson and Fire Chief David H. McCauley, who were judges of course; Superintendent of Parks, Alex. MacDonald and Mr. T. P. Wilson, judges at finish.

The events constituted the finals in the list, the preliminaries having been run off previously. The results were as follows:

Boys' 50 yd. dash, 1 Junior Robinson; 2, Bruce Kildred.

Girls' 50 yd. dash, 1 Dorothy MacKenzie; 2, Ruth Sandgrass.

Boys' 75 yd. dash, 1 Joe Cohen; 2, Albert Hill.

Girls' 75 yd. dash, 1 Isabel MacKenzie; 2, Hazel MacKenzie.

Boys' 100 yd. dash, 1 Clarence Chamberlain; 2, Gordon Ryerson.

OUR DISTRICT FORTUNATE

To the Editor of the Star:

Our District is indeed fortunate in having as a candidate for its Senator a man of Mr. Parkhurst's standing, ability and character and it behooves every Republican voter in town both men and women, to go to the Polls next Tuesday and cast their vote at the primary for him. It is the duty and privilege of the voters of our town to see that Mr. Parkhurst receives the nomination.

COMMUNITY KITCHEN OPEN

The Community Kitchen on Church street, Winchester's latest labor saving innovation, opened for business last week, and its two auto husses have had a busy time since. The Kitchen has jumped into immediate popular favor. On Wednesday evening the dining room was opened, every table being reserved. The evening proved most enjoyable to guests and management alike. Attractive furnishings and appetizing dishes were well harmonized. Mr. A. Miles Holbrook, under whose direction the kitchen is being conducted, reports that he will soon open additional rooms to accommodate the great number of reservations requested.

JOSEPH E. WARNER, INDORSED FOR LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR

JOSEPH E. WARNER
Candidate for Lieut.-Governor

To the voters of Winchester:

While representing Winchester for three years at the State House, I came in frequent and intimate contact with all four candidates for the Republican nomination for the high office of Lieutenant-Governor, and observed them as they carried on their public duties from day to day. As a result of this thorough acquaintance, I can unhesitatingly recommend the nomination of the Honorable Joseph E. Warner, of Taunton, Speaker of the House of Representatives.

He is a young man of virile and fearless personality, great ability, sterling integrity and high ideals, and his broad and long experience in public affairs has been characterized by unwavering devotion to public interests, and a total disregard of personal ambitions when in conflict with the performance of his public duties.

It will be a tremendous loss to the citizens of Massachusetts, if Mr. Warner is not continued in public office to carry on his able and faithful service, for men of his caliber and ability are all too few in public life.

I hope that every voter, including the hundreds who for the first time will cast a ballot next Tuesday, September 7th, will see to it that Winchester overwhelmingly shows its approval of a four-score, efficient public official, by going to the polls and voting for Mr. Warner.

Yours truly,

WILLIAM A. KNEELAND

FOUND DEAD ON MASON STREET

The body of Elias W. Silver, employed at the chemical plant at No. Woburn, was found yesterday morning shortly after nine o'clock by John Bryan, an employee of Thomas Quigley, Jr., just off Mason street. The man lay in the middle of a path fully clothed, even to his cap.

He had roomed for a year or more with Mrs. R. H. Fisher at 3 Purring-ton place, and was last seen by her at 6.30 Wednesday night. When searched he had $110.88 in money in his pockets. Assistant medical examiner, Dr. Charles F. McCarthy, stated that death was due to natural causes.

The body was taken in charge by undertaker Kelley and efforts are being made by the police to locate relatives.

WOOD FOR SECRETARY OF STATE

Russell A. Wood, Candidate for the Republican Nomination for Secretary of the Commonwealth

This Cambridge man is satisfied that he has organized the best town force of any candidate in the field. He claims the bulk of support of the town committee men in the state. He is counting also upon the women's votes because, he says, he is the original Equal Suffragist among the candidates for Secretary of the Commonwealth. He made the proposition that all the men candidates withdraw in place of Mrs. Anna Tillinghast. Mr. Wood has been speaking every night and making a good impression. He is a Harvard graduate; he served three years in Cambridge City Government, three years in the Legislature, and also a member of the important commission on Economy and Efficiency. He was prominent in the old Progressive party and once received nearly 100,000 votes for the office he now seeks.

The Inspector of Buildings has issued the following permits for the week ending Sept. 2:

The fire department was called to the Winchester Hospital Sunday afternoon for a brush fire. There was no damage. On Tuesday noon box 7-51 was rung in for a bad woods fire on the west side hill. The department worked for three hours fighting the blaze, much of which was under ground. The heavy abower during the afternoon aided in quenching the fire.

HINTS FOR WOMEN VOTERS

By the Winchester Women's Republican Committee

Let nothing short of a calamity prevent your being present and voting at the primaries on Sept. 7. Selecting the right candidate is a very important and serious part of our political life, and very largely determines the success or failure of the November elections.

Since many men and women are obliged to vote early in the day in order to get to their work in Boston on time, all who can conveniently do so will help the situation greatly by avoiding the rush hours between 7 and 9 a. m.

Tuck a little good nature and courtesy in your pocket for use at the polls, and step aside for those who are feeble or old, or have trains to catch.

When asked for your name, give your own name as it appears on the register—Mrs. Mary E. Jones, not Mrs. John Jones. State whether you are Republican or Democrat, in order that you may have the proper ballot. Speak distinctly and loud enough for the checkers to hear you.

In reading your ballot, remember that the first on the list is not always the best; sometimes it is just the opposite. The names of candidates are placed in alphabetical order, and not according to merit. We have known undesirable candidates whose names begin with B, and we know an excellent Winchester candidate whose name begins with P.

Make no marks on the ballot except the cross after your choice of candidates; ballots otherwise marked are thrown out. If you spoil your ballot, hand it back and ask for another. If you spoil three ballots, you lose your vote. Read your ballot carefully before marking it. Do not hurry. You will be given all the time you need.

Do not speak to other voters while in the voting booth. When you have marked your ballot, fold it just as it was folded when you received it; give your name to the checkers just as you gave it when you entered; place the ballot in the ballot box, and the deed is done.

A committee of women will be on hand at the primaries to give women voters all necessary help and information in regard to the details of voting.

Further information, interesting and instructive literature, and every possible assistance may be had at the Women's Republican Headquarters in the center, over Allen's drug store. Members of the Women's Committee will be on hand during the following hours: Saturday, September 4, from 9 to 12 a. m.; Monday, September 6, 10 to 12 a. m. and 2 to 5 p. m.; and Tuesday, September 7, all day.

Republican women who find it difficult to get to the polls should leave their names and addresses with the committee at headquarters, or telephone 1052-M. All who can offer the service of their automobiles, please telephone the same number.

If you failed to register for the primaries, opportunity to register for the November election will be given later. Registration days in October will be announced in the Star.

BLINDED BY ACID

Mr. Paul Larson of Main street, son of Mr. Carl Larson, employed as a chauffeur by Mr. A. M. Paul of Wedgemore avenue, was badly burned in both eyes the first of the week by battery acid. He is now at the Eye and Ear Infirmary, Boston, and it is not yet known whether he will lose his sight or not.

Mr. Larson had hither trouble and was at the Bates Garage, Woburn. He was cleaning one of the terminals when a spark ignited some of the gas in a battery cell, causing an explosion and sending the liquid into both eyes. Men at the garage gave him prompt first aid treatment and he was taken to the hospital, later to the Infirmary.

COMMITTEE WRIST

A very successful whist party was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. John McNally, Eaton street, in aid of the coming K. of C. Bazaar. Prizes were awarded the following: Miss Helena M. Young, M. T. Maguire, Mrs. Corcoran and Mrs. Fisher.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. Mahoney of 281 Main Street are the parents of a son, Daniel Francis, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander F. Hammer of 24 Hanover street are the parents of a daughter.

A son was born last week to Mr. and Mrs. William J. Carroll of 23 Arthur street.

CONCERT A SUCCESS

There was a big crowd on Manchester Field Wednesday night at the band concert given under the direction of Miss Nellie Sullivan in aid of the K. of C. Bazaar. Tens were sold to defray expenses and in soliciting the funds. The program of popular airs was well rendered and the financial end a decided success.

BASEBALL TOMORROW AND LABOR DAY

There will be three games of ball from Saturday to Monday night. On Saturday afternoon we meet what will be called the All-Woburn team. This team should not be confused with the Woburn Town Team, which we play Labor Day afternoon.

There has been much discussion all the season in Woburn about the ability of players that have played and are now playing with the Woburn Town Team. There have been a great many fans in Woburn who think that there are players in that city who can be gotten together that can play a first-class game against either Winchester or Woburn Town teams, and, for that matter, beat either one of these teams. They have repeatedly asked Manager McKeegan for a game, but so far he has ignored them, and now they have put it up to me for a game.

I have never yet run out of a challenge from any team that thinks it has the class to play a good game against Winchester, and also any team that thinks it can beat us. I am out to give the people of Winchester interesting baseball, and while I do not think this Woburn team can beat either Winchester or Woburn, I am willing to take them on, as there has been a big pressure brought to bear on me to run it off. It is up to the men in charge of this team to pit the very best material that they have in Woburn against us, and if they beat us there will be no abbas offered, and Manager McKeegan will be compelled to play them a game from force of public opinion. On the other hand, should they fail to show anything like the brand of baseball that Woburn and Winchester has been getting, it will stop all arguments and dispose, once and for all, of their right to be called a first-class team.

So much for Saturday's game. Labor Day will see two games. The morning game will be at Arlington, and the afternoon game at Winchester with the Woburn Town team. This game is the third game of the great series, and I hope the deciding game. Davidson will pitch this game, with a pitcher to be decided on for the game at Arlington.

I have asked Manager Geary of Arlington to use Collins against us in the morning game. He is the man who held us to one hit a couple of weeks ago, but I miss my guess if he gets by so easily Labor Day.

There will be a big crowd out for this game, and we should come home with a victory. The game will start at 10.15, with Dale and Cushing appearing, while the game in the afternoon will see Cushing and Hardy calling the plays. These next four games are going to be the big games of the year, and will surely be witnessed by tremendous crowds.

946 WOMEN ON LIST

Friday and Saturday saw no less than 350 women register at the Town Hall. This swells the total number of women now on the voting list to 946, and no doubt this number will be augmented considerably at the registration before the election.

Saturday was the big day for the Registrars. The members of the board, with the exception of B. F. Mathews, who fortunately was on his vacation, had their hands full. Practically all of the time there was a line in waiting and at one time there were 52 women in the registration room awaiting their turn to place their name on the list. Some of the women were in line an hour.

During the week 110 new names were placed on the men's list.

It is reported that the Republican Town Committee are to open rooms in the centre to give the women instruction and information, as numerous inquiries are being made as to the suitability of various candidates for nomination.

HENRY A. EMERSON

Former Selectman Henry A. Emerson died at his home in Rangeley last night shortly after six o'clock. He had been ill with a stomach trouble for a number of months, having been operated upon early in the summer. He was 78 years of age.

Henry Augustus Emerson was one of Winchester's prominent citizens and was widely known throughout the town. He was born here August 11, 1842, his parents being Lorina Emerson, a native of Reading, and Tryphena Russell of Woburn.

He attended the public schools of the town and graduated from the high school following which he worked on his father's farm on the West Side. After several years he started a lumber and coal business under the name of Henry A. Emerson & Co., continuing this for many years until he sold out to Messrs. Geo. W. Blanchard and Charles E. Kendall who continued the firm under the name of Blanchard, Kendall & Co. Later Mr. Geo. W. Blanchard took over the business under the present name of Geo. W. Blanchard & Co.

Mr. Emerson was always interested in town affairs and held many public offices of importance. He was a Selectman in 1875 and from 1919-1920. He was cemetery commissioner from 1881 to 1897 and was at one time a trustee of the Asa Fletcher Fund. He was a member of the Unitarian Church.

The funeral services will be held on Sunday afternoon at three o'clock at the residence, No. 24 Rangeley, and will be conducted by Rev. William I. Lawrence, formerly minister of the Winchester Unitarian Church. The burial will be in Wildwood Cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, Miss Sarah Sanderson, who he married Nov. 13, 1863, and by one daughter, Miss Ella M. Emerson.

VISITING NURSE ASSOCIATION NOTES

Miss Hannah Jacobson, the public health nurse, attended the convention and banquet given by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company at the Copley-Plaza on Tuesday evening.

The welcome horn of the horn on the coupe driven by Mrs. Gormely, the visiting nurse, will soon be heard again in Winchester.

Mrs. Gormely, who has been spending the past month in Colorado, will return September 4. During her absence her place has been taken by Miss Gertrude Snow, a recent graduate of the Winchester Hospital.

It has been a source of satisfaction to the Association to be able to fill Mrs. Gormely's place with one of the graduates of its own hospital.

REGISTRATION FOR NOVEMBER ELECTION

If you have failed to register for the primaries, opportunity to register for the November election will be given later. Registration days in October will be announced in the Star.

HOW ABOUT THE ANTI-SUFFRAGE?

To the Editor:

As the questions, "How do the Anti-Suffragists feel now?" and "are they going to vote?" are so often asked at the present time, will you please print the following replies:

"How do the Antis feel now?" Sorry, of course, very sorry, but not as sorry as they would feel, if they had not done all that they could to prevent what seemed to them, and still means, a backward step in civilization, and one that will work harm and not good.

"Will they vote?" This is a point each woman must decide for herself. There are some who feel that since suffrage has come, albeit in an unjust way, they must accept it, and prepare to enter the electorate distasteful as it will be to them. Others, probably by far the greater number of Anti-Suffragists will never go to the Polls, and will do so advisedly and not as "slackers"; for they believe, as so many at the north did, when, long ago, the Fugitive Slave Law was passed. These citizens said "We will not obey this unjust law, and we will take the consequences;" and Anti-Suffragists will take the consequences, whatever they may be.

Great injustice and great disregard to facts have marked the progress of the Suffrage movement. Suffragists have over and over again stated that the majority of women wanted suffrage; but Anti-Suffragists have good reason to believe otherwise, and here in Massachusetts have twice petitioned the Legislature to have it tested by a referendum to the women. This seemed to them the only fair thing to do. It was their idea of "justice;" but the Suffragists so vigorously and persistently opposed this, that the referendum never came.

Again, Anti-Suffragists believe in both men and women's being true to their convictions, but Suffragists have many times worked to drive able men out of office for the simple reason that they voted true to their own convictions. A notable instance of this, was when they unseated in Congress Senator John A. Weeks, a man whose advice on certain subjects, the other Senators of both political parties regarded as more valuable than that of any other Senator. And now the Suffragists of New York declare they will defeat next November, Senator Wadsworth, who has been so splendidly manly and firm, and loyal to his belief. When Senator Lodge was struck on the face, because he refused to be disloyal to his convictions, albeit a woman did not strike the blow, one stood by and applauded.

And in our own Mass. Legislature, three good men and true, Roger Wolcott, Chas. Underhill, and Wm. Seward lost their re-election by the misrepresentation of Margaret Foley and other street corner orators, who spoke in East Boston, South Boston and other places where they could draw the largest crowds.

When Boston women of culture and education could boast of these things, what were they doing in training their sons to be good and loyal citizens? Example is more powerful than preaching. What would Mary Washington and Nancy Hanks have thought of such acts?

Again, another and far more vital reason why Anti-Suffragists will not enter politics is that, as we believe there is work men can do far better than women, we believe there is work also that women can do far better than men; and as women cannot be desirable, intelligent members of the electorate, trying to do men's work, and also to do women's special work, and do both well, it seems most desirable that some women stay out of politics, and try to do and improve woman's work. In fact I think most Anti-Suffragists who have worked for their cause, are now drawing a sigh of relief that their ungenerous "temporary" political work is over, and that they can be "mere" women pure and simple.

What the outcome of women in politics will be, no one can tell. Our hope is that in a few generations, if not earlier, Woman Suffrage will die a natural death.

Our advice to Anti-Suffrage women is to keep out of politics, and help their country in this way.

What the outcome of the unjust means by which woman-suffrage has come, no one can tell. Elihu Root, our greatest jurist, in a most able and enlightening paper on Constitutional Amendments, has said of this Federal Suffrage Amendment just passed that in its over-riding of State Rights and majority rule, it would be a very dangerous precedent; that it would inevitably be followed in other matters and that the tendency would be to bring discord among the States, and finally disrupt the union.

"This adds one more danger to those already threatening our country."

"THE WORLD AND HIS WIFE"

How gossip, which turned out to be entirely without foundation, caused the death of a man and nearly ruined the lives of his wife and a youth is revealed in "The world and his wife," which is coming to the Stancham Theatre Monday, Sept. 6.

The scene of the story is in Spain and it is said to abound in the color and passions of the Latin countries.

FITZ E. H. HEATH

Mr. Fitz Edward Harrison Heath, for many years a well known resident of Warren street, this town, died at Bantam, Conn., Monday. He was 65 years of age and was a native of St. John, New Brunswick.

Mr. Heath was associated with the Bantam Bill Bearing Co. He was a Mason and was affiliated with the William Parkman Lodge of this town, the services, which were held at the Woodlawn Chapel Wednesday afternoon at four, being in charge of the Lodge and conducted by Rev. D. Augustine Newton of Reading.

Mr. Heath is survived by his wife, who was Miss Annie Farnsworth of Somerville, and four children—Miss Helen B. Heath of Chesnut Hill, Pa.; Chauncey B. of Bantam, Conn.; Miss A. Marguerite of New Haven, Conn.; and E. Phillips of Sour Lake, Texas.

Considerable annoyance has been caused the residents in the neighborhood of Cutter Village by night roaming dogs. The animals have kept many families awake by their noise and have entered several open doors. Wednesday night they killed a number of rabbits at the residence of Hugh Skerry on Clark street.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Envy is the drippings from the engine of success.

People today are spending a lot of money for things they do not need.

Wealth makes kleptomaniacs;
poverty makes thieves.

When a man is pretty well satisfied with himself he is quite apt to be dissatisfied with others.

If a man gets the last word
in an argument with a woman, it is because she gives it to him.

And then someone asked us if we liked fishing. Is there any fishing in Winchester?

The new rope is tied to the school bell—or rather the new batteries are connected with the electric gong.

The ladies registered now watch them vote. We wonder their percentage of attendance is above that of the men.

"Pick Berry" is a sign of the coming primaries attracting many eyes. It indicates especial interest to Winchester voters as a slogan of one of its residents.
Mr. Edward W. Berry of 5 Stratford road, who is a candidate for Governor's Council from this district.
Mr. Berry has resided in the district for the past 20 to 30 years; he has been in Winchester for the past three years, and is head of the Boston firm of Berry & Ferguson, dealers in men's supplies.

A copy of the Congressional Record has been received at this office on "Public Printing." The discussion, under the leadership of Hon. Reed Smoot of Utah in the U. S. Senate
Feb. 5th is interesting, and we note that the Senators appear concerned at the price the small publishers are obliged to pay for print paper. Senator Smoot states that some of the small publishers are obliged to pay as high as 9 cents a pound for print paper—and are not able to obtain it at that. The Senator should come East. Print paper is now quoted at 10 1/2 cents—and practically unobtainable at that figure. We had a lot offered us this week at 18 1/2 cents.
From February to August is considerable time in these days of rapid changes, and we note that this matter has not been relieved by this discussion of the Senate last February.
Just why the matter should be brought to the attention of the publishers at this late date is uncertain, possibly because it has taken the Record that time to travel so many miles and perhaps to call attention to the fact that our Senate has not forgotten the matter. We hope so, but if the Senate waits long enough the matter will need no attention—for the small publisher will have given up the fight, as many are doing daily.

The coming primaries of Tuesday will be interesting to watch. Many places extended the registration period over the specified time to accommodate the women and many places are practically doubling their voting strength. The question of the legality of extending the registration period appears yet to be solved. Another question applies to the voting lists, it being reported that some places are to use typewritten lists in place of the regular lists used heretofore. All women voters are undesignated as to party. Such designation means complete new lists for election—and some venture to remark that the ladies may be as backward in stating their political party as they have been thus far in stating their age—but this may be doubted. There comes also the question of separating the women voters from the men, both as to lists and polling booths. As one war has put its let the ladies enter at the left and leave at the right; the men enter at the right and leave at the left;
with a pink line in the center. Many places will employ for the first time women tellers and ballot clerks.
The regular force must of course be greatly augmented, and the women should be represented. Taken all in all the coming primaries should prove of considerable interest to say nothing of expense. And the men will pay the bill—either the women pay a poll tax or not.

PEKING: A CITY WITHIN A CITY

"Until recently Peking, capital of China, with its 700,000 people, was one of the least known of the great cities of the world," says the second of a series of National Geographic Society bulletins dealing with the places on the itinerary of the Congressional inspection trip to the Orient. It took the Boxer Rebellion and the siege of the Legations in 1900 to open the long-closed doors.

Peking is a 'city within a city.' The Chinese city, built in 1543, is the commercial center. The Tatar city dates from 1207 and includes the famous 'Forbidden City,' of which the Dragon Throne of the Son of Heaven, Emperor of the Middle Kingdom, is the center. The throne is of rare wood, exquisitely carved. Just back of it is a screen of golden lacquer so dainty in design and execution that it gives the appearance of golden lace. Around this throne room are arranged the palaces, shut in by purple walls.

The Chien-men street bisects the Chinese city from the South Gate, where the railway enters, to the principal gate in the wall separating the Chinese from the Tatar city. Along this main thoroughfare there passes a continuous throng. There, too, may be seen the springless passenger cart, with its blue, arched roof and yellow wheels, corrugated metal tires, and its awning sheltering driver and mule, or the Mongolian camel, the ship of the Asian desert, and, interesting above all, the scarlet bridal chair, with its piece of lacron and parcel of sugar hung on the back as an offering to the demons who might molest the bride while on her journey. Officials hurry back and forth in the gorgeous chairs, their eunuchs making great din as they seek right of way. Noisy vendors of amulets, and medicines of ground tiger bones to strengthen faint hearts, and extracts of rat meat to make the hair grow, add to the din.

On the east side of this roadway is an enclosure of about one square mile, which contains the Altar of Heaven,
surrounded by shrines and temples,
the most important of which is the circular, three-roofed marble Temple of Heaven, with pillars of Oregon pine and roof of deep blue porcelain tiles.

Near the ornate Temple of Heaven is the Temple of Confucius, the most holy ancestral teacher.

The Washington Monument of Peking is the famous thirteen-storied Buddhist pagoda, from the summit of which a fine view of the city may be had.

Peking claims the oldest daily newspaper in the world, the Peking Gazette, compared with whose age the London Times, with its hundred years, is in its infancy. For six dollars a year, a Pekingese can read all that his government desired him to know as to its actions, or he can rent his Gazette for the day and return it. In former years newspapers were found on the walls in the form of posters.
They were printed from a large block of wood, upon which the intricate characters had been cut by hand.

As early as the seventh century
A. D. visiting cards were in common use in China, and, to the American girl who this month is sending to her friends two small cards tied with a bit of white ribbon, announcing her engagement, it will be interesting to know that when a Chinaman desires to marry, his parents inform a professional match maker, who selects a bride for the young man. He then calls upon the parents of the young woman and presents his card, upon which has been inscribed his ancestral name and the eight symbols which denote the date of his birth. If he is accepted, her card is sent in return, and if the oracles forecast good for the union, details of the engagement are written on two large cards and these are tied together with red silk cords.

The 'bucket brigade' of our small western towns may have had its distinct origin in the 'water associations,' or volunteer fire departments, of Peking. In Peking 'soup kitchens' rice gruel is served free to the poor.

In the heart of the Tatar city is another enclosure—the 'Forbidden City'
—in which stands the imperial palace, distinctive in China because it is faced with yellow porcelain. Surrounding the palace are the gardens, reception halls, pavilions, and offices formerly used by the Emperor in conducting the affairs of the Empire.

'Prospect Hill' would be interesting to those who went to the 'movies' to keep warm during the recent coal shortages. The hill is a huge mound of coal which was to provide fuel in time of siege, and it is now covered with a grove of beautiful trees.

The Pekingese are consumers only.
The trade of the city is small, although it is open to foreign com-

event which has happened several times during the last few years, though so far no cubs have been raised. This reflects no discredit upon the parents, nor upon the management of the zoo, for the same lamentable and has overtaken almost all polar bears born south of the Arctic regions, while the young of other bears can be raised with relative ease. With each new brace of cubs born in the London Zoo a different method of treatment has been followed, in the hope of averting catastrophe. The mother has been shut up in a warm box, or allowed freedom and given a change of quarters. Hand-raising and use of foster mothers of different kinds have each in turn been tried, but in vain. The cubs died.

It has been suggested that this inability on the part of captive polar bears to raise their offspring is due to the utterly different environment in which the cubs are born. In a wild state the mother makes herself a sure retreat beneath the snow, the warmth of her body melting a spout hole, or air-shaft, for breathing purposes. She has no need to leave this till the winter is past, for before going into retreat she has amassed a store of fat sufficient for her needs. Here, at an even temperature, her young pass the first few weeks of their existence, to emerge presently to feast upon seal meat.

But, even supposing it were possible to reproduce the conditions of the snow chamber, the chances of survival for the youngsters are not very great, as an English authority points out. And this because they appear to be very susceptible to the germs of pneumonia, which find such congenial conditions of existence in our climate, while in the far north they cannot exist. Nor do they find Antarctic a whit more habitable. This much is clear from the records of polar explorers, who say that colds in the head were unknown save when fresh clothing was unpacked.

All living things normally exposed to the attacks of these microbes have long since acquired a relative immunity thereto by the elimination of the more susceptible and the survival of the resistant.

Mr. George B. Kimball of 29 Weymouth avenue, exhibited his saddle horses and hunters at the Burnstable Fair, which closed Thursday. The horse show was a great success. There were 220 entries, which included some of the best saddle horses in the country. Out of 15 entries, made by Mr. Kimball, he won fourteen ribbons—six first, six seconds, 2 thirds. These were divided among his horses as follows: Happy Boy, three firsts, two seconds; Colleen, three firsts, four seconds; Lady Alice, two seconds. Only one other winner made a good showing as was made by these Winchester horses, namely, Mr. Andrew Adie of Chestnut Hill and Wynn.

Shall We Dig Our Potatoes

Shall we dig our potatoes now is the question frequently asked by home gardeners because their vines have died. The answer to this question all depends upon whether or not they have been injured and killed by one of the blights, it most assuredly is good business to dig them right away. They will keep much better dug than they would if permitted to remain in the soil. If on the other hand the vines have been killed by leaf hoppers, flea-beetles or potato aphids, the potatoes will keep for some time as well in the soil as they would if dug. If the home gardener therefore feels that the potato vines died because of aphids, which seems to be the trouble in most cases, the thing to do is to permit them to remain in the soil for a while longer unless the soil is wet. All potatoes in wet low land should be dug as soon as the tops die.

Tomato Worms

Large, plump, long, green caterpillars are found upon tomato vines at this time devouring the foliage. This tomato worm seldom appears in large numbers, and is not particularly dangerous. It does no good, however, and had better be killed. The caterpillar usually clings underneath the middle rib of the leaf and feeds upon either side. Because of its color and the fact that it clings to the under side of the leaf rib it is hard to discover, except that the foliage will usually be eaten in the section in which it is at work. The best way of handling these fellows is to hunt up the individuals, pick them off, and step upon them or kill them in some other way.

Tomato fruit worms were common last season, but do not appear to be bad this year. The tomato fruit worm attacks only the ripened fruit by eating into it. This caterpillar is about 2 inches in length and is generally of a brownish color.

Insect and Disease

The season has arrived when the larger share of insect trouble is over. One must not let up, however, with his Bordeaux spraying. Bordeaux should be sprayed upon potato foliage, tomato vines, cucumbers and musk melons in order to keep out blight. This should be kept up until there is danger of frost. If one is growing celery it will be well to spray it also with Bordeaux.

Keep Weeds out of Garden

There are lots of fine home gardens that are becoming quite weedy. One will lose the value of all his early work if these few late weeds are permitted to ripen the seed. Each weed plant will produce thousands of seeds. It is well to go through the garden and pull or hoe the stray weeds.

Bean Weevils

As suggested last week, bean weevils are easily controlled. They cannot, however, be controlled in the field. They breed successfully in dried seed, and it is therefore advisable to harvest the crop and fumigate the same with carbon bisulphide. The beans should be placed in a tight box or can, like a wash boiler or barrel. The carbon bisulphide should be placed in a small dish set upon the top of the beans. The box or barrel is then closed tightly and contents permitted to remain 24 hours.

The material should be used at the rate of one teaspoonful to each cubic foot in the container in which the beans are being fumigated. This carbon bisulphide can be purchased at any drug store, and comes in the nature of a liquid in a sealed can. It is highly poisonous and very inflammable. Therefore it must be used with great care. The one using it should not do it in a room where there is a fire or gas being used. It is well to place the container upon the back porch or in the shed so that if some fumes escape they will not do

Reports from the registration of women during the recent period give reason to believe that the members of the white ribbon army generally did their duty, even if they had theretofore been opposed to the extension of suffrage to women. Their objection has usually been based on their desire to escape the necessity of direct political action and a belief that the addition of women to the electorate will not result in enough good to offset the burden laid upon those women who were opposed. But now it is a condition and not a theory, as Grover Cleveland said, which confronts them, and the majority will accept the conditions gracefully and do their part. The W. C. T. U. as a body has long been strongly in favor of equal suffrage for women, but many of the members have been as conscientiously opposed to it as were many good people to the abolition of slavery or to prohibition, and no member was obliged to subscribe to that tenet or to any other held by the body generally so long as she stood for the abolition of the liquor traffic. Many felt that the two reforms were almost twins but many suffragists did not formerly stand for prohibition and the suffrage associations have never incorporated any side issues.

For some time the "Woman Patriot" organ of the Anti-Suffragists has laid special stress upon the doctrine of state's rights, yet many northern women, whose affiliations have always been with the Republican party, resented its leadership in this case. "Politics makes strange bed fellows." But now every woman will do her duty as she sees it regardless of the differences of the past, even as our W. C. T. U. sisters in the south land have worked in harmony with those of the north, as if the questions of state's rights and slavery had never brought civil war to the country.

Query: If prohibition doesn't prohibit as we are being told so freely, what has happened to keep the streets about the North Station so free from "drunks," who formerly made that section so unpleasant to travel?

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Fenno of Cabot street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Edith Richardson Fenno, to Mr. Warren Frederick Giddis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Giddis.

damage. The liquid poison quickly changes to gas which is heavier than air. It therefore works its way down through the beans killing all forms of animal life with which it comes in contact. Beans fumigated in this manner should be free from weevils.

Wasted Time on Information Calls

In Greater Boston every year 18,000,000 questions are answered by information operators. One-half are for numbers listed in the telephone directory.

The 200 information operators employed in the Metropolitan Division waste hundreds of hours daily in giving out these numbers.

These wasted hours affect operating efficiency on regular calls, cause excessive holding of lines and abnormal use of our switchboards.

Please do not ask for "Information" for a number until you have first looked in the telephone directory and failed to find it.

To assist in maintaining good telephone service, our information operators, when answering calls for numbers listed in the telephone directory, will refer the person calling to the page number in the telephone directory on which the listing may be found.

"Information" is always ready to give numbers of new subscribers and other changes not listed in the directory.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING

August 30, 1920

The Board met at 7:30 p. m. Present: Messrs. Kilder, Blackham, Bryne and Dolben.

The records of the meeting of August 23 were read and approved.

Company F, 101st Engineers, National Guard: George T. Connor, 45 Maple street, Stoneham, and Oliver W. Richards, 43 Maple street, Stoneham, appeared before the board in regard to the formation of Company F, 101st Regiment National Guard. Both Mr. Connor and Mr. Richards, who is president of the Honorary Members Association endorsing this regiment, spoke at some length in regard to the formation of this company. These gentlemen said that it was their desire that this regiment be composed of men from the four towns, Melrose, Reading, Winchester and Stoneham. They urged that the board appoint one or more persons to arouse interest in organizing this company and to endeavor to get Winchester young men to join the regiment. On September 8, 1920, the Executive Committee of the Honorary Members Association is to hold a August 25 A. D. 1920.

That on the foregoing filed, it is ordered that the clerk of said court, at Cambridge, in said county, on the first Monday of December next, do cause to be published in said county, in the Winchester Star, a newspaper published in Winchester in the county of Middlesex, once a week, three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said last mentioned day, and that an attested copy of said libel and order thereon be sent by registered letter to the residence of the libelee as set out in the libel, that he may then and there show cause, if any he have, why the prayer in said libel is not forthwith granted.

WM. C. DILLINGHAM, Clerk.

A true copy of the libel and of the order thereon.

Attest,

WM. C. DILLINGHAM, Clerk.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Middlesex.

Respectfully libels and represents Rens Hortense Davenport of Winchester in said county, that she was lawfully married to Charles Matthew Davenport, now of Buffalo in the State of New York, at Rochester in the said State of New York, on the twenty-seventh day of August, A. D. 1910, and thereafter, towards said libellant and the said Charles Matthew Davenport lived together as husband and wife at Rochester in the said State of New York; that your libellant has always been faithful to her marriage vows and obligations, but the said Charles Matthew Davenport, being wholly regardless of the same, at Rochester, New York, on the first day of August, 1915, without just cause, wilfully and utterly deserted your libellant, which desertion has continued from such time to the date herein, being more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel. And your libellant further says that prior to her marriage her home was in Massachusetts and that she had lived there continuously until 1917; that on or about the third day of August, 1915, she returned to her home in Massachusetts and has continued to live in said Commonwealth since that third day of August, 1915. That there are no children born of said marriage.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a decree from the bench of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Charles Matthew Davenport.

Dated this twenty-fourth day of August, A. D. 1920.

RENS HORTENSE DAVENPORT.

meeting in Stoneham at the State Armory, and these gentlemen said that it is the desire that Winchester send two representatives to this Executive Committee meeting, one of which would be chosen a vice-president of the Honorary Members Association and the other a member of the Executive Committee. Mr. Richards said that it was the intention of this Honorary Members Association to have, besides the president, three vice-presidents a vice-president from each town not having the president. He also stated that he hoped 75 to at least 100 men in Winchester would become members of the Honorary Members Association, and hoped that a similar number would become members from the city of Melrose and the towns of Reading and Stoneham. Company F has already a large enough number so that it will shortly be recognized as the regiment of the National Guard.

On September 15 the Honorary Members Association is to hold a meeting at which Colonel Osborne of the National Guard will probably be present. A cordial invitation was extended to the Selectmen to attend this affair, and it was also urged that other citizens of Winchester be invited to come. The dues of this Honorary Members Association, which amount to $5.00 a year, are to be spent in connection with miscellaneous expenses of the regiment. The Clerk was instructed to write Messrs Maurice Tompkins and Warren Hooley, asking them to attend the Executive Meeting as requested by the two men from Stoneham.

The meeting adjourned at 10:05 p. m.

WINCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1920

PRICE FIVE CENTS

PRIMARY ELECTION

First Vote by Women Swelled Total to 1127

The first vote by the women of the country for all political offices swelled Winchester's Tuesday primary vote to a total of 1127. Of this number 565 were women and 562 men.

The town cast an overwhelming Republican ballot, there being but 51 out of the total which belonged to the Democratic party, and of this number but six were women.

The voting, while it failed to produce the rush so common in many elections, was probably the steadiest throughout the day for many years. There was the usual early morning attendance of the male voters, and by the time they had commenced to thin out the women appeared in a great number of the election offices busy from that time until the polls closed.

The election officers created a new record for continuous work at the polls, working from 5:15 a. m. Tuesday, until 8:30 a. m. Wednesday, a period of almost 20 consecutive hours. They were under the supervision of Selectmen Kiddler, Byrne, Blackham, and Holden, who shared in the long hours of work and looked after every detail of making things run smoothly for the new voters.

The early vote gave indication of a smaller ballot than had been expected, but the steady stream of new voters kept the figures going up all the time. From the opening hour, until 8:30, but 17 women had voted. Town Clerk, Mabel W. Simpson, casting the first women's ballot shortly before that hour.

Miss Strinson in her official capacity was present throughout the day and night, opening the polls at 5:15 a. m., and being the last to leave the hall Wednesday morning after the ballots had been wrapped and sealed.

The women voters made a good showing. They were fully as capable and competent in casting their vote as the men, notwithstanding the fact that it was a new experience. The one noticeable feature was the universal misunderstanding that they should sign their name on the ballot. Where this idea came from appeared a mystery, but the question was the only one asked which was out of the ordinary run of the previous elections.

The most noticeable fault of the women voters was their tendency to leave various articles about the polls. Numerous hand bags were found in the booths and umbrellas were collected in considerable quantity. One hand bag found on the floor contained over $121.00. Janitor Callahan at the Town Hall has such articles as were not called for during the day. The women also were a little lax on the regulations forbidding the requesting of advice when within the polls, and did not hesitate to ask any one handy for such information as they desired. Chairman Kiddler was kept busy along this direction, but handled his job very diplomatically.

From appearances their ballots were all carefully marked, as all took considerable time, and in fact it is possible that some extended their visit behind the rail for longer than the ten minutes proscribed by law, although this was not questioned. The women's Republican committee were active during the election and attended to various details which came within their province. Mrs. W. I. Palmer, Mrs. L. F. Woodside and Mrs. D. C. Bennett being of much assistance to many voters.

Two separate check lists were used, and in this connection it might be wise at the coming election to place these under signs for "men" and "women."

The use of stickers for Jackson and Kerr, running for the nomination for Treasurer on the Republican ticket, was the main cause for the largest number of votes being thrown out for many elections. Only one ballot was thrown out, but numerous single votes. These stickers were placed on the wrong place, over other names and were stuck to the ballot and not marked. In some instances the name portion of the Jackson sticker was detached and the instructions pasted on the ballot. Some stickers were torn, and in trying to correct the vote the ballot was so marked that no vote resulted.

This confusion made the ballot very difficult to count, and this, together with poor folding of the ballots, gave the officers a most difficult job, it being necessary to go over some blocks several times.

The lunch for the officers was served at noon in the basement of the hall by the Community Kitchen Co., a very appetizing repast being provided. The officers included, in addition to the Town Clerk and Selectmen, Messrs. Robert H. O'Connor, Thomas F. Flaherty, Harry Y. Nutter, Charles F. Nowell, J. Leslie Johnston, Ralph F. Arnold, T. Price Wilson and James H. Mathews.

Mr. Lewis Parkhurst received the largest vote cast for any individual, his total of 1287 being a handsome

HROOKS MANSION ENTERED

Mr. M. E. O'Leary telephoned the police station, Monday morning, at 9:30, that the Peter Brooks mansion on Grove street, occupied by James Jackson, the Republican candidate for State Treasurer, had been broken into by thieves. Nothing was taken out side some tools, but considerable loot was packed up ready to take. The thieves had slept in the house through the night, being frightened away when Mr. O'Leary entered in the morning. The case was taken in charge by the police of that city.

Miss Pauline B. Ray of 3 Lagrange street will resume her class in piano instruction, September 20. Tel. Win. 445-R.

HENRY A. EMERSON

Editor of Star:

In the passing of Henry A. Emerson the town of Winchester has lost a most loyal and patriotic citizen. He truly was a "native son," who was always willing to do all that he could for the benefit of the town he loved so well.

It was my privilege to know Mr. Emerson for nearly forty years, and I always found him ready and anxious to help any good cause. He was one of the most fearless and eloquent town meeting orators we have ever had. I shall never forget his strong, ringing voice, and, if his memory serves me right, it was his speech that turned the vote in favor of completing our fine system of water works.

I recall an incident which showed his good will and generosity toward the town. When we were building our system of sewers it was necessary for the sewer to cross various pieces of private land, among others some land owned by Mr. Emerson. As chairman of the Board of Sewer Commissioners, it was my duty to call on Mr. Emerson and ask him how much damages he would ask the town for that privilege. He immediately replied that he would grant the town that right, "without charge." I think that was the only case where damages were not asked. Mr. Emerson never sought public office, but consented to serve the town several times as Selectman, Cemetery Commissioner, and on many important committees. He did excellent work during the war, as a member of the Fuel Committee.

In figure he was the best exemplar of "Uncle Sam" I ever saw, and I think he felt honored to represent "Uncle Sam" in parades, etc.

We will miss his genial greetings and hearty handshakes, which always made me feel that he was honestly glad to meet you.

Such men leave a void which cannot be filled.

Daniel W. Pratt.

ACCIDENT AT SUNDAY'S FIRE

Sunday's alarm of fire was for trash burning off Cambridge street, near the residence of Dennis Lawton. Although the blaze was not serious, and quickly taken under by the firemen, it was the cause also of an auto accident and the injury of a woman from Malden.

The ladder truck was standing around the bend on Cambridge street, and the auto ran under the long ladders before the driver could stop it. The top of the auto was damaged and the woman struck in the side by the end of the ladder. She was taken to Dr. Simond's office and later to her home. Beyond the fact that the auto came from Malden, no report was made of the accident.

Fire Chief DeCourcy states that his department is badly hampered by autos at all fires, it being impossible to lay hose in some instances. The autos are on the scene in quantities before the fire apparatus arrives, blocking the passage and hindering the work. He is planning to take drastic steps to remedy the matter.

The first prize, a chicken dinner, was won by Luke Glendon, who courteously waived his right to it in favor of Mrs. James Higgins. Mr. Glendon taking a large box of candy for his prize. The other prizes were awarded to Mrs. Manning, Mrs. J. Frank Davis, Patrick Lynch, John Collins, Miss Grace, Doherty, Mrs. Elizabeth Powers, James Rogers, Mrs. Dinan, Mrs. Lynch, Mrs. Bailey, J. MISS CAROLYN E. DUNKLEE

Miss Carolyn Elizabeth Dunklee, well known to many of Winchester's older residents, died at the home of Mr. Edward M. Lawson, 250 Broadway, Arlington, on Monday. She was 58 years of age.

Miss Dunklee passed the greater part of her life in this town, residing here with her parents the late Galusha C. and Nancy G. (Johnston) Dunklee. She graduated from the local schools and for a number of later years had been a member of the household of the late Charles E. Kinsley. She is survived by one sister, Miss Nellie Dunklee of Jamaica Plain.

The funeral services were held from the residence at 250 Broadway, Wednesday afternoon, the burial being in Wildwood cemetery.

FRED E. COTTE

Mr. Fred E. Cottle, prominent as a leather manufacturer and known to many Winchester people, where he made his home for a number of years, died on Friday last at his summer home at Vineyard Haven. He was 59 years of age.

Mr. Cottle, during his residence here, made his home on Sheffield road. He left Winchester five or six years ago. He leaves a wife (Miss Emma Greenleaf of Woburn) and two sons, Edmund C. and F. Raymond, both of whom are prominently known among Winchester's younger set. He also leaves one sister, Mrs. C. Walter Marion of Arlington road, Woburn.

The funeral services were held from the Marion residence at Woburn on Monday, in charge of Rev. William I. Lawrence, formerly of the Winchester Unitarian church. The interment was at Woodbrook cemetery, Woburn.

TRUCK TIPPED OVER

Twenty People Thrown Into Street Sunday Afternoon

Sunday afternoon a truck containing 20 people, all returning from the Jewish cemetery at Montvale, tipped over when on Washington street, near the Baptist church, the whole load being thrown into the street. The accident was caused by a front wheel collapsing when the truck turned from the electric car track.

Practically all of the load were injured more or less seriously, fourteen being taken to the Winchester Hospital for treatment. One woman received a broken arm and two others were placed on the dangerous list at the hospital. It is thought that these will recover.

The accident created considerable excitement. Doctors Sheehy, McCarthy and Emery were called and rendered first-aid treatment, and members of the fire department assisted in getting the injured into passing autos and to the hospital, and later in dragging the truck from the street.

The most seriously injured were: Mrs. Ida Bloom, 30 Fifth street, Chelsea; head and face cut, and possibly a serious injury to skull.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bloom, 30 Fifth street, Chelsea; cuts and bruises on head and body.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Robbins, 43 Highrock street, Lynn; Mrs. Robbins received a broken arm and both she and her husband had serious cuts on head and body.

Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Kaplan, 10 Walnut street, Chelsea; cuts on face and head.

Miss Annie Duhrow, 43 Highrock street, Lynn; head cut.

Mrs. S. Abbott, 87 Walnut street, Chelsea; thumb broken, head cut.

Mrs. J. Lunken, 10 Shawmut street, Chelsea; head cut.

Mrs. Bessie Brown, 19 Walnut street, Chelsea; cuts on face and head, and arm injured.

Miss Evelyn Kaplan, 19 Walnut street, Chelsea; arm and face cut.

The motor truck, operated by Arthur Brown of 101 Chestnut street, Chelsea, was proceeding at an average speed when, according to passengers, the accident happened.

HOPKINGTON-DOLAN

A quiet home wedding was solemnized on Saturday afternoon at the residence of Rev. and Mrs. E. B. Dolan, 32 Myrtle terrace, when their daughter, Miss Ruth Adelaide Dolan, was married to Mr. William Hopkinson of Hartford, Conn., the son of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Hopkinson. Rev. Mr. Dolan performed the marriage.

Decorations of ferns, gladioli and hydrangea brightened the room of the residence and the outside porches as well, and other summer flowers were used to advantage in making an appropriate setting for the affair. The bride was gown in georgette crepe with tulle veil, and she carried a bouquet of bride's roses. There were no attendants and the ceremony was witnessed by the immediate families of the couple only.

A wedding supper followed the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Hopkinson left on a wedding trip to Cape Elizabeth, Me. They will make their future home in New Britain, Conn., where the groom is in business.

SERVICES FOR HENRY A. EMERSON

There was a large attendance at the funeral services of the late Henry A. Emerson, held Sunday afternoon at the residence in Rangeley. Rev. William I. Lawrence, formerly minister at the Unitarian church, officiated, and the honorary pallbearers were Messrs. Lewis Parkhurst, Alfred S. Hall, George H. Eustis, D. W. Pratt, Samuel S. Symmes and George W. Blanchard. The display of flowers was very profuse and beautiful. From the time of Mr. Emerson's death until the funeral the flags on the town and public buildings were flown at half mast. The burial was in the family lot in Wildwood cemetery.

Owing to illness and withdrawals four vacancies have occurred in the Winchester delegation to the Republican State Convention on Saturday, September 18, and the following have been elected: Mrs. Daniel C. Bennett, Mrs. William S. Palmer, Mrs. George H. Root and Mrs. Alonzo F. Woodside.

Frank E. Rowe, Secretary, Delegation to State Convention.

McCALL ESTATE SOLD

It was reported this week that Mr. George Neiley of Woburn had purchased the estate of ex-Governor Samuel W. McCall on Myopia road. Mr. Neiley plans to occupy the estate soon, probably taking possession about October 1. Mr. McCall, it is said, does not plan to leave Winchester, but will either erect or purchase a smaller residence, in keeping with the present size of his family.

EDWARD L. BALDWIN

Many old friends were grieved to learn of the death on Tuesday morning of Mr. Edward L. Baldwin. For twenty-two years a well-known resident of this town, he had been in poor health for over a year from heart disease, and his death was due to this cause. He was 81 years of age.

Edward Lewis Baldwin was born in East Jaffrey, N. H. His parents were B. F. and Rosalie (French) Baldwin. He acquired his education in the country school of his home town, and entered the provision business in Boston, where for 20 years he conducted a store at the corner of Charles and Chestnut streets. He retired ten years ago.

He married Martha F. Adams of Hillsboro, N. H., who died about seven years ago, and he leaves one daughter, Mrs. Fred N. Kog of Lakewood, with whom he made his home, and one brother, Mr. Fred M. Baldwin of Atlanta, Ga.

He made his home in Somerville for some time, and for many years was a member and deacon in the Franklin street church, East Somerville. He was a member of the First Congregational church of this town and of the Congregational Club of Boston; also of the Massachusetts Fish and Game Association and the Middlesex Sportsman's Association.

The funeral services were held from the residence yesterday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Howard J. Childley. There was a large attendance of old friends and an abundance of beautiful flowers.

The pall bearers were Messrs. Charles J. Ramsdell, Fred C. Alexander, Frank M. Russell and Dr. W. Holbrook Lowell.

The burial was in Wildwood cemetery.

BASEBALL TOMORROW

Tomorrow we will have one of the biggest games of the season when we meet The Forbes Lithograph Co. Here is a team that has faced the best semi-pro teams in Massachusetts and came out on the winning end in the majority of games. The team is made up entirely of players who are employed in the factory, and are backed to the limit to win by their shopmates. This game is doubly interesting to Winchester, as Mr. W. S. Forbes, Mr. Getty and Mr. Mudge, the big men of the concern reside here, and the team will work overtime to get away with a win. They are going to sell their own tickets in the factory and they expect to bring out here between 300 and 400 spectators. That means we will have to be right on the job every minute, and will need all the encouragement we can get from our own people. Weaver will pitch for Winchester, and the team will line up as it did Labor Day afternoon, with the exception of right field.

Early arrivals will get seats, and as I said before, one of the biggest crowds of the year will be on hand to see the game.

KNUDSON-SHELDON

The wedding of Miss Eleanor C. Sheldon, daughter of Mrs. Edward A. Sheldon of 475 Main street, and Mr. Benjamin Knudson, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Knudson of 179 Pauline street, Winthrop, took place on Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony was performed at eight o'clock by Rev. John L. Ivey, pastor of the Methodist church, Winthrop.

The residence was attractively decorated for the occasion with fern and cut flowers. The ceremony was performed under an arch of asparagus fern and roses, with tall vases of hydrangeas, gladioli and asters at either side, and vases of cut flowers were used about the mantles and stairs.

The bridal party entered the parlors to Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Mr. Harry W. Stevens of Manchester road, brother-in-law of the bride, and a solo, "Oh, Promise Me," was sung by Miss Grace L. Brown of Dorchester before the ceremony. The double ring ceremony was used.

The bride wore a dress of white satin over princess lace, with veil of tulle trimmed with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and sweet peas. Mrs. Robert M. Hamilton, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing orchid-colored net embroidered in silver over orchid cloth of silver. Her bouquet was of pink sweet peas. Mr. Charles Knudson of Roslindale, brother of the groom, was best man.

A reception followed the ceremony, and both were largely attended by the many friends of the couple, who were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Knudson, Mrs. Edward A. Sheldon and Mrs. Harry W. Stevens, sister of the bride. The ushers were Messrs. Robert M. Hamilton of this town, Clarence A. Edwards of Beverly, and William Remby of Winthrop. Guests were present from Winthrop, Beverly, Brookline, Newton, Somerville and New Hampshire, Vermont and New York.

The bride was formerly employed in the Winchester office of the Edison Electric Illuminating Co. of Boston. The groom was a member of Co. E, 18th Infantry, and served nineteen months overseas. He was cited for bravery and wears the fourragere, one of the highest decorations the French can give. He was also a member of Pershing's composite regiment. This regiment served as Pershing's honor guard in Paris, London, New York and Washington.

Following a wedding trip to Belgrade Lakes, Me., Mr. and Mrs. Knudson will make their future home in Winthrop.

A SAD DROWNING ACCIDENT

A very sad drowning accident occurred on Monday morning at Lake West, Monponsett, on the Cape, when Mr. Reginald Burnham of Melrose lost his life by diving from a canoe. A party of young people were spending the week-end there, and had gone out in a canoe previous to going in bathing, and Mr. Burnham, who was an excellent swimmer, was the first to go from the boat. It is presumed he struck his head, as the water was shallow there. He was very well known here as an intimate friend of Miss Edith Johnson of Wilson street, who was one of the party in the boat to see the unfortunate affair. She was prostrated and a doctor's services were necessary. Mr. Burnham was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Burnham of Melrose, in his twenty-second year, and a most upright, noble young man, who will be greatly missed. He leaves beside his parents three brothers and a sister. The funeral took place on Wednesday and the interment was in the family lot at Wyomington cemetery.

B. S. CLUB

At their regular meeting, Tuesday evening, the B. S. Club of Middlesex street, nominated Mr. Timothy McKerrigan president. Mr. McKerrigan accepted the nomination and will probably go into office at their next meeting.

Mr. John O'Connell, now acting president, is leaving the club Saturday, September 11, due to the fact that he has received a very important position with a large manufacturing plant in Detroit, Mich. The members of the club have voted to give a farewell party in honor of their departing brother, which will take place this evening at the home of Mr. Michael Donolon, acting treasurer for the club. Mr. O'Connell is at present employed as a tree inspector. He has inspected many trees in this town, especially on Linden street.

To the Editor of the Winchester Star: My dear Mr. Wilson—Will you be kind enough, through the columns of your paper, to express to the voters of Winchester, men and women, my very great appreciation of the most cordial manner in which they supported me at the Primaries on Tuesday as a candidate for State Senator. SCHOOLS OPEN WITH 1499

The enrollment on the opening day in Winchester schools was 1499, of which 362 pupils were in the High School. Last year the first day produced 1429 pupils, of which 291 were in the High School.

It will thus be noted that the High School registration has increased 69 over a year ago, and the remaining schools one. It is very probable, however, that the number of pupils will be considerably increased during the next few days.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

According to the Philadelphia Public Ledger

Uncle Lupton told a story at the Art Club the other night that has a bearing on the Rishman incident. He says a Jew aspired for a job as janitor of a school.

"Sign this application," he was told. "I can't write," he replied.

"What! can't write and you want a position in a school?" he was asked indignantly.

"I don't want a job as a teacher," he said. "I want a job as a janitor."

He didn't get it, so he went out and engaged in odds and ends of trade, and he prospered until he had quite a big business. One day he was introduced to a bank president, who had been informed what a fine business man he was and who offered credit in abundance to him in order to expand his establishment.

"You lend me money?" the Jew said in surprise. "How much can you lend me?"

The banker told him. "All right," said the Jew. "Let me have it."

A note was made out and presented to him to sign.

"What's this?" he asked.

"That's a note—sign it," said the banker.

"No," said the Jew.

"Why not?" asked the banker.

"I can't write," was the answer.

"What!" exclaimed the banker.

"You can't read or write? Then how in the name of goodness does it happen that you are a successful business man?"

"My friend," said the Jew, "if I could read and write I'd have been a janitor."

The evils charged to dental imperfections now advance to include certain forms of insanity. The Spectator learns that investigations in certain asylums for the insane have led to improvement in condition in certain instances by the ministrations of the dental surgeon, so that possibly a little painless extraction is all one needs to remove hallucinations, just as occasionally the removal of an offending molar with its deep seated abscesses may relieve neuritis. Oral hygiene is still in its infancy, and apparently there is more in it than the scientists of forty years ago would have dreamed. That modern dentistry is a serious menace to the whole country is emphatically stated by Dr. Henry A. Cotton, medical director of the State Hospital at Trenton, N. J., in the 73d, annual report of the medical department of that hospital for the year ending June 30, 1920. Says Dr. Cotton: "The most worthy investigators in the field of dentistry, have for years, called attention to the criminal practice of saving teeth which should be extracted, by such methods as pivot teeth, gold crowns and fixed bridge work," according to the report. "In a large majority of cases, such work is done without the use of an X-Ray, to determine whether or not there are any apical abscesses in these diseased teeth. We believe that full publicity should be given to this danger, that the public should be warned and instructed in the field of dentistry, that they should demand the proper kind of dental work and not accept the sort that will later cause either physical or mental trouble. We do not stand alone in our opinion regarding the danger of infected teeth, but have the support of the most progressive medical men and also the leading dental authorities. We find that the infected tooth is a prominent factor in all of our cases, but we would fall utterly if our work was confined to the extraction of infected teeth. We feel that this is usually the source of infection which pervades other organs of the body. Unfortunately, the impression has gotten abroad that we claim infected teeth to be the sole cause of insanity. We have been dubbed by one Philadelphia neurologist as a 'movement of exodontia.' We submit that in all our writings we have always stated that the infection of teeth, tonsils and gastro-intestinal tract and other foci of infection are responsible for the trouble."

A DANGEROT'S SPORT

Winchester, Mass., Sept. 1, 1920. Editor Winchester Star:

May I through the columns of your paper call to the attention of Winchester parents the new, popular and exceedingly dangerous sport in which their sons are engaging?

Since the coming of the so-called "one-man" car on the Arlington-Wakefield line, boys and young men steal rides by hanging on the rear, and, because large numbers go daily to the movies, this free transportation is quite the thing.

It is absolutely impossible for the man in charge to attend to the rear of his car, and in case of accident should be blameless.

Forest street, from the Stancham line, is a street of curves, one of the main roads for automobiles and trucks. The boys jump from the cars when nearing the slaps where passengers are taken on or off. During the past week two boys jumped directly in the path of an auto, and it was only wonderful good management on the part of the lady driving that saved their lives. Little fellows can hardly hold when the car swings around the curves. Also very heavy trucks carrying crushed stone pass over this street every few minutes, and, when returning empty, the drivers coast down the hills. The machine would be impossible to stop quickly, and are a menace to the public under the best of conditions.

Mothers and fathers, please take this up with your sons. Is your boy one of them? Do you want him killed or maimed for life?

Fortnightly Notes

There will be many interesting classes in this group's work, and we hope many of the club members will find one or two in which they can be interested. The Art Committee plan classes who will visit the Art Museum and become acquainted with its treasures.

Something may be done in music to interest the children.

The Home Economics Committee have one class in milking well under way who will meet at the railroad station on Tuesday morning, September 14, at 9 o'clock, taking the 9.6 train for Boston to obtain materials for this work.

If ten or more members signify a desire for classes in Current Events, Practical Politics, or Parliamentary Law, such classes may be formed.

The Dramatic Committee will conduct classes called The Fortnightly Players. From this group the performers in the club drama will be chosen. The members of this committee will act as judges and managers.

WINCHESTER GRANGE

The regular meeting of Winchester Grange will be held in Lyceum Hall, Tuesday evening, September 11. The first and second degrees will be conferred.

Grangers please bear in mind that the following week a regular meeting will be held, Tuesday evening, September 21, instead of the fourth Tuesday, owing to the Pioneer meeting coming on September 30.

Applications for the fifth degree should be in. The fifth degree will be given September 30 at Winchester. The sixth at Faneuil Hall, Boston, October 20.

Winchester Wins Two Out of Three Games Over the Holiday.

Winchester came across on the winning end in two of the three games played from Saturday until Monday. The surprise of all the games was the one Saturday afternoon, in which game the pick of the Industrial League played us a 1 to 0 game. This score seems close, but the Winchester team fell down on several chances to score during the game. Higgins pulled a great comp back stunt and had the Winchester batters swinging their heads off at his slow curve. Jimmy Fitzgerald pitched first-class ball for Winchester and deserved to win.

Labor Day morning we visited Arlington and what we didn't do to the two Arlington pitchers was a shame. Collins who started for Arlington was knocked out of the box and Flynn who followed did not fare much better. I said in last week's Star that if Collins faced us again he was due for a beating, and he got it. Davidson and Walsh had a full day at the bat, both getting a single, a double, and a triple. Weater pitched great ball for Winchester and had no trouble holding the Arlington batters in check. In the afternoon game we faced Woburn in the third game of the series, and, as in the previous games, it proved to be a star game. Woburn scored one run in the first inning by the most kind of luck, and that ran proved to be enough to win the game. Davidson pitched the best game of the year against Woburn, and held them to one clean single and a scratch hit. We had many chances to score with runners on second and third, but our heavy hitters failed us in the pinch, and Woburn walked away with the game. They had Golden, who was formerly with the Washington American League team, in the box, but Davidson pitched a much better game and in the ordinary course of events should have won. Here's all the scores and they tell the story.

NOTES

12 won, 4 lost for a percentage of .750. Wins a mark for future managers to shoot at.

The game Saturday should have drawn a larger crowd, but the Red Sox double header was too much of an attraction.

"Cute" Higgins surely did himself proud, and while the score shows he was hit hard, he managed to keep them well scattered.

Doherty, who caught him, was the best looking catcher seen on the field this season, and he caught our speed boys standing up going into second. He also can hit the ball.

Take the game all around, it proved to be a good one and I fail to see how Manager McManus can refuse to give them a game at Woburn.

A big crowd went from here to the Arlington game, but this game proved a flyover, as the Arlington team did not have a look in.

Arlington will play the final game of the season here at Winchester, September 15.

What gets me, is how Collins ever held us to one hit in the game at Winchester. They will probably use Cadigan against us in the final game, but he is due for a bumping also.

Daley mipped a good game and I want to say that while he may have his troubles with other teams, he generally gives Winchester all that is coming to them. I keep the players off the umpires, and that helps the game.

Weater never looked better than he did at Arlington, and was in the game every minute. Give him any sort of runs to work on and he will generally win his game. He will pitch the game Saturday against the Forster Co.

"Kiko" also worked hard on the coaching lines in the afternoon game, and wanted to see Winchester win.

I fail to see what the Woburn management were thinking about when they got Harold McDonald to help them with the team. He was never a ball player in his best days, and the only thing about him is his mouth, which he does not know how to use. It is a good thing for him the season is coming to a close or he would bump into a lot of trouble and also get the team in bad.

For the afternoon game I had to hustle around and dig up three players, two of them, Doc Doherty and Ryan are first-class men, and McManus, who played in right field, may be, but he looked anything like a player at the bat.

Doc Doherty cannot be beaten as a first baseman, and he takes the game more seriously than he ever did, playing to win all the time now. He will stick the rest of the season.

Walsh, Quigley and McCarthy left after the Arlington game as their own team was due for a game in the afternoon. I won't bother with these fellows any more as we do not know where they are from one game to the next.

MRS. AGNES H. NICHOLS

Mrs. Agnes Helen Nichols, wife of Mr. Charles A. Nichols of Lebanon street, died Sunday morning at the hotel at The Balsams, in St. Johnsbury, Vt. Mrs. Nichols had been in poor health a long while and had gone to Vermont to be near her children and spend a long vacation in hopes to improve. She was taken suddenly ill there, and an operation failed to improve things. She was a very loving, gentle and kind mother and friend, and many will miss her Christian virtues. She leaves, besides her husband, one daughter living at Hardwick, Vt., another in St. Johnsbury and a son in St. Johnsbury, Vt. Miss Alice Nichols, a daughter, is well known as a musician of considerable talent here. The funeral service was held at St. Johnsbury, at her son's home, and the interment was in the family lot there.

Miss Catherine V. Manning, who has been employed in the office of the Winchester Landries, Inc., for the past eleven years, has discontinued her relations with the company, and has accepted a position with the Old Colony Trust Company, Boston.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Enjoy the good things of life but don't be one of them.

It is only fair to exercise your rights, but don't work them to death.

Everytime a man makes a lucky guess he is apt to boast of his good judgment.

Wherever there is a will there seems to be one or more lawyers.

Did it ever occur to you that a fool can shatter a wise man's argument with an idiotic laugh.

Your full name please! Republican.

Not heard by Mr. Kudder.

"George, who do I vote for there?"

A satisfactory holiday.

Everyone rested now but the election officers.

Former Governor Samuel W. Mc-Call attended the polls Tuesday afternoon as usual, but he accompanied this year for his daughter, Ruth, preceded him within the rail. We presume there was no difference of opinion.

The ladies registered and voted.
Out of 446 women voters 380 cast their first official ballot Tuesday, while out of 2218 men, 812 voted.
Hats off to the ladies.

Our first holy clerk cast the first woman's ballot in a general election here. Although she was at the polls at 5:30 a. m., she did not by any means cast the first vote, waiting until breakfast time before declaring herself.

Our public schools will now come into the limelight. The report of the spring survey has not reached us and with the women voting the school committee will probably be very carefully considered more so than in years past, although the women have previously voted for this board. By the way, what ever became of that Heddon Fund, subscribed for a memorial in the Wadleigh School?

At Tuesday's election over 5000 ballots were not used. The pile of unused ballots was so large and so heavy that it could barely be lifted by one man. The reason for this was that ballots had been provided by the State authorities for every voter in the town, and many did not attend the polls. It is interesting to note that in past town elections the late former, Clerk, George H. Carter, usually ordered ballots by the amount used rather than the possible vote, and he seldom had over a hundred or two left over; his judgment was always good. This condition, as applying to town elections, will not change however, for our present Clerk, Miss Mabel M. Stinson, is probably the best judge of a vote we have, and thus far has not had any surplus of waste ballots. Tuesday's waste will probably keep the Police department in scrub paper for the next year or more.

Chief David H. DeConroy of the Fire Department states that the crowding of automobiles about a fire, and the racing to the box upon the sounding of an alarm, is seriously menacing the work of his department.
He states that at recent fires had it been required to lay hose, the trucks could not have done so, the autos were packed in so thickly. The remedy does not lay readily at hand, for these cars are on the scene before the apparatus arrives, and with the apparatus driving in, it would be no small job to clear the place. Other cars are driven by people who appear to assume that their quick arrival is of more importance than the apparatus.
Just what will be done has not been decided as yet. Meanwhile Chief De-Conroy requests that auto drivers give way to the department trucks and do not drive to the immediate scene of the fire. Probably the majority of the trouble is caused by thoughtlessness, and drivers should recognize that in many cases not only property is endangered, but human life may be at stake. Give the fire apparatus room in all instances.

MISS MARY J. CHISHOLM

Miss Mary J. Chisholm, daughter of the late Francis Chisholm, an old resident of Winchester, passed away at her home on Highland avenue, Wednesday evening. Her whole life has been passed in the home in which she was born in 1850. She was a member of the Ladies' Friendly Society and the Highland Bethany Society, and before her illness was active in benevolence.

Miss Chisholm has been an example of patience and endurance during her long illness. A brother in Winchester and a cousin who has faithfully cared for her for the past five years, survive her.

The funeral services will be held from the residence, 2 Highland avenue, this afternoon, and will be conducted by Rev. Warren P. Landers and Rev. Arthur L. Winn. The burial will be in Wildwood Cemetery.

LOWER CALIFORNIA

Lower California, reported to be in revolt against the present Mexican government, is described in a communication to the National Geographic Society by Frederick Simpich,
as follows:

"The long, boot-shaped peninsula that swings down off the left-hand corner of the United States belongs to Mexico and is known on Mexican maps as 'Baja,' or Lower California.
Early Spanish maps of America showed California as an island, and no doubt, to limited explorations of this peninsula.

Scarcely known as it is to the average American, this 800-mile-long strip of rocks, prairie, brush-grown mesas, and rare, fertile little valleys is a favorite haunt for many Yankee naturalists, fishermen, and big-game hunters; and here and there, in the more favored, well-watered, grassy spots of the higher ranges, hardy American cattlemen have built their adobe homes, where they enjoy the limitless freedom of vast, unfenced areas. The Circle Bar Company of Ojos Negros Ranch runs cattle over a leased territory of two and a half million acres, and a British corporation holds title to something like fifteen million acres.

Away down at peaceful, picturesque La Paz, where Cortez required his schooners, and where, centuries later, Walker, the Yankee filibuster, raised his flag, another Yankee today runs a busy little tannery, turning out 180 sides of good leather every day for an American shoe factory. Here and there, in hill and valley, Americans are delving for metals or growing the staple frijole.

But the country as a whole, owing to its many desert, waterless areas, is but sparsely settled, and, as one writer says, "in all its turbulent, romantic history, since the halcyon days when Sir Francis Drake dropped his pirate anchor in Magdalena Bay, no wheeled vehicle has traversed its rough and tortuous length."

Rich as are its mines and fat as are its herds of cattle, its chief source of wealth lies in the cotton-growing regions around Mexicali.

At the Colorado delta, at the head of the Gulf of California, which separates the Lower California peninsula from Sonora, more than at any other point on the whole border, the interests of the United States and of Mexico are closely joined. This is due to the singular topography of that region (part of it is below sea level) and to the diversion of water from the Colorado River. In the opinion of many irrigation engineers and political students, this peculiarly delicate problem of irrigation water rights, as between planters on the American and Mexican sides of the line, respectively, can be solved satisfactorily only by some joint treaty between the two republics, involving either the fixing of a neutral zone or the sale of a small strip of territory.

A FISHING TRIP

A party of twelve left Winchester early Sunday morning for Gloucester, where the day was spent from 10:30
a. m. until 5 p. m. fishing. When they arrived at Gloucester, they secured dories and rowed out about a quarter of a mile from the shore, and to say that the trip was a success is saying a trifle.

Each one of the party secured at least 10 fish of different kinds, and at the end of the day they had to leave the greater part of them behind as there was entirely too much to carry home. The lobster men at Gloucester were glad to secure the balance as they use the baiting the lobster traps. The fishing ground is off Ipswich Bay, and is known as Ipswich Bay. While the party was out in the boats several small yachts passed us, and one of them contained one of the employers of one of the party and he pulled up and asked how the fishing was. They showed him half a boat load of all kinds. The season is getting late now, but another season will see us going down every other Sunday. In the party were: Tom Mc-Mahon, Roy Norrell, Bill Nowell, Ben Edmonds, Joe Polucci, Ray Hans-comb, Harry DeConroy, "Black" and three of his sons, and Norman Harrill.

MISS CRAWFORD SHOWERED

Miss Helen L. Crawford was tendered a novelty shower at her home on Swanton street, on Tuesday evening, by about forty friends from Stoneham, Reading, Woburn, Andover, Boston and Winchester. She received many useful and beautiful gifts. During the evening a mock marriage took place, followed by solos rendered by Miss Charlotte Mooney, Miss Mildred Harold and Miss Elizabeth Loftus of this town, and Miss Teresa Fallon of Stoneham, accompanied on the piano
by Miss Margaret Lyons of Woburn.
Miss Crawford is to marry Mr.
George F. Young of this town, this month.

ADVERTISE AND GET RESULTS

About a year ago a man who was physically and financially able to increase his insurance told me, "Not then," I called asked the physician to whom he had recently gone for treat-

The answer was, "No."

The whist and dancing party given last evening at the K. of C. Home on Vine street, under the auspices of Mrs. M. C. Ambrose, for the benefit of the table of Mrs. Richard Glendon at the coming K. of C. Bazaar, proved one of the most successful affairs of the series thus far held. There was a large attendance, and the party, both financially and socially, was such as to give much gratification to all concerned.

Dancing was enjoyed in the west wing of the Home while the card tables were filled, and during the evening refreshments were served. The

MARY CHISHOLM

Miss Mary Chisholm, a lifelong resident of Winchester, died on the eighth day of September, 1920. She was the daughter of Francis and Annie Chisholm and was born on March 17, 1850, in the house in which she had always lived and passed away.

For many years she was an operative in the watch hand factory, but after her mother's death she kept house for her father until his death.
Miss Chisholm enjoyed a wide acquaintance among the older residents of the town. She was always interested in everything which related to the growth and development of Winchester and the success of its residents. She endeavored herself to mu-ny by her kind acts and generous disposition. For the last five years she has been afflicted by an incurable disease of the liver and frequently has been confined to her bed. Although a great sufferer, she endured her afflictions cheerfully and patiently.

Miss Chisholm was a member of the Unitarian church.
Funeral services will be held at her home this afternoon, the Rev. Mr.
Landers of the Second Congregational Church, and Rev. Arthur Winn officiating.

She leaves one brother, John W.
Chisholm of Spokane, in the State of Washington.

A MAGIC ISLAND OF THE MEDITERRANEAN

"And the trials of bent, H. C. of L. and politics it may be fearful to read of a place where cool breezes blow, and the scenery is magic, where people are penurious and honest and there are no profiteers, where the women are pretty, charming and easily entertained, and life moves along with a song!" says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

There is such a spot. Ten hours out from continental Spain on a fairly fast and quiet comfortable steamer lies a little archipelago—the Balearic Islands—whose largest island called Mallorca, or Majorca, is perhaps the most interesting and pleasant, as well as one of the most forgotten islands of the Mediterranean. The following account of its attractions is summarized from the description of an eye-witness, Col. Ernesto de March y de Garma-Mon, Spanish Army.

A great painter and writer called it the "Island of calm" for there everyone moves, rests, talks, walks, and conducts his courtships as if the day had forty-eight hours, the mile about 16,000 feet, and the span of human life seven hundred years, so little haste do they make in living and enjoying life. One Mallorquin of noble family is said to have waited forty-five years in determining to lead his sweetheart to the altar, with no protest from her, and without having been slain in exasperation by his mother-in-law.

Last summer during the latter part of July when the thermometer in Washington and New York stood around 90 degrees in the shade, and in Madrid ran to blood heat, the breezes fanned these island folk to the tune of 76 degrees.

The surface of the island is extremely varied. The flat lands, admirably cultivated and covered with orange, olive, lemon, almond, and olive trees, spread out beyond mountains four or five thousand feet high. Upon the sides of these peaks small little villages seem to hang. Like many of the Mediterranean islands, with a gleam here, Mallorca's littoral

COLORED FILMS SHOWN BY DUDLEY MURPHY

The first showing of the artistic colored films directed by Dudley Murphy of Winchester, son of the artist, Herman Dudley Murphy, was shown privately Saturday, August 28, before a group of friends, critics and artists at the Boston Motion Picture Supply at the Boston Church street. Mr. Murphy, who has been associated with Lasky, Goldwyn, Fox and Universal film corporations as assistant art director, has just returned from California, where he has been a year and a half conducting films of his own. With capital he has raised, a camera expert and with Katherine Hawley, a pupil of Isadora Duncan, to pose for him, Mr. Murphy has turned out some very beautiful films.

Four short films, of rather picturesque, about 20 minutes each, were shown, and judged from a purely artistic standpoint—that is, as far as pictorial composition, subject matter and color—the films are all beautifully colored—the results is a distinct achievement. Mr. Murphy did not attempt any plot or dramatic theme, but has striven to connect the changing views by poetical subtleties.

essentially that extending from Dragoon to Pollensa and from Soller to the extremity of Formentor is indeed picturesque. The natural beauty of its huge cliffs, seeming to be washed by both wave and cloud at the same moment, is awe-inspiring and mysterious. Visitors are apt to feel reasonably sure that nymphs, naiads, sirens, and tritons once peopled its groves, and that Ligia combed her lovely hair with her golden comb on some of the queer jutting rocks at their entrances.

N. p. is this wonderful island an impractical place to spend a few months. There are about 120 miles of railroads on the island, and a system of local roads which permit of a traveler's visiting any of the chief points of interest with ease and comfort.

These people who take life so leisurely are not lazy, shiftless, or unpleasant in personal appearance or manner. They are intelligent, honest, capable of work, sober and economical. These characteristics preserved throughout centuries of unintermitted peace and tranquility have made them dependable, trusting, and home-loving. The men are of medium height, strong, and agile. They have competed brilliantly in many of the championships sporting events held in Spain, and wherever they have gone on the continent their undertakings have been marked with success. And as for the women, Col. March, in writing of them says:

They possess the same lovely skin as the women of North America, features as if sculptured by Phidias or Praxiteles, and they walk like goddesses. But he laments in the next are truly enchanting.

And an all important feature! The cost of living is cheap in Mallorca. Who would not be astonished to know that he could become a member of the "Royal Club of Regatas," fully and comfortably equipped for about 20 cents a month in dues? Though prices have risen here as elsewhere during the war, the aforementioned Spanish colony says that it is the "Spot of all Europe and America where one could have lived most reasonably during these past five years."

The Balearic group, belonging to Spain, consists of five main islands and several islets. It is ruled as a military district, but the mother country has been wise enough to recruit the soldiers she needed for discipline from among the islanders themselves, thus insuring a satisfactory rule.

Squash Vine Borers

Squash vine borers have been unusually prevalent this year, and they, along with the dry weather, are going to make the regular crop of winter squash almost a failure. Much, if not all, of this vine borer damage could have been done away with by covering the vines at the large nodes, as suggested in a previous story.

Cucumber Wilt

Cucumber vines have been dying badly this year, not only from blight, but from what is known as wilt. Wilt is a bacterial disease which enters the vines through punctures made by insects, the insects, therefore, have caused the greater share of the trouble. Spraying with arsenical poisons would have killed all the insects, and the use of Bordeaux in these sprays would have controlled some of the bacterial wilt.

Storage of Vegetables

The season is rapidly approaching when we must consider the storage of our garden vegetables. The type and method of storage will depend almost entirely upon the quantity and particular vegetable to be stored. Most home gardeners growing any appreciable quantity of vegetables should have a storage in their home cellar. This should consist of a room partitioned in one corner of the cellar. A room need not be partitioned where there is no artificial heat in the cellar and where the cellar is damp. Most home cellars now have heating apparatus; therefore, it is desirable to have one corner set aside as a storage location. The partitions can be easily made of 2x3 or 2x4 inch lumber, papered and sheathed on both sides. If possible, the room should be located in a corner of the cellar where access can be had to a cellar window. The center light of the window should be removed and a wooden flap built from the lower half of the window, right down to within 6 inches of the cellar bottom. This is to let in to the bottom of the storage room cool air. A damper, of course, should be placed in this cold air flue. The upper half of the window light should be closed with a trap door which can be easily opened and shut. This is to be used as an outlet for the warm air. With the damper in the cold-air flue and this warm-air outlet it is easy to regulate the temperature in the storage room. During the fall they can be opened up in the evening, enter during the night, and the damper closed up in the morning, keeping the warm air out and holding the cold, damp air in. Shelves and bins can be built in this storage room, in which are placed the vegetables or fruits.

If one has a large quantity of root crops, and does not care to store them in the cellar, they may be stored in so-called pits outdoors in the garden or by the house. Beets, carrots, turnips are placed in bins and covered with straw, leaves or other litter, upon which is placed a layer of dirt, over which is placed more litter. These pits should not be made until danger of heavy frosts; beets, for instance, should not be frozen badly out of doors. Parsnips and salsify are better if they have been frozen; therefore, the common practice is to permit them to freeze out of doors, and bring them into the cellar frozen, or cover them in pits while they are frozen. This means, of course, digging them before the ground freezes and leaving them in a pile outside, so that they can freeze.

Clean Up Gardens

As the crops mature and are harvested, the litter should be cleaned up. Any litter, such as cornstalks, bean plants, squash vines, tomato vines and the like, large enough for corn borers to enter should be collected, permitted to dry, and then be burnt. Anything in which the borer cannot enter should be spaded under in order to furnish humus to the soil. An earlier article suggested that seed rye should be sown upon all bare ground as soon as crops are harvested.

This is the Last of This Season's Garden Articles

This is the last article which will appear this season on home gardening. Any home gardeners or others who have been reading the articles from time to time, and who have other questions on any phase of storage or home garden work, should write to the Middlesex County Bureau of Agriculture and Home Economics, 7 Moody Street, Waltham, Mass.

RATS—A COSTLY PEST

As carriers of the dread bubonic plague, rats are a menace, but that is only one form of their costly and dangerous depredations, says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic Society:

"Rats are practically omnivorous and their depredations cover a wide range," writes Edward W. Nelson, in a communication to the Society. "They feed indifferently upon all kinds of vegetable and animal matter."

They dig up newly planted grain, destroy it while growing and also when in the shock, stacks, crib, granary, mill, elevator, warehouse, wharf, and ship's hold, as well as in the bin and feed trough. They eat fruits, vegetables, and meats in the market, destroying at the same time by pollution far more than is consumed.

They destroy enormous numbers of eggs and poultry, as well as the eggs and young of song and game birds. In addition, they invade stores and warehouses and destroy groceries of every description, as well as furs, fashions, silks, carpets, and leather goods.

They cause many disastrous fires by gnawing matches, by gnawing through lead pipe near gas meters, or by cutting the insulation from electric wires in order to secure material for nests and by gathering oil-soaked rags and other inflammable material in their nests; food houses by gnawing through lead water pipes; ruin artificial ponds and embankments by burrowing, and damage foundations, floors, doors, and furnishings of dwellings.

As disease carriers they also cause enormous commercial losses, especially through the introduction of bubonic plague and the resulting suspension of commerce. With the introduction of plague they become directly responsible for business disaster, as well as for an appalling mortality.

Much the greater part of losses from these pests is in foodstuffs, which, as already indicated, are destroyed at every stage from the time the seed is planted until they are ready for human consumption.

Investigations some years ago indicated that the direct annual losses sustained in the United States were about $200,000,000, with a great additional sum in indirect losses, including the effect on the public health and commerce from the diseases carried by rats, and the necessary expenditures in combatting them. Assuming, roughly speaking, that, as estimated, the rat population in the United States is 50,000,000 for the cities and 150,000,000 for the rural districts, it will require the destruction of property by each rat of only a little more than one-fourth cent a day to make the aggregate great sum estimated as destroyed by these pests yearly in this country.

A more definite idea of the losses from rats may be gained by considering what it means in human effort.

Taking the average yearly returns on a man's labor in agriculture, as shown by the census of 1910, it requires the continuous work of about 150,000 men, with farms, agricultural implements, and other equipment, to supply the foodstuffs destroyed annually by rats in the United States. In addition, rats destroy other property, mainly of agricultural origin, the production of which requires the work of about 50,000 men.

This gives a total of 200,000 men, with their equipment, in this country, whose economic output is devoted solely to feeding and otherwise providing for rats. If a small fraction of this army and the money involved could be concentrated in a continuous national campaign against these pests a vast saving could be achieved."

Average Life, Thirty-Three Years.
Good authorities give the average duration of human life as about thirty-three years. One quarter of the people on the earth die before the age of six, one-half before the age of sixteen, and only about one person of each one hundred born lives to the age of sixty-five. The deaths are calculated at sixty-seven months, 97,700 a day and 25,629,885 a year. Births are calculated at about seventy-nine months, 100,800 a day and 30,792,000 a year.

A Durable Roof Quickly Laid

You needn't spend a lot of money to get a tight, good looking, slate covered roof.

JAPROID

Slate Surfaced
ROOFING

Goes on the roof in strips a yard wide and provides practically a one-piece roof covered with natural red slate, Nature's best protection.

In no other way can you so quickly, easily and cheaply lay a permanent roof covering that will withstand the wear and tear of sun, wind and storm, summer and winter.

ARE MENTAL TESTS INHUMAN?

Extract taken from Library Digest, July 21, 1920.

A Psychologist standing very high in his profession said recently that these tests, unfortunately did not cover character, which, to make them complete they should. Character is getting to be so fashionable, with efficiency absorbing the attention of everyone. The two combined stand for all that is best in the world. Efficiency by itself becomes a damnable thing because it ceases to be human.

If you ask a business man what qualities he likes a boy to have who is entering his employ, he is pretty likely to put the traits that go to make up character first; the traits that will make the boy consider his employer's business his business.

Brains are essential, but employers seem to want reliability and other sterling qualities as certainly of equal value to brain efficiency.

The mental efficiency tests are cold-blooded propositions, with character excluded.

Character, surely a fine thing, but unscientific, we can't express in figures, so why bother?

Everything for school at Wilson the Stationer's.

At the meeting to be held in the High School Assembly Hall, Wednesday, September 22, at 3 o'clock, three representative teachers will give short talks: Mr. Thompson, principal of the High School; Miss Davis and Miss Dodge. All mothers are cordially invited. Children may be brought and left in charge of a kindergarten teacher. Refreshments will be served. Show your genuine interest in your children and schools by being present.

BOWLING TO OPEN

The fall and winter bowling season opens at the Calumet Club on Saturday evening, the 25th, when a special tournament will call the members out for a most attractive list of prizes in a program of novelty events. It is planned by the bowling committee to make this year's rolling the biggest feature of the club's activities, and the alleys will doubtless be kept in constant use from now on. In addition to the customary Saturday night, holiday and visiting club matches, one of the features arranged will be a roll-off for prizes each month, twenty men qualifying, with the five highest strings selected from tournament matches, with handicap serving as a basis for competing.

Another new feature will be the system of classification by ratings, which had been decided upon as the most equitable arrangement. Three classes will be organized—class A, scratch to 84, inclusive; class B, 85 to 89, inclusive; class C, 90 and below.

The regular fall and winter tournament will start about October 4, the usual five-men teams rolling on handicap being arranged. Entry cards for this tournament are now out, and must be returned not later than September 25, at which date the schedule for the rolling will be made up.

AUTO ACCIDENTS

A Dart, roadster, owned and driven by Mr. G. R. Sargent of Salem, ran into a tree on Mt. Vernon street at the Wadleigh school Sunday and was badly wrecked. Just how the accident occurred was not explained, but it is thought to have been caused by the car running off the crowned road during a moment's inattention of the driver. A woman companion of Mr. Sargent received a bad cut on her head. She was taken to her home in Malden by Mr. J. A. Hersey. The car was badly wrecked, the frame and engine being damaged.

On Monday evening at 5:15, Leo Melanson of Melrose, riding a motor cycle on Forest street near the Watt place, collided head-on with a Buick car owned and driven by Mr. Henry T. Crocker of 7 Kenwin road. The motor cycle struck the auto on the left side just between the wheel and the engine, its front wheel and handlebars being snapped off and it being badly wrecked. The fender on one side of the auto was ripped off back to the seat. Melanson was badly injured, being cut on both legs from the knee to the thigh. He was taken to the Melrose hospital by a passing auto. Mr. Crocker was not injured.

SANTA MARIA COURT

Santa Maria Court, No. 130, Daughters of Isabella, will conduct its first special affair of the Fall season this evening. This will take the form of a whist and ball dance and will be held at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Powers, Main street, for the Propagation of the Faith. Whist will be played on the first and second floors, and dancing will be enjoyed on the third.

Many fine prizes have been donated for this party, and there have been given, also, many gifts of cake, confections and money.

The committee in charge includes Mrs. Wm. H. Vayo, chairman; Mrs. T. W. Conlon, Mrs. Elizabeth Powers, Mrs. Josephine O'Brien, Miss Katherine O'Connor, Mrs. Nora O'Melia, Mrs. Thomas Keane, Miss Mabel Coty, Mrs. Joseph O'Connor, Miss Mary McManon, G. R. Mrs. Alice Martin, and Mrs. Patrick Noonan.

ELECTION PLANS MADE

As soon planned, important innovations will be instituted to handle the voting at the November election. It is planned to divide the voting list into two parts, probably from A to L and M to Z. The women's list will be divided in a similar manner. The large town hall is to be used, with entrances at both sides and a central exit in the middle. Two ballot boxes will be used and the number of tellers will be largely increased. The town has only one working ballot box, and it will be necessary to purchase another box. It is estimated that the women's registration will reach 2000. At present it is just under 950.

MISS RYALL SHOWERED

A linen shower was tendered Miss Annie Ryall at the home of her sister, Mrs. Edward Fleming, Pond street, on Wednesday evening, by a large gathering of friends. Miss Ryall was the recipient of many beautiful gifts, including linen and cut glass. During the evening music, both vocal and instrumental, were enjoyed and a collation served. Miss Ryall will marry Mr. John Buckley of Akron, O., on Sunday, September 26.

ELLIOTT—GODDU

A pretty home wedding took place on Friday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Goddu, 6 Goddu avenue, when their daughter, Ellen Rosanne, was married to Mr. Carlisle Brookings Elliott, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Elliott of Grove street. Both the bride and groom are widely known among Winchester's young people, they being graduates of the Winchester High School and prominent socially.

The residence was attractive for the ceremony in decorations of pink and green, asters, roses and fern being effectively used in carrying out the dainty combination. A bower of flowers and green was used for the ceremony, the couple standing in it in the parlor when they were married. The wedding took place at seven-thirty, being performed by Rev. Frank Oliver Hall of the Parkway.

The bride wore a dress of white satin, trimmed with pearl beads. Her veil was caught with a spray of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses. Mrs. Doris Thompson, cousin of the bride, was the matron of honor. She wore a dress of pink georgette and carried pink roses. The Misses Madeline Goddu and Jean Thompson, little sister and cousin of the bride, were flower girls and were dressed alike in pink and carried baskets of pink asters. Mr. Louis E. Goddu, the bride's brother, was best man. The wedding march was played by Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Goddu, the wedding party entering to the violin and piano, and the bride was given in marriage by her father.

A reception, attended by about a hundred friends and relatives, followed the ceremony, the ushers being Messrs. Warren and Lloyd Goddu, brother and cousin of the bride. The couple were assisted in receiving by their parents.

Many handsome gifts were received, among them being a set of flat silver from the Coca-Cola Co., with which the groom is associated. Following an automobile tour through Maine and a stop at the camp of the bride's father at Kears Lake, East Fryburg, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott will make their home in Springfield.

HAISE IN FARES CAUSES RUMPS

All users of the electric lines in town are up in arms over the recent raise in fares. It is very probable that the matter will be taken up by the Board of Trade in common with other places, although whether the outcome will be satisfactory or not appears in doubt.

Under present fares the zones have been doubled—from 5 cents to 10. It now costs 20 cents to ride from the centre to Arlington or to Stoneham, and an equal amount to Medford and Woburn if the zones are passed, although the actual centers of the two latter places may still be reached for a dime. Thus many Winchester people who depend upon the cars to reach homes on the outskirts are taxed 20 cents. A trip to Wakefield or North Woburn costs nearly as much as one paid a few years ago for a boat trip to New York.

Tickets are sold in dollar blocks, which reduce the cost, 14 tickets being on a block, but these tickets are only good for over one zone.

As an outcome there is considerable talk of jitney lines and bus routes. It is reported that the car barns at Woburn are to be closed on September 25. The Stoneham-Arlington cars are to come from the Melrose barn and the through Woburn cars from Lowell.

BASERALL TOMORROW

Tomorrow we meet Arlington in the final game of this season, and I hope we win the game. We can go to Arlington and play that team off its feet, but when we face them here it is another story. Hevey will be back and play short, and either Ryan or Christy at second base. Christy may not be here for this game, but if he is, of course he will play. Weaver will pitch with Doherty behind the bat, and the rest of the team will stand as it played against the Forbes team. This will be the last big game of the year in these series which we have been running, and I draw another big crowd. As I said in my notes, seats are scarce and early arrivals get them.

A scientific exhibition should prove interesting, and among the other artists on the program will be Thomas Fallon, Mrs. James McGrath, James W. Horne, Tom McKee, R. Gillis, R. MRS. NORMAN L. TEWKSBURY

Mrs. Edith Maynard (Adams) Tewksbury, wife of Mr. Norman L. Tewksbury of Hancock street, died on Saturday after a long illness. She was in her thirty-second year and was married only last October. Her death is mourned by a large circle of Winchester young people.

Mrs. Tewksbury was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Adams of Dix street, and was born in this town and graduated from the Winchester High School in 1907. For several years she was connected with the Winchester Trust Co., resigning her position there to be married. Last spring she was stricken with a heart trouble, and for a considerable time she had been in a serious condition. She leaves besides her husband and parents, two brothers, Capt. Walter H. Adams of Pasadena, Cal., and Capt. George F. Adams, U. S. M. C., of Quantico, Va. She was a member of Crescent Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, of Stoneham, the First Congregational Church of this town, and the Ladies' Western Missionary Society.

Largely attended funeral services were held from the Adams residence on Dix street Tuesday afternoon at 2:30, Rev. Howard J. Chidley of the First Congregational Church officiating. During the service the selections, "Lead, Kindly Light" and "Sometime You'll Understand," were sung by Miss Jean MacClellan and Mrs. Richard S. Taylor. There was a profusion of lovely flowers, sent by many friends. The pallbearers were Messrs. Parker Holbrook, Ralph F. Arnold, Arthur A. Belville, Ernest H. Butterworth, Gilbert C. Eastman of Milford and Walter Skilling of Lawrence. The burial was in Wildwood Cemetery.

Sleep sweet and sound! No fever's burning pain,
No labored breathing mars thy slumber deep.
Soundly and sweetly sleep!
Awake refreshed and strong, to greet thine own!
The hands of love death has no power to break.
Strong and refreshed awake!

SERIOUSLY INJURED

The condition of Mrs. George A. Barron, injured by an automobile at Ashland, N. H., two weeks ago, is such as to cause grave anxiety. It now appears that in addition to a bad scalp wound, the lower end of her spine has been injured, and specialists have been called in for consultation. Mrs. Barron is still at a private hospital at Ashland and cannot be moved.

According to report, Mrs. Barron, who had accompanied her husband on an auto trip through New Hampshire, was standing on the sidewalk in Ashland when an automobile said to have been driven by a comparatively new driver, ran onto the sidewalk and knocked her down. She received a bad scalp wound and the wheel passed over her hand, injuring it. She was at once taken to the hospital, and at first it was not thought that her injuries were serious. Later developments are much to the contrary.

ST. MARY'S CHAPEL, OPEN IN A FEW WEEKS

Rev. Nathaniel J. Morrill, pastor of St. Mary's church, is making preparations for the opening of a chapel in the building at the corner of Main street and Glenwood avenue. Father Morrill has given much thought to the parishioners of St. Mary's Church in that locality, and the chapel will be a great convenience to the people. Already the interior of the building has been remodelled to the church requirements.

NO RECOUNT AT PRESENT

The Registrars of Voters and Town Counsel Ralph E. Joslin met last evening to consider the petition of Whitfield L. Tuck, Patrick E. Fitzgerald and nine others for a recount of the primary ballot. After consideration it was decided not to hold a recount. The petitioners set forth that votes counted for Joseph E. Warner should have been counted for Alvan T. Fuller of Michael A. O'Leary, and votes counted for Frederick N. Kerr should be counted for James Jackson. They furthermore requested that the ballots be declared void because the counters were not equally divided, and the presiding officer allowed voters to violate the law.

The registrars decided that "until the issues you seek to have determined are in some way made definite" they are unwilling to take action. Of the eleven names signed to the petition seven are registered Democrats, one registered Republican, and three not registered.

Gas Mains: An application was received from the Arlington Gas Light Company for an extension of its main on Westley Street. A report was received from the Superintendent of Streets stating that there are no objections to granting the petition of the Gas Company to extend its main seventy-five feet in Westley Street. The Board voted to grant this extension of main in accordance with sketch submitted with the petition of the Gas Company.

Catch Basins: A letter was received from the Superintendent of Streets stating that the severe thunder storm of recent date which was accompanied by a very large fall of rain did no damage to the streets in the town but covered the catch-basin grates with leaves and dead grass. It required three crews of men and teams to clear away the debris.

Streets: A letter was received from the President of the Lowell Chamber of Commerce stating that "a matter which is of a good deal of concern at present among many of our manufacturers is what the condition of the roads between here and Boston will be during the coming winter." The letter states that a definite plan of action is to be mapped out whereby the various municipalities of the State roads may co-operate to this end. This procedure was suggested to the writer by Mr. John N. Cole, Commissioner.

Chairman of Public Works at the State House. The letter was ordered filed.

The meeting adjourned at 12 P. M. George S. F. Bartlett, Clerk of Selectmen.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE

Walker Whiteside's second week at the Hollis Street Theatre will be ushered in on Monday evening, September 20. Not in many years has a player of romantic roles scored such a decided success as Mr. Whiteside has in Robert Louis Stevenson's thrilling story, "The Master of Ballantrae." The three acts are said to be replete with dramatic situations, soul-stirring emotional scenes, amusing incidents, and a love tale of heart-throbbing intensity. Walker Whiteside's rendition of the difficult role of James Durie has stamped him as an actor of genius, one who will eventually reach great heights before his career is terminated. In Mr. Whiteside's supporting company will be found such well-known players as Alexander Frank, W. Mayne Lynton, Maurice Barrett, William Shelton, James Carroll, Karl Voss, Basil West, Miss Sydney Shields, Miss Nanney Stewart and Miss Virginia Duncan. Splendid scenes of the period of 1750 adorn the Hollis stage, and the players delineate their characters, robed in the gorgeous costumes of the century. Matinees are given on Wednesday and Saturday.

MRS. WALTER S. KRAMER

The sudden death on Monday evening of Mrs. Fanny Payson Kramer, widow of the late Walter S. Kramer of Sheffield road, was a great shock to a large circle of friends. Mrs. Kramer passed away at the Phillips House, Massachusetts General Hospital, where she was taken after being stricken with a shock. She had gone to Boston during the afternoon to transact some business, and at its close was suddenly stricken.

Mrs. Kramer had made her home in this town for about six years. She was a most excellent woman and held in high esteem by all who knew her. Her husband died but a short time ago. She was born in Jamaica Plain and was the daughter of John F. and Elizabeth M. (Hall) Payson. Her mother and four sisters, living in Jamaica Plain and Manchester-by-the-Sea, survive her, together with two stepsons, George S. and Robert.

The funeral services were held at the residence on Sheffield road, Thursday afternoon at 2.30, and were conducted by Rev. Frederick Gill of Arlington. The interment was at Mt. Auburn cemetery.

BASEBALL

Winchester Scores a 1-to-0 Victory Over the Strong Forbes Lithograph Team

By Mack

In a great pitchers' battle between Haylock, the star pitcher of Forbes' team, and Weafer of Winchester, Weafer came out the victor, holding the Forbes team to three hits and allowing only one man to reach second base. The Winchester team scored their only run in the first inning on an error by Chambers, a hit by Christy and a fielder's choice. Weafer was well supported by the rest of the team, and they played "heads up" ball all through the game. The Forbes team is one of the best batters here this season, and played clean, fast ball during the game.

The score:

NOTES

It won and 4 lost for 76.5 per cent.
We have got to get by this 13 wins Saturday.

The Forbes team did not bring many followers with them, as the early morning did not look anything like a game. Mr. Marks, the manager, told me they cancelled an order for five trucks at ten o'clock.

The entire team is in credit to the company, as they all work there, and play the game without any unces-sary "kicking." Dale, the Arlington umpire, told me it was the easiest team he had to handle this season.

Both Mr. Getty and Mr. Forbes won on hand, eager to see their team win, but it was not to be, as Weafer was pitching just a shade better ball than Haylock.

This man Haylock is considered one of the best semi-pro pitchers in this section, and only recently held the Cornetts to a 3-to-1 score.

Rowe at short and Barry at second base are players who have been seen here before with other teams from Revere. Rowe is now captain of the Forbes team.

Another clean player who has been seen here was Tognetti, who did the coaching at first base, and also ran for one of the other players; quite a difference in his actions and coaching and McDonald's, whom you fans saw at first base the previous Saturday.

Winchester played good baseball, and the three players that were not here Labor Day did all that could be expected of them. Weafer pitched high-grade ball, and can be depended on to win 9 games out of 10, with a run or two to work on.

Eddie Doherty caught the best ball of any Winchester catcher we have had during the season, and not a base stolen on him.

Blackham in right field is not a heavy hitter, but a good outfielder, and can do as well as most of the men imported for a game.

Ryan at short is another good player and hard hitter. He has been with the H. P. Hood team the greater part of the season.

Mr. Robert E. Fay of this town took some snapshots of the Labor Day game at Winchester, and was kind enough to send me five very interesting pictures, the one of "Davey" King being a close-up. Mr. Fay called it a "close-up" of the high chief roster for Winchester.

An interested spectator at the game was Rev. Father Donahue of Jamaica Plain, who is a former Winchester boy. I asked him to enjoy the game from the bench, and he was glad to see his home team win.

It seems too bad to have so many people stand, but it is only a question of time now when there will be room for everybody.

The season, which has been the most successful one in the history of semi-pro ball in this town, is fast drawing to a close, and only two more games will be played here—the one Saturday (tomorrow) with Arlington and the final game of the season on September 25.

On Sunday, September 26, we will play at Woburn, and this game will draw the biggest crowd that ever saw a game in that city.

Next Sunday Woburn will play the Meadow Past, A. L., at Woburn, and all Winchester fans are invited to this game. This new Woburn team is made up of players who have been playing away during the summer, and it will take a mighty good team to beat them. Charlie Weafer of Tufts, Colucci of the same college, "Cannie"
Doherty, Mulcahy, "Tweet" Walsh and his brother, Rocke, Doc Doherty and Steve Toland make up this team,
and they outclass the present Woburn Team easily. A big crowd of 3000 people saw the game last Sunday which they won from Saxonville, 11
to 3.

We have got to have Sunday ball here another season, but more about that around next town meeting time.

I offered Mr. McColgan September 18, but for some reason he did not care to play, and will probably take on some other bunch of lemons, like the Highland A. A., that he played last Saturday at Woburn. It is no wonder the crowds are dropping off up there, and coming to Winchester, where they are sure to see some good baseball, with live teams for our opponents.

Through an oversight, there was printed, contrary to the policy of the management of the Star, references in this column last week to Mr.
Harold McDonald of Woburn. The Star regrets that this paragraph appeared, and desires to assure Mr. Mc-Donald that it has no desire to publish articles of this nature, either regarding himself or anyone else.

Every new issue of the Boston telephone directory contains on the average 25,000 changes in telephone numbers.

Between directory issues many telephone users do not make a record of the changed numbers they frequently call.

This necessitates the frequent calling of the Information operator and unnecessary work on the part of both subscribers and operators.

It will assist in maintaining good telephone service if a record of such number changes is kept near your telephone; and if telephone numbers, particularly party-line numbers, are eliminated from letter heads, business cards

LOWERY LEADS FIELD IN WINCHESTER OPEN GOLF

Scores ran high in the qualifying round Wednesday of the Winchester Country Club's three-day fall open golf tournament, the match play in which began Thursday morning and concludes today. One hundred and two players, not quite so many as in the club's midsummer meeting, took part, and 64 of them returned cards, exactly enough for four flights of 16. Eddie Lowery of Woodland, who won the earlier tournament, won the prize for the best gross score with an 81, while H. T. Bond, with an 87, took the net trophy. Three players were tied at 91 for the 16th place in the main division, and Lurham Jones of Braintree was the one to slip in.

The course was rather heavy from recent rains, this accounting largely for the high scores. The new out-of-bounds rule also caused some of the players to tuck in their figures on their nines.

The drawings of best players were:

First Division
W. H. Workman (191) vs. H. T. Bond (187),
H. T. Bond (187) vs. H. T. Bond (187),
H. T. Bond (187) vs. H. T. Bond (187).

Second Division
R. A. Andin (194) vs. P. M. Crafts (194),
H. T. Bond (191) vs. H. T. Bond (191),
H. T. Bond (191) vs. H. T. Bond (191).

Third Division
H. T. Bond (191) vs. H. T. Bond (191),
H. T. Bond (191) vs. H. T. Bond (191),
H. T. Bond (191) vs. H. T. Bond (191).

Fourth Division
W. H. Workman (191) vs. H. T. Bond (191),
H. T. Bond (191) vs. H. T. Bond (191),
H. T. Bond (191) vs. H. T. Bond (191).

Extra hole matches in one of which Eddie Lowery of Woodland was eliminated by Nat Lowell of Braintree, featured the first two rounds of match play yesterday. As a result of the day's doings Lowery is left to fight out the first division battle today with a trio of Winchesterites—Harold B. Wood, Herbert T. Bond and Burton K. Stephenson. Wood plays Lowell in this morning's semi-final matches. The survivors in the second flight are: H. T. Bond, W. M. B. Freeman, R. B. Nealey and E. B. Bond.

H. T. Bond had rather an easy morning match yesterday, meeting W. H. Workman of Commonwealth by 3 and 3. In the afternoon H. T. Bond lost five of the first six holes to A. P. Wade of Mendon Brook, then settled down to real golf and finally won by 3 and 1.

Bart Stephenson seemed to care not that Arthur Corwin of Taubers won the White Mountain championship recently, for Arthur found himself 2 down after 17 holes had been played and cried "enough." Then Bart, not satisfied, proceeded to add Larry Paton to his list of victims at the 20th green. That 20th green was the graveyard of all the Herald hopes, Bernie Austin's horseshoes dropping out of his bag before he arrived there in his match with M. P. Brown.

Winchester players seemed as follows:

First Division
H. T. Bond beat W. H. Workman, 3 and 3.
H. T. Bond beat H. T. Bond, 3 and 3.
H. T. Bond beat H. T. Bond, 3 and 3.

Second Division
P. M. Crafts beat R. A. Andin, 4 and 3.
H. T. Bond beat H. T. Bond, 4 and 3.
H. T. Bond beat H. T. Bond, 4 and 3.

Third Division
H. T. Bond beat H. T. Bond, 4 and 3.
H. T. Bond beat H. T. Bond, 4 and 3.
H. T. Bond beat H. T. Bond, 4 and 3.

Fourth Division
W. H. Workman beat H. T. Bond, 4 and 3.
H. T. Bond beat H. T. Bond, 4 and 3.
H. T. Bond beat H. T. Bond, 4 and 3.

INTERVIEWS WITH WINCHESTER CITIZENS

We want you to meet Mr. Richard Barksdale, citizen of Winchester. Mr. Barksdale is an all-year-round citizen. He does not spend his summers on the north or south shore nor his winters at Palm Beach. He spends every day of the year in Winchester, summers, as well as winters. For this reason, he is particularly well qualified to talk about the advantages of our town. And it was on this subject that we interviewed him last week. Here is the interview.

RICHARD BARKSDALE

Mr. Barksdale: "You amuse me, young man; you're like so many other Winchester people. Many of our Winchester people are so busy wondering where they'll spend the summer that they fail to see the advantages of their own town as a summer resort. I considered going away this summer, but after thinking it over I decided to stay here. Here's the reason:

"In the first place, Winchester has plenty of fresh air, a first-class water supply, a swimming beach and a playground. Now, even assuming that these were the only advantages, I ask you, young man, is a disinterested party, could any 'hick' vacation resort offer more?"

We agreed that he was making a strong case.

"But that isn't all," he went on. "Perhaps you never heard of the children's clinic run by the Visiting Nurse Association. There's something really worth while. They look you over once a week, and they sure know how to keep you in good trim. Look at me. I'm as fit as a fiddle. Why, I wouldn't miss that clinic for all the vacations out of town I ever heard about. Say, young man, here's an idea. Why don't you take a run down some Tuesday and see what they're doing? I'll introduce you to the nurse, Miss Jamieson, and she'll tell you the whole story."

So we're going down some Tuesday to report the story for the Star.

In the meantime, we'll have to admit that Richard Barksdale is strong for the town and for the Visiting Nurse Association.

WINCHESTER HORSES AT LYNN FAIR

Winchester horses, owned by Harry Good and Jack Sanborn, are entered in the horse show at the Greater Lynn Fair, Meadow Park, this week. The whole string, including a dozen or more animals, are taking part daily in the driving and jumping. On Wednesday, Ruth Good on Bob took a red ribbon in the driving class, Nancy Wilson on Hunter took a yellow ribbon and Harry Good on Bob a blue ribbon in jumping. Jack Sanborn on Princess took a red ribbon in jumping and Ruth Good, driving her pony Billy Boy, took a yellow ribbon in the pony driving.

DOUBLE WEDDING

Two Winchester girls were parties in the first double wedding to be held in this town for many years, when Miss Agnes March Crawford and Miss Julia Crawford, daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Philip Crawford, were married at the home of their uncle, Mr. George H. Sands, on Lake street, Monday noon. Both of the brides are well known, Miss Julia Crawford having been for a number of years assistant to Dr. Arthur V. Rogers, and Miss Agnes Crawford a popular nurse.

The wedding was private and attended only by members of the family. Neither brides were attended, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Clifton H. Walcott, pastor of the First Baptist church. The brides each wore travelling costumes and carried shower bouquets of lilies of the valley and bride's roses. The decorations consisted of asters, gladioli, hydrangea, and asparagus fern.

Miss Agnes Crawford became the bride of Mr. George Kenneth Clark of Amesbury, the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Clark of Kennebunk, Me.; Miss Julia Crawford was married to Mr. Irving Simonds Buckler of Woburn. Following wedding trips, the two couples will make their homes in Amesbury and Woburn.

SAFE ROADS FEDERATION OF MASSACHUSETTS
During the first eight months of the present year Massachusetts has suffered greater losses in killed and injured through motor accidents than the total number of casualties sustained by the 26th New England Division during a longer term of active service in France.
Lewis E. MacBrayne, one of the field secretaries of the Massachusetts State Chamber of Commerce, made this statement today at a conference held at the local Board of Trade called to further the interests of the new Safe Roads Federation of Massachusetts. He said that the state had been stirred profoundly when it learned that the Yankee Division had lost 12,000 killed and wounded in a series of battles, but that the public had gone complacently about its business a year later, in the face of 16,281 casualties upon the highways, all caused by automobiles, motor trucks, or motorcycles. And the present year will break that record unless the newly formed Safe Roads Federation, which is to have a local council, can create the public sentiment necessary to check it.
For example: There are over 500 children in Massachusetts who left school sound of limb when the busy vacation began a few weeks ago, and who are now maimed or dead as a result of motor accidents. In July, 26 were killed and 276 injured. The August figures, not complete, may run as high. September is keeping up the ghastly record.
The situation had become so alarming in the spring that the Department of Public Works at the State House, acting through Frank A. Goodwin, State Registrar of motor vehicles, called a conference of the 26 strongest organizations in the state, including the Massachusetts State Chamber of Commerce, Bay State Automobile Association, the Insurance Federation of Massachusetts, the American Federation of Labor, the State Federation of Women's Clubs, Associated Industries of Massachusetts, the Motor Truck Club of Massachusetts and many others, for the purpose of devising methods to meet the situation.
Delegates from these bodies, after a preliminary survey, formed themselves into the Safe Roads Federation of Massachusetts, and began a study of the figures assembled by the state officials.
They were amazed to discover the rate at which accidents had increased since the end of high wages came in with the war, and a host of new drivers had begun to use the highways.
Back in 1908 motor accidents caused the death of only 13 persons and the injury of 486 in a year. By 1919 the dead numbered 382, the injured 16,281, and the collisions 21,281.

It became apparent that to meet the situation the Safe Roads Federation must have a local committee in every city and town of the Commonwealth, and a committee of the Commonwealth, of which Edward G. Stacy, general secretary of the Massachusetts State Chamber of Commerce, is chairman, to bring this about.
The conference today was one of 104 being held in the state this month. The officers of the Safe Roads Federation are: Frank A. Goodwin, State Registrar of motor vehicles, chairman; Edward C. Stone, vice-chairman; Col. Philip L. Schuyler, secretary; Robert E. Stone, treasurer. The membership list is to be decided by the campaign of education, which will be limited locally only by the support given by interested citizens. Anyone is eligible to the local council that will be formed.
A meeting to which delegates from the various civic and social organizations of the town will be invited will be held at the Town Hall on Wednesday night, September 22, at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be addressed by a speaker from the Safe Roads Federation.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES
A bill for football candidates was issued last Friday morning at a rally conducted by the coaches of the squad in the Assembly Hall.
First practice was held Monday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, and at least fifty boys showed up for a position on the team. It is planned to pick two teams.
Arrangements were made with the School Committee and the coaches to spend $500 on football this coming year.
Among the sponsors of interest were Mr. Edward E. Thompson, principal of the school, who is taking a deep interest in athletics; Mr. King, who will take charge of the first team in football this year; Mr. William, who will have charge of the second team and assist Mr. King with the first string men; and Stephen Ryan, the captain of the football team this year.

Has the Small Car Owner A Right to Good Tires

THIS much is certain—that the small car owners of this country have as high quality standards as any other class of motorists. Whenever you want to see this proven out, you have only to watch how they come to good tires, when they are given an opportunity to get at them.

What some dealers seem to overlook are the reasons which have led most of the small car owners to buy their cars.

In building tires for the small car, the United States Rubber Company exercises as much care, as much thought, as much supervision, as if they were intended to go on the most expensive cars in the country.

Devoting an entire factory to their manufacture. Putting the whole weight of its varied experience behind them.

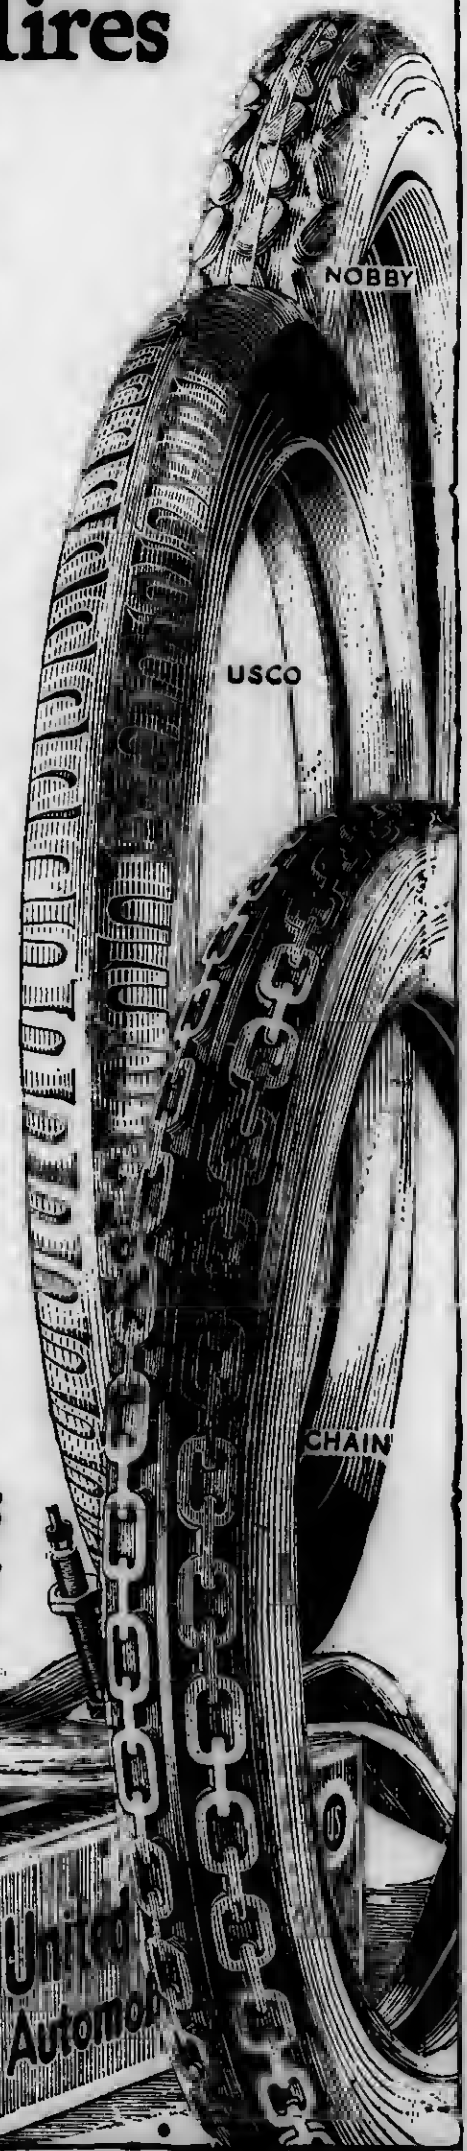

Never cheapening their quality on the mistaken theory that a man's intelligence can be judged by the length of his car's wheel base.

Good dealers will tell you that they can never get enough U.S. 30x3 1/2-inch Tires.

A hint which the small car owner who is bent on quality will always heed in time.

TWOMBLY-GRAY

At a simple home wedding, held Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's father at Tewksbury, Miss Eva Grace Gray, daughter of Mr. George E. Gray, was united in marriage to Mr. Harold Moulton Twombly of 31 Forest street, this town. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. Augustine Newton of the Reading Congregational church.

The couple were unattended, and the wedding march was played by Miss Marion A. Twombly, sister of the groom. Decorations of gladioli, golden rod and ferns were used about the house in forming a setting for the affair and the guests included besides members of the families only a few intimate friends.

The bride wore a dress of white net and her wedding veil was fastened with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses. A small reception followed the ceremony from 1 until 2, the mother of the groom and the bride's father assisting the couple in receiving.

They will take a wedding trip to Hillsdale, N. J., go up the Hudson and return by air over the Mohawk Trail, and will make their future home in this town.

The look of the horn on a Ford car is a long way from being music to most of us. Here is a Ford, however, whose horn is music to many Winchester people, for this is the car that carries Mrs. Alice Gormley, our efficient visiting nurse to the homes of her patients. Its welcome note is being heard again in Winchester, Mrs. Gormley having returned from a well-earned vacation in the West.

INTERVIEWS WITH WINCHESTER CITIZENS, NO. 2

This week we're introducing Miss Mary Jane, another all-the-year-round citizen of Winchester. When we discovered that she spent summers as well as winters in Winchester, we were interested to get her opinion on the advantages of our town as a summer resort. Here's her story:

"When a person—especially a very young person—considers going away for the summer, there are two things to which they must give careful attention. One is the milk supply; the other is the water supply. Now these are things that we don't have to worry about in Winchester. Both are carefully inspected. Both are good. So if there were no other things to consider in summer, it would pay to stay in Winchester and run no needless chances. But there are other points about Winchester that are worth while.

"In addition to the playgrounds, carefully supervised, there are 'Well Baby Clinics' every Tuesday afternoon from three to four, under the direction of the District Nursing Association. You'll be surprised to know how much good they're doing. Miss Jacobson, the nurse in charge of the clinics weighs up little folks to see if we're gaining, gives our mothers lots of help and advice, and Mr. looks us over if we are out of sorts and tells us what to eat to get back in trim again. And if we can't get down to the clinics, Miss Jacobson will come around to our houses to see us. Why do you know the nurses and doctor made over 5,415 calls last year. And do you realize that the infant mortality in Winchester is only half as great as it is in Boston? Some town, summer or winter, I'll say.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

Through the office of Thomas H. Barrett is reported the sale of the property of Mrs. Grace I. Thompson, 270 Washington street. The property consists of a 12-room house with about 2 acres of land. The entire plot is bounded by three streets, Oak, Washington, and Swanton. The house was the first Winchester home of ex-Governor McCall, and one of the old landmarks of the town, being also the visiting place of Denham Thompson of Old Haverstead fame. The purchasers are Messrs. A. Chester Norris and J. F. Murphy. It is understood that the purchase price is far in excess of the assessed value.

SCHOOL GARDEN EXHIBIT

The customary school garden exhibit was held in the small town hall on Saturday afternoon and evening, under the direction of the school garden teacher, Miss Mabel S. Ryan, who was assisted by Miss Mary Lyons, principal of the Randolph school. About 200 of the scholars in the public schools had exhibited the first including besides vegetables and flowers, fruit, preserves, canned goods, and some livestock.

The display was very attractive, and the exhibit was largely attended. The prizes awarded included two first prizes for a first, one for a second and red, blue and white ribbons for honorable mention. A model school garden, laid out in the center of the hall by Kathleen Yetter, Anna O'Brien, Ethel Ashworth, Helen Smith, Isabelle Green and Isabel Barber of the Prince school attracted much attention.

Among the exhibitors was Mildred Benson, who showed 108 pressed and mounted wild flowers, and Elizabeth McCauley, who had over 100 jars of preserves. There were exhibits of five jars each out of 24 from 15 other scholars.

The judges were Messrs. James W. Russell, Jr., Samuel S. Symmes, Jr., Stillman Williams, Miss Carrie Mason and Mr. Bertie E. Cahill.

MISS AURORA RONDINA HAS 16TH BIRTHDAY PARTY

When Miss Aurora Rondina, of 121 Highland avenue, issued the invitations for the party which was to commemorate the 16th anniversary of her birth, Thursday evening, September 16th, she little thought that a deep, dark plot was being hatched against that very party by a member of her household, one whom the most suspicious person never would suspect of playing the part of a dyed in the wool villain; to wit, her father, Mr. Louis G. Rondina.

When the party was being carefully and enthusiastically planned, Mr. Rondina was invited to take part in the conferences. He was even allowed to make an occasional suggestion, and no protesting voice was heard when he agreed to O.K. the various and interesting expenditures. But when Miss Aurora definitely decided that girls only were to be invited, then did Pater Rondina don the cloak of villainy and slip on the false whiskers so necessary to baffling disguise. Diplomatically and smilingly he agreed unconditionally to everything, his face masking the darksome plot hatching in his mind.

The invitations were mailed, the decorators and caterers notified, the evening of the momentous 16th came as scheduled and the guests arrived as follows: Miss Hazel Paine, Miss Dorothy Cummings, Miss Aleda Goddu, Miss Audrey Goddu, Miss Pearl Prime, Miss Marion Dow, Miss Mary Cullen, Miss Miriam DeLoria, and Miss Dorothy Laraway, of Winchester; and the Misses Marietta Rondina and Marjorie Currier of Somerville.

So carefully was the plot prepared and carried forth that no suspicion of his fearful existence cast a shadow on the gay event. Under cover of laughter, song and music, on tiptoe, stealing through the rear entrance of the Rondina home came some uninvited (?) guests—of the sex hatched by the chief conspirator they filed into a lightless room and seated themselves.

It is of no moment now, when or how they were discovered, or what happened then and during the rest of the evening, but it is a matter of joyful record, and psychological significance that no attempt was made to eject the Messrs. William Bowe, Edson Laraway, Ernest Simmonds, Leo Court and Edward Rondina, and not one of the young ladies, at any time, was heard to voice an objection to their presence. The villain became a hero and the party, everybody said, was one glorious success.

COOKE—FISKE

An attractive home wedding took place on Saturday evening, when Miss Katherine Bradford Fiske, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Bradford, of Cambridge street, was united in marriage to Mr. Dwight Whitcomb Cooke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Verne Cooke of Boston.

The Rev. Howard J. Chadley of the First Congregational Church performed the ceremony by candlelight at eight o'clock. About one hundred relatives and friends were in attendance. The house was very artistically decorated with cut flowers, gladioli being especially in abundance.

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown of heavy cream-colored silk and her veil was held by orange blossoms which were also worn by her mother. The shower bouquet was of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. James Todd, Jr., of Flushing, L. I., was her sister's matron of honor, and Miss Hazel Stuart of Winchester was maid of honor. The other attendants were Miss Dorothy Firshup of Boston, Miss Constance Lane, Miss Marjorie Wahlmyer and Mrs. Edwin M. Larson (Una Kinsley), of Arlington. Mr. Paul Cooke, brother of the groom, was the best man.

The wedding march was composed and rendered by the bride's brother, Mr. Dwight L. Fiske of New York.

A reception followed the ceremony, the couple being assisted in receiving by their parents. The ushers were Mr. James Todd, Jr., and Mr. Martin Pearson of Leominster.

The bride is a graduate of the Winchester High School, and the groom has many friends here, he being at one time connected with Beggs & Cobb. He is a graduate of Pratt Institute in New York.

After an automobile trip through the mountains, Mr. and Mrs. Cooke will make their future home at Canaan, N. H., where Mr. Cooke is leather chemist for the Keystone Leather Company.

WRITTEN EXAMINATIONS FOR FIVE-YEAR-OLDS

Eighteen babies—they were scarcely more—sat for the first time at tiny school desks and started the "game" of a written examination. Twelve finished without having succumbed to timidity, tears and the desire to stumble away and cling to mother.

The examination was held recently at the Wynnan School in Winchester to determine the mental capacity of children under the age of 5 years and 6 months who had been debarr'd from school.

This examination was planned to insure absolute fairness. It is the first of its kind used for school entrance decisions, although the idea has been carried out in determining who are the backward pupils in schools of some other towns, in order that such children shall be segregated to receive special attention.

"Our point is this," explained the examiner, Edward A. Lincoln, of the Harvard Graduate School of Education, "children have always been taken into school on the basis of the chronological age, in spite of the fact that we have known for some time that the child's mental age would be entirely different."

It was explained by Superintendent of Schools John R. Fahey that even if the new requirement had not been raised, the examinations would have been used. There are always so many children just a few days out of school age, and if those were included there are always so many more who would be old enough in a few more days. It is impossible to draw a line without some adequate mental test.

BASEBALL TOMORROW AND SUNDAY

Tomorrow, Winchester Town team will meet a team of All-Stars, with Davidson pitching for the All-Stars. Of course, that means trouble for the Town team. Herby and "Mack" will be with the All-Stars, but I will have a couple of good men in their places. The entire receipts will be turned over to Mrs. Richard Glenlon for her table at the K. of C. Bazaar to be held in November at the Town Hall.

On Sunday, the Winchester Town team will play at Lyceum Park, Woburn, in their first Sunday game of the season. This game is going to be a good one, so I will have to strengthen up my team. The two Dohertys and Mulcahy will play with Woburn, but at this season of the year players are plentiful and I will be able to get good ones to fill in with. It is expected, if the day is fair, that the biggest crowd that ever saw a game in that city will be on hand to witness this game. The Woburn team which we play is far stronger than the Woburn Town team which we have beaten two out of three games.

It is expected Conlon, the Harvard shortstop, will play; also Charlie Weaver of Tufts, and Collier of the same college, with Connie O'Doherty, who has been with Manchester, N. H., all season, on third base; also Joe Connolly, of the Buffalo International League team. Joe Connolly will probably be in the Winchester lineup in Saturday's game; also Roche and Steve Tulani, who has been in Maine all the year. Here is winding up the season in a blaze of glory and a game worth attending.

WINCHESTER PARTY IN AUTO COLLISION

Two Winchester men, Eugene N. O'Sullivan of Mt. Vernon street, and John F. Blackham of Salem street, were in an automobile accident Monday on Powder House boulevard, West Somerville. The party included also Miss Helen Driscoll of Roxbury, and another young woman.

The Winchester party was traveling towards Medford when there was a head-on collision with a car operated by Charles W. DeVito of West Medford.

Both cars were badly damaged and Miss Driscoll was badly cut about the head and face. She was taken to a nearby doctor's office and later to the Somerville hospital. With DeVito was Miss Ruth Caulfield of West Somerville. She was also treated by the physician and taken to her home. None of the others in the smash were injured seriously, although all were badly shaken up.

DeVito was arrested by the Somerville police, charged with operating an automobile without his certificate of registration. He was found guilty and his case was placed on file.

NEAR RIOT AT RAIL GAME

At Saturday's ball game with Arlington on Manchester Field there was a near riot. Probably never before has the field witnessed such excitement as prevailed for a short time. According to reports, an Arlington player held a Winchester player as he attempted to leave third base to run home on a passed ball. A Winchester coach on the side line made some remark to the Arlington man, who thereupon hit him. Fellow players came to the aid of both men, and the crowd surged upon the field, and for a time there was some lively scrapping. The one policeman on the field covered himself with glory, but was unable to cope with the hundreds of excited fans, and a riot call was sent into the police station. All of the officers available were hurried to the field, some seven uniformed officers arriving under Sergeant McCauley. At this time the trouble had begun to subside, and the field was quickly cleared. No arrests were made, but some of the players and spectators were somewhat bruised.

RETURN OF AN OLD RESIDENT

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Richardson of Painesville, O., have been spending two weeks with their nieces, the Misses White, at 120 Forest street.

Mr. Richardson is a son of the late Samuel Richardson and the recent owner of the property at the corner of Washington and Forest streets, which was sold in 1919 to Mr. Charles Wigglesworth.

This property was a part of the original grant made to Samuel Richardson, 1st, in 1841, and, together with that at 120 Forest street, has never passed from the heirs of the first Samuel Richardson until Mr. Richardson sold his share to Mr. Wigglesworth.

The heirs of the late Harriet Richardson-White own the remaining part of the Forest street property.

The late Messrs. B. Richardson and Jesse Richardson served through the four years of the Civil War, exhibiting as privates and being mustered out as captains.

Capt. Jesse Richardson attended, while in Winchester, two reunions—one on September 8, an annual dinner at the Parker House, given to the officers of the regiment, and on September 17, the anniversary of the battle of Antietam, the reunion of the Second Regiment of Massachusetts Volunteers.

The small numbers at these gatherings—six at the officers' dinner, of which Captain Richardson was the youngest, and thirty at the reunion of the regiment—only confirm what every thoughtful person knows—that our veterans of the Civil War are rapidly passing.

THISTLE—DELOREY

On Thursday, September 16, at 7:30 p. m., Miss Jessie E. DeLorey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. DeLorey of Cross street, this town, and Mr. Bertram H. McNeil of Somerville, Mr. Herbert W. Thistle of Wakefield, a cousin of the groom, was best man. The bride wore white georgette over white silk. After the ceremony a reception and supper was held at their home in Wakefield.

They were the recipients of many beautiful gifts, among which was a chest of silver from F. J. Kennedy Co., Boston, where Mr. Thistle is employed. After October 1 they will be at home at 17 Main street, Wakefield.

THE NATIONAL LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

The National League of Women Voters is an outgrowth of the National American Suffrage Association, and its special aim is to educate the citizenry on the proper use of the ballot. This parent association is a federation of State associations. With these State associations have been affiliated numerous minor leagues and clubs in various cities and towns scattered throughout the States. In this way it has gathered its members from widely distributed regions which have brought to it many thoughtful and public-spirited women. From very small beginnings, several decades ago, this association has reached, in recent years, a membership of two million women. It is most perfectly and wonderfully organized and has been administered with unflinching skill in its later leaders, Mr. Anna Howard Shaw and Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, and an array of most efficient and wise helpers.

In the struggle for the cause it espoused, the vision of the workers constantly expanded and they found many laws and political conditions inimical not only to their cause, but also to progress in general. Blocking their way, and realizing the enormity of women's responsibility for securing better conditions in many directions, as soon as the fundamental tool of a true democracy the ballot was secured.

The leaders, as their cause approached fruition, realized the blunder it would be to disband so strongly equipped an organization, and set to work to organize a fit successor for the natural evolution of the principles of the parent association. The result is the National League of Women Voters, which contains the plan of organization—the State Leagues taking the name of the State and the affiliated Leagues the name of their cities and towns as the Massachusetts League of Women Voters; the Winchester League of Women Voters, and so on.

"When the League was first organized in 1919, it was a department of the National Association and eight standing committees were appointed to deal with the following subjects:

1. Women in Industry.
2. Child Welfare.
3. Food Supply and Demand.
4. Social Hygiene.
5. Civil Status of Women.
6. American Citizenship.
7. Election Laws and Methods.
8. Research.

These committees conferred through the year and presented statements of principles and recommendations for legislation in their respective spheres at the annual convention of the National American Association in Chicago, February 12-18, 1920. After full discussion these reports were adopted and together form the legislative program of the National League, and contain, by implication, its working platform—adopted as the goal of the League's efforts and as expressing principles which the organization loyally supports. The National Board will "work for those sections which deal with federal legislation, while the state leagues will be responsible for the state legislation indicated, in being understood that each state league has authority to select from or add to the suggested subjects according to the special needs of its own locality, so long as these variations are consistent with the definite policy and principles of the National League."

The business of the League is conducted by a board of directors, three elected at large and seven, called Regional Directors, to represent regions of states, to insure representation on the Board from different parts of the country. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt of New York is Honorary Chairman of the League; Mrs. Maud Wood Park of Massachusetts, chairman of the Board of Directors; and Miss Katharine Luddington of Connecticut, Regional Director of New England.

Thus the League is a national organization of women "who wish not merely to vote, but to use their votes to the best advantage; is composed of State Leagues; and has associate members of other organizations working along similar lines. Any woman interested in seeing her vote count for the public good may be a member.

It has two purposes—to foster education in citizenship and to support improved legislation.

It is not a Women's Party, nor a Separate Political Party. It is non-partisan, will be allied with and support no particular party, while its members will be enrolled in the party of their choice. Mr. Zuehlke made a good slogan when he said, "It should stand for principles, and work to secure men and women to carry out those principles."

There seems to be nothing in such an association to antagonize anyone, and it is hoped that all earnest-minded women who realize that an organized effort will generally accomplish more than an individual effort, will join this fit, far-seeing association.

M. T. Allen.

CLARA CATHERINE CANDY

Made in Winchester! Perfectly delicious chocolates, caramels, and what not; all delighting the taste and eye. Did you ever wonder where the candy you eat was made? Visit the Clara Catherine Candy kitchen, look at the trays of candy, taste a sample and buy a pound; it will please you more than any candy you ever tried, for you see just how it is made and what it is made of—and who makes it.

The candy kitchen is up one flight at 511 Main street. It is run by Miss Clara Tuttle and Miss Catherine Howard, two young women who have had considerable experience in candy making. In fact, they are so good that they are teaching Simmons College girls their art, the Industrial Union on Bay State street, Boston, where Miss Tuttle served as instructor for three years, having closed his candy department and the Simmons girls coming to Winchester.

Both Miss Tuttle and Miss Howard have had charge of candy making in New York. They plan to market their candy themselves, and, in addition to carrying a stock for sale, will make up special candies for parties in various color schemes and grades. Just at present they are selling at their kitchen chocolates and bonbons. Later they will carry fruit candies and specialties. Call on them and try some Winchester-made candy.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

A merchant may collect a bad account in the long run, but who cares for a long run.

What has become of the old-fashioned man who used to talk about what he "earned," not what he "made."

Don't fuss too much about the auto and bus. Some night he'll meet another.

The man whose great desire in life is to put up a good "front" will find that price are advancing daily on all fronts.

If all the candidates for public office vote, it looks as though they might outvote the voters.

Arlington elections do not appear overcrowded these days.

The first fall weather struck this morning Sunday, and on Monday morning the thermometer was down to 45. Fortunately few reports were received of frost damage here, although neighboring places suffered considerably.

There was considerable excitement at Saturday's ball game. Feeling ran high and evidently some of the players and spectators were on edge. According to report local players and fans were not at fault in starting the rumpus. It is a long time since the field saw such a scrap—if indeed it ever did before.

For many years the STAR has published, at this season, a list of large tax payers in Winchester. For the first time since this custom was inaugurated it will be given up this year. The Board of Assessors having voted not to allow the list to be published. Perhaps comparisons are odious.

It is reported that a model of the proposed "war memorial" is being made and is to be exhibited some time during the winter. The scheme under consideration, it will be recalled, is the erection of a building on Manchester Field, and it is this plan which will be worked out. In this connection it is interesting to remember that the town has another model stowed away in its vaults—that of the proposed elimination of the grade crossing. This model created much interest when it was exhibited in the Town Hall, but it is evident that it will not be brought out again for a long time.

Among the interesting and important matters which will be taken up with the resumption of municipal activity this Fall is the pressing question of a subway at the railroad station. This matter was given a big start in the spring under the Schettman, and Selectman George M. Byrne spent considerable time whipping it into shape. Everyone knows the scheme in whole, the construction of a safe and convenient crossing from the east to the west side, without the laborious climb up over the present unsightly foot-bridge. The thought of such a subway is welcomed by all. Mr. Byrne secured estimates of the work and plans of construction. The outside cost was reported in the neighborhood of thirty thousand dollars, and it is said it is very probable that this figure may be shaded considerably. The way would be under the jurisdiction of the County Commissioners, who will lay it out and define its position. The railroad, it is understood, is not particularly enthusiastic over it. Active work will undoubtedly be commenced within a few weeks to complete the detail necessary to place the matter before the Town in concrete form, and it is felt by those interested that the Town will approve any reasonable plan worked out. Unquestionably the present overhead bridge at the station should never have been built, and it is reported that one of our citizens directly interested in its erection has joined the great majority which daily tramp down the tracks and are and the fence.

THE SWARM OF BEES

Editor of the Star:
Dear Sir: In your issue of September 17, we read with dismay and indignation the account of the destruction of a swarm of bees by the town's laborers.

The absence of bees in our own garden this summer has been a matter of comment, and we have feared the spraying had destroyed them.

It may be pertinent to call to your attention the failure the first growers of cucumbers under glass met. No blossoms "set" till a hive of bees was introduced into the greenhouse, which quickly changed the failure to a success, and made cucumber growing under glass no longer an experiment.

Bees are scarce and bring good prices, and even so, the demand for them is greater than the supply.

Had the presence of this swarm of bees been made known to the Thrift and Conservation Committee of the Fortnightly, an effort would have been made to preserve them and to prevent such wanton destruction of one of our most necessary and helpful insect friends.

Helen B. H. Emerson,
Chairman of Thrift and Conservation Committee of the Fortnightly

WINCHESTER'S LATEST INNOVATION

Community Kitchen Serves Bachelor and Housewife Alike

Winchester's latest innovation, the new Community Kitchen, now in operation for a little over a month, is proving a boon to both bachelor and housewife. No longer does the lady of the house worry over the absence of help or unexpected company at inconvenient hours; neither does the temporary or permanent bachelor wander disconsolately about among his benighted friends, seeking the substantial and delectable delights their state enjoys. The Community Kitchen has filled the void to everyone's satisfaction.

Located in a big, roomy house on Church street, handy to all parts of the town, the Kitchen has found immediate favor. Not only are complete meals—lunch, dinner, or supper—sent out to be partaken in one's own home, but a model restaurant is also in operation; and the management plans within a few weeks to open up chambers where one may reside equally comfortably for an extra guest. But this feature will be spoken of later.

The Kitchen is a model of its kind. It is patterned after that in Brookline, which has proven so popular. "The principal feature," says Manager A. Miles Holbrook, who instituted the idea and carried it out in Winchester, "is the sending of meals, cooked and ready to serve, into private homes." "The restaurant, while popular with many, cannot obviously cater to the entire community." "The containers we use are our own special design and insure the food arriving hot or cold, as the case may be, at the table." "The separate dishes in the container contain a portion for each person, from soup to dessert, and by auto delivery we can give the service to satisfy any and all customers."

Separate rooms are used at the Kitchen for the packing. The salads or ices are packed in the cold container room; the hot dishes in the hot container room. As the food comes from the kitchen it is placed on the steam table, while the hot table alongside contains the dishes for the restaurant, which are kept at the proper temperature to receive the food. Before each container is filled it is heated by a soapstone slab, and as the container is made on the vacuum principle, with cork filling between the outer and inner shell, even to the cover, the food will keep hot for many hours.

The food is cooked in an immaculate kitchen, a big Blodgett gas baking oven and a large range being used. Modern labor saving devices, such as an automatic potato masher, special coffee urns and ice cracker for freezing the various ices, are also in evidence.

The Kitchen is a source of delight to visitors. The general color scheme for finishing the rooms is yellow and black, although the packing rooms and kitchen are all in white enamel. At the entrance is the office, and here may be found, for a part of her time, Miss Ingeborg Ellsberg, graduate of Simmons College, who manages the Kitchen, prepares the daily menus and oversees the preparation, packing and serving.

Opposite the office, which has already been ennobled upon its accommodating restaurant patronage, is the dining room. This, like its companion room, is in yellow and black, and is very attractive, with its bright flowers and deep blue curtains. Each table has its individual electric lamp and there are accommodations for from two to six persons. Later, as the interior decorations progress, one or more private dining rooms will be opened on the second floor, along with the out-door dining room on the spacious porch. This will not be for a few weeks, however, and meanwhile Mr. Holbrook plans to start serving afternoon tea and inaugurate some special days—such as waffle day, etc.

Many Winchester people have turned to the Kitchen as the unsatisfactory solution of the problem of obtaining hot, appetizing meals in their home in these days of scarcity of help. The daily menu is well balanced, and varied to meet all tastes, and thus far the Community Kitchen has proven an instant success. Have you tried it yet?

MRS. ELIZABETH H. THOMPSON

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth H. Thompson, formerly of Winchester, were held in Rockville, Conn., September 16, where she lived as a girl and where her husband was formerly Town Clerk. After the death of her husband, Charles P. Thompson, in 1885, she removed with her six children from Rockville, Conn., to Winchester, where she lived for about thirty years at 200 Forest street, in the Highlands. Her last years were spent with her three remaining children, Charles J. Thompson, in Montague; Robert B. Thompson, in Duxbury; and Janette P. Howe, in Duxbury. The latter the wife of Mr. William W. Howe, a minister in the Boston schools. Here she died on September 13, at the age of 76 years.

Besides making and keeping a multitude of friends, Mrs. Thompson was held in affectionate regard by six grandchildren, who will always cherish her memory. Those of her friends in this town who are still living will mourn her loss.

ASHES IN ROCK ABOVE CLOUDS

Winchester Man Assisted in Placing Remains on Mt. Whiteface.

The testamentary wish of Louis S. Tinker, prominent business man of Boston, was carried out Sunday afternoon when six associates brought his ashes over the Appalachian Trail and deposited them in the topmost rock here above the clouds. Included in the party was Mr. Joseph C. Kennedy of Winchester.

Already the forest lands were spashed with Autumnal red, Mt. Washington in the distance was flecked with snow, and in the ravines of the ledge known as "the fire escape" ice several inches thick glistened.

When the party arrived at the mountain top it found a group of 25 people who had made the climb from the surrounding towns of Waterville, Conway, Ossipee and Sandwich. Among them were a number of women.

The services at the mountain top were brief and of natural simplicity. John H. Knapp of Wayland, of the Harvard class of 1887, read a burial service, followed by three poems.

Then F. T. Watson of Brookline, Mass., executor of Mr. Tinker's will, shipped the urn into the drilled rock on the tip of the mountain, facing south. Over it he placed a bronze tablet inscribed:

"In the acquisition of lands for this National forest he rendered a notable service, and in conformity to his wish his ashes repose therein."

Mr. Tinker was widely known through this section. He spent considerably time in the woods shortly after he acquired the tract of 400,000 acres here in 1911. Most of it was in the neighborhood of Mt. Whiteface, which is considered the most picturesque spot on his domain.

Three years ago a large part of the land, including the mountain, was taken over by the Government as a reserve, and, to carry out Mr. Tinker's wish, permission was needed from the Government.

The party began the ascent at 10:30. The first leg was over a trail cluttered with logs and brush. The last mile was up dizzy ledges of granite at an angle of 60 degrees.

Over the steepest part was a scuff-folding of two rustic ladders which lifted the climbers over dangerous rock polished by huddles.

TACNA AND ARICA: SIAMESE TWINS OF GEOGRAPHY

Tacna and Arica! The words are fast becoming as inseparable as the Twin Dust Twins, the Dolly Sisters, or Mutt and Jeff.

"The regions form a territorial bone of contention among Chile, Peru and Bolivia," says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society.

"The Province of Tacna, composed of the departments of Tacna and Arica, is shown on maps made in Chile as the northernmost province of that country, and on maps made in Peru as the southernmost province of Peru, bordered on the north by the Rio Sama River, and on the east by Bolivia. Its broad uplands are rich in nitrate, and on the Bay of Arica, at the terminus of one railroad leading to La Paz and the interior of Bolivia, and another running to ports to the south, the delightful city of Arica is situated, giving the possessor of the territory a great advantage in South American affairs from both political and commercial standpoints. Here is ample reason why these two South American republics want it, and why Bolivia hopes that, in the adjustment, she will have an outlet to the sea accorded her."

The trouble over this region arose originally from the fact that, in the days of the early Spanish settlers, the country was so vast that a few hundred square miles more or less made no difference in the affairs of a colony, and when the colonies organized themselves into republics, they still were too busy with their internal problems to bother about where their boundaries began and where they ended. This condition was true not only of Peru, Chile and Bolivia, but of most of the other South American republics, as indicated by the numerous boundary questions which have been in dispute during the last decade.

So matters drifted until the middle of the nineteenth century, when guano and nitrate were discovered in this formerly ignored region. The guano alone was then hastily estimated as worth twenty millions of dollars, not to mention the nitrate.

What friends could be expected to remain friendly with such a mountain of dollars between them? Since that time the Peru-Chile-Bolivia story has been one of controversies, treaties, counter-charges, and plebiscites never taken.

Chile has been administering the affairs of the Province since the close of the War of the Pacific in 1883, and its commercial development has been great. Railroads have been built connecting many places in the interior with the coast, the harbor of Arica improved, and the nitrate business developed. Though much of the land in the departments is rather desolate, and water, in barrels attached to mules by ropes, is being hauled across the great desert wastes, the river valleys are fertile, and the climate of the city of Arica and the coastal strip is delightful.

Arica has been called the "most beautiful port between Panama and Valparaiso." El Morro, which towers 855 feet above sea level, shelters its harbor and is the "stick over the door" for mischief-making invaders. The town is also the terminus of the old Inca highway to La Paz.

The city of Tacna, 39 miles distant by rail, is an important commercial point on the trade route from Bolivia to the sea.

In the eastern part of the Province in the Andes there are rich areas strewn with silver, copper, tin, and other valuable minerals. The scenic beauty of these mountains is an asset to the country. They present the aspect of a high plateau, 14,000 feet above sea level, whose sloping and irregular surface is dotted here and there with picturesque, once turbulent volcanoes now wearing peaceful-looking snowcaps.
